	2020-07-24 01:44:27	Western Cape		Yes I do	I think that bring SA into line with international standards in this area is very important, and provided that the laws are applied evenly and without cognisance of social station, the changes should help to dissuade corruption, and to restoring of SA's reputation as an investment destination that is trustworthy and reliable, neither of which seem to be true just now which is unfortunate. 	2020-07-17 08:46:14	Western Cape		Yes I do	Government needs to limit the affect of criminal activity on our economy and this may help. I do however feel that the prosecution of politicians involved in fraud, corruption and theft should carry absolute priority. More legislation won't fix our problems, enforcement will. There has been a dismal under performance of all the law enforcement agencies as far as catching the criminals both inside and outside of government. This should be a much higher priority.	Gary

	2020-07-16 07:50:35	Western Cape		Yes I do	These amendments are timely and necessary. The removal of the Gambling Board's oversight makes sense and the expansion of accountable institutions is to be welcomed. There will be an administrative cost to pay which will be worthwhile if money laundering is reduced. The FIC needs more powers but also better capacity and independence. All in all good these are good amendments — it does not concern me that is is arguably too wide as the Courts may read it down.	MF

	2020-07-15 13:45:31	Western Cape		Yes I do	Although I support the expanded version of the act, the reality is that any changes are superfluous as the existing supervisory entities are largely useless. The private financial sector has been put through arduous hoops such as the required regulatory exams, but corruption continues to rise. The Guptas are a prime example: how did that family manage to amass such riches outside of the country without any bank/regulatory authority picking up on it? There is no accountability, hence no application of the law, hence not worth the time or effort or paper it's written on.	Matt

	2020-08-13 18:52:34	Western Cape		No I do not	I oppose the FICA ammendment bill. I also oppose FICA. There are no terrorists to concern ourselves with other than that of the state. The FICA bill wishes to have their hand over your Crypto currency AND your Precious metals. The state is simply wishing to have their hands in your pockets and to steal more from the people. The justification that it is to counter terrorism or money laundering is nonsense. The most money laundered and stolen is BY THE STATE. Check the statistics. I desire privacy of person and property. 	2020-08-03 13:23:22	Western Cape		No I do not	These latest proposed amendments show yet another invasion into personal privacy. It has nothing to do with international standards, but ever increasing centralised control (a world wide phenomena). Who holds the governments accountable? No one - the wolf guarding the sheep. It does nothing to prevent the corruption, fraud and other financial crimes we already have in SA and instead punishes law abiding citizens and Casps through unnecessary red tape and bureaucracy. This then destroys prospects of new job opportunities being created in SA especially in a new and growing industry such as the Crypto Asset Industry.	Debora

					This amendment is overly broad and therefore allows for abuse take place. There is no clear definition of what a "Casp" (Crypto Asset Service Provider) is and what it isn't. It does nothing to prevent the corruption, fraud and other financial crimes we already have in SA and instead punishes law abiding citizens and Casps through unnecessary red tape and bureaucracy. This then destroys prospects of new job opportunities being created in SA especially in a new and growing industry such as the Crypto Asset Industry. The draft amendment has nothing to do with preventing money laundering, as the banks have proven themselves to be the biggest money launderers in the world, as can be seen from some news articles: https://money.cnn.com/2018/02/08/news/rabobank-mexico-drug-money-laundering/index.html https://www.economist.com/finance-and-economics/2019/03/07/more-banks-are-caught-up-in-money-laundering-scandals https://ewn.co.za/2019/12/20/sarb-fines-5-banks-for-weaknesses-in-money-laundering-control-measures https://fortune.com/2020/03/11/money-laundering-record-year-bank-fines/ I do NOT support this amendment as it only benefits banks and government which have a proven track record of doing exactly that, which the rest of us are not allowed to do by law. This amendment penalizes Casps and other institutions that have no history of money laundering.

If you create 10,000 regulations, you destroy all respect for the law." - Winston Churchill Bitcoin is a system of money secured by cryptography that is outside the realm of governments and hyperinflation. By buying bitcoin you are participating in a global peaceful protest against the ongoing corruption of governments and banks. In other words, 'Deal with it' because there is NOTHING you can do to stop it. You can go right ahead and make all the rules and regulations you want...all it will do is push more and more people to look for an alternative like bitcoin that the government is powerless against. Laws and rules are only powerful if they can be enforced. Ask all the people against movies, music and software being pirated how the law is working for them... What you SHOULD be doing is absolutely nothing...let the free market thrive. Encourage crypto businesses to setup offices in South Africa, to create jobs here in S.A. and bring in more money into South Africa.	Jaques

	2020-07-21 15:12:45	Western Cape		No I do not	If it wasn't for governments, bloated companies, a fear mongering media and big pharma, the world would be a pleasant place to live. At some point the Government has to do it's job of servant to the people. Why not start now. People for the most part want to do the right thing, Governments turn them into criminals and then say, 'see why you need the control'. Take your boots of the peoples necks, help them to flourish and prosper and you will, in turn reap the benefits. The current policies of governments not just local, but world over can only lead to the demise of civilization as it has done to countless civilizations through time. All previous civilizations crumbled because of a top down approach. If these policy makers want to have a prosperous future for themselves and their own families they need to start with an inclusive and helping approach. A more inclusive approach to stealing peoples hard earned cash is not the way to go.	Greg

					It is good to implement controls to prevent the corruption of an institution. It is awesome if these measures will assist to expose the Zuptas and alike, and prevent such criminal and traitorous activity in the future. It will be beautiful if these measures can curb the distribution of ill-gotten gains from the trade of illicit alcohol and tobacco products as well as other illegal activity and expose the benefactors. The government, who designed the proposed controls, is however corrupt and we cannot trust the honesty of their intentions. We can trust that they have already ensured that their complacency in the forementioned is hidden and that it will serve for them as a tool to monitor and expose honorable activities so they can direct their corruption more effectively.

					Our Government should lead by example and sort out corruption in it's own ranks first before looking at the little person in the street. I am of the mindset that the FICA Act is not for the purposes intended and would not be necessary if the corruption was rooted in Government and once they cleaned up their act. Once they cleaned up their own act they would be able to see better how to handle the corruption of others and in many instances "so called corruption". 					We need to first expose the corrupt and 'untouchables' that siphoned off the public's money, via illegal means. Disposal of State property, for private gain, Tenders, corruption, and cronyism.. Dubious unreported transactions, and the TAXATION of the the criminal proceeds of the looting of State coffers, and financial institutions. The corruption in government over the last decade has not only made us the laughing stock of the world, it had serious financial ramifications for all of us. As a province we battled the draught as one, we will certainly win the battle against this pandemic as a province too, but the rest of the country needs to shape up and learn what it means to fight a common enemy and stop the blaming game. The ANC has been in Government now for 26 years and all we hear is apartheid and racism, why not honour those who have dedicated their careers to promote and train previously disadvantaged people and helped them to make a success of their lives. Yes, there are millions of WHITES who have recognised the need amongst our people and who have actively included all races in our lives and helped them to better themselves. But there is never a Thank you, just more blaming. This blaming game will still be the death of a great nation!!!!	Miems

	2020-07-18 02:56:24	Western Cape		No I do not	As it stands, I do not support the FICA principle as implemented in the first place. I am okay with financial institutions ensuring identity of the parties they deal with, but in general forcing any other institution to acquire the same level of documentation is just plain illogical. How I spend my money should not be anyone's concern. Monitoring how, and how much I earn is sufficient.	TC

	2020-07-17 15:40:11	Western Cape		No I do not	The FICA system does nothing to stop the so-called "illegal" trades - it simply makes the lives of ordinary law-and tax-abiding systems more difficult and frustrating. I have had my accounts frozen on numerous occasions simply because the financial institution has not entered the documents submitted months before. The government is increasing state control like a police state while it is incompetent in the execution of the regulations and makes you the criminal when they are in fact in error. If government is unable to manage even a state company with limited success, and do nothing to those who have looted the country, destroyed infrastructure and state assets, and simply have not done what they say they will and take an oath for, please tell me how can they in their wildest dreams manage these complexities?	Ian

Why can't this government look to create wealth instead of looking for ways to steal and milk it.	Duncan

	2020-07-16 20:46:12	Western Cape		No I do not	I don't know why the government thinks they have the right to interfere in every aspect of our lives- we are beginning to live in a totalitarian state where the government controls everything. This is nonsense. We are a constitutional democracy and we have free will. If I want to sell my goods it is none of the government's business unless, of course, I am trying to sell dangerous or illegal goods which I have no interest in doing. If the government was doing a good job, they wouldn't have the need to try and control the population but they aren't. They are doing NOTHING good in any sphere - they mess up EVERYTHING and to now want to interfere in the selling of private goods is just another opportunity to create a tax, the money of which they will squander on useless projects and worse. The best thing this goverment can do is resign - everything is in an absolute mess which they will never admit - witness them trying to talk their way out of the collapse of the health system in the Eastern Cape that the whole world knows about now. They say there is no problem - they are living nothing but lies.	Ann

I comply with all regulations from SARS and SARB and can only buy my foreign currency from a bank. They do KYC checks already and they are the authority that checks that I am compliant with SARS before they process anything. Why would we overload our already under skilled government with additional steps that are currently already being done by approved financial institutions.	Murray
	2020-07-16 19:57:17	Western Cape		No I do not	The banks already need to check the tax clearance certificates that come from SARS. You pay tax when you do crypto currency trading. As long as the people doing it are using legal steps, I do not see the point of interfering. Our government already can't manage the basics. Don't add technology to the mix.	Bianca

	2020-07-16 19:28:12	Western Cape		No I do not	There are already so many anti-poor restrictions created and enforced by the government to money, cars and houses. Why do we need more? Every other area you regulate or set foot in becomes a long-drop toilet of corruption, waste, restrictions, and anti-poor activity.	Doug

	2020-07-16 14:06:04	Western Cape		No I do not	The current FICA never achieved what it was meant to.... why should this draft amendment be different? I pay my taxes on my earnings..if you want to tax me on top of that if I invest my after tax earnings in cryptocurrency... no way. Abuse of current spending of taxpayers money due to extremely rampant theft & corruption must stop. If the state used the income where it is needed..for the good of ALL the people, then it would not need to look at other ways to fund necessary infrastructure. 	2020-07-16 10:53:21	Western Cape		No I do not	There is no need for the government to involve itself with the personal matters of its citizens. This is an unnecessary intrusion.	PETER
	2020-07-16 10:50:13	Western Cape		No I do not	This is another way in which the corrupt thieving ANC government is trying to get their dirty hands on more money. The only reason for this amendment is so the ANC can steal more money from the citizens of SA.	Simon

	2020-07-16 09:51:32	Western Cape		No I do not	I herewith object on the basis that this legislation is part and parcel of the Reserve Banks' attempt to stiffen actual competition relating to monies made outside their sphere. Its all a plan to get their hands on money earned and to 'tax" it to a "exchange rate" that is proposed and forced down on the citizens of South Africa, all this by an entity that is not even South African owned. Fact is the Reserve bank is privately owned by foreigners and was signed into power by Jan Smuts, while he was dancing to the Crown of England's tunes and instructions. I will not be a slave to international money masters. If the government had any clue, they should actually openly support Cryptos and precious metals as a tax free haven for citizens to invest their money tax free, taxes will be paid when citizens spend their gains in the open market as VAT. Crypto and precious metals should be part of the governments tax free investment savings plan. I personally believe that precious metals are a much saver haven for retirement funds than any retirement annuity out on the current market. Especially as that market continuous to be dictated to by the Reserve Bank. I do however support legislation that would ensure consumer security with in these markets, to ensure legitimate companies are operating in these markets.	Michael
	2020-07-16 09:43:45	Western Cape		No I do not	Amendment to FICA to include crypto and high value assets in schedule 1 and deletion of schedule 3 will only have dramatic cost implication negatively effecting individuals participating AND government spending but with no further benefit to the citizens of SA	Gert

	2020-07-16 09:42:18	Western Cape		No I do not	Ek glo nie daar moet verder gepeuter word met Fica regulasies nie. Hou ook nie van wat tans aangaan in die land nie. Ek dink die regering is besig om sy hand te oorspeel en covid19 is met voorbedagte rade losgelaat. Die president het gesê presies hoe hy vanjaar alles gaân laat gebeur vanjaar en het goed geweet wat gaan kom. Nou gebruik hul die tyd om ons mense finansieel te breek en sy planne te implementeer wat hy sy ondersteuners belowe en verseker het. Regering moet net onthou die wêreld is rond en wat was, kom weer. Wat jy saai sal jy maai. Goed sal altyd die sleg oorwin. Hul gaan so te kere oor apartheid maar hierdie regering is meer rasisties as die voriges .Hulle word verteer deur haat en neid.Mag die Here ons begenadig!!!	Sarah

	2020-07-15 16:49:24	Western Cape		No I do not	This is another bit of Communist nonsense to circumvent our constitution and tax hard working South Africans even harder and increasing their burecratic load load with nonsense. This will not only cause a flight of capital but precious hardworking tax paying citizens will send all their investments outside the scope of the ANC to steal it.. Many with precious skills and the ONLY TRUE job creating capability will pack and leave our country for ever. Our best students have already been doing just that. "Insanity" doing the same thing year after year voting for the ANC and expecting a different outcome. Over 24 years our SOE's have been systematically robbed by ANC "useless cadres" and are now worth junk status. Apartheid and Racism are an abomination and were destroyed in 1994 through MAndela. 24years later and oppressed "slaves" from the colonial era are still crying that they haven't been given enough. Will it force the ANC voters in Soweto and the like who have not paid for their ESKOM electricity for years to pay up? -NO. Same goes for rates. What about applying FICA to the land invaders??? What about the phoney clergy driving around in Mercs?- Answer nothing, ANC regards them as their own, same as taxi owners.	Colin

	2020-07-15 13:51:02	Western Cape		No I do not	Get rid of Fica, unbundle regulations. Fica has not stopped the most masive corruption to ever take place in SA. It is a pointless waste of time and a huge waste of money for companies to meet requirements and to have to employ extra government staff to police.	Kenny
	2020-07-15 13:45:14	Western Cape		No I do not	This will not work in a corrupt country like South Africa and will chase the last few investors away.	Sabine
	2020-07-15 13:38:26	Western Cape		No I do not	The reason why crypto was invented was to establish a decentralised financial environment as we all know how corrupt banking institutions and the government are. The govenment and banking sectors need to get their own house in order, eradicate corruption and banking cartels, very little is being done to address the blatant corruption, and now they want to get their thieving hands on the crypto industry in the guise of this amendment.	Sean
	2020-07-15 13:37:54	Western Cape		No I do not	Government are just looking for ways to find money - even legal money. None of their business!	Che
	2020-07-15 13:37:31	Western Cape		No I do not	These draft amendments are ridiculous. They even go so far as stating that these amendments will apply to services outside of the borders of ZA over which the ZA government have absolutely no jurisdiction! The purpose of FICA is purportedly to help fight corruption yet the highest levels of corruption in ZA are within the government itself! The government has no right to impose further restrictions on the citizens of ZA when it has totally failed to remove corruption from its own ranks.	Anthony
	2020-07-15 13:36:58	Western Cape		No I do not	I think we should open up the country and all trade. We can adjust life to working from home if you can. We can adjust to asking high risk and infected people to rather isolate. We can adjust to focusing on healthy eating habits and healthy living conditions and management of people ill but with mild symptoms so that they do not burden the system. Loosing more jobs will cost lives trough poverty, malnutrition,crime and more. I feel strongly that we should now return to our new normal. Assist where need be and move forward.	adri

	2020-07-15 13:22:59	Western Cape		No I do not	From the very beginning I did not agree with the FICA regulations. I have never believed that these regulations will do anything to curb fraud or organised crime, and after many discussions with representatives of banks, other financial institutions and police officers this has been confirmed. 	2020-07-15 13:18:57	Western Cape		No I do not	Our government can not govern what they have but continue with more regulations to curb some freedom. All they seem to be good at is rob the taxpayers at the expense of there own people	Deon

	2020-07-15 12:42:48	Western Cape		No I do not	The FICA Act already makes it more difficult to do business and imposes heavy documental requirements on Banks and INDIVIDUAL TAXPAYERS.It clogs down simple banking transactions for both SME'S and private individuals.Therefore adding to it is making draconian requirements only worse.We the individual does not need Government to always protect us-we can discern what is good and bad -We do not need Government to do this foe us.Government needs to SIMPLIFY Business.That is all.	alan

	2020-07-15 12:17:12	Western Cape		No I do not	The focus should be on basic human rights of which one is the right to privacy, the banking sector is the largest legalized criminal institution, they charge you exorbitant costs for every single transaction, if I had a choice I would not deal with any of them but we are forced to, there is more than enough legislation in place to monitor legal business and private individuals, we do not want to be treated like criminals just because that is all Government understands, criminality. 	2020-07-15 12:07:23	Western Cape		No I do not	It's completely unacceptable and places South Africa at yet another disadvantage to trade and investment. This deters investment and leads to an even more impoverished country. Misappropriated funds, maladministration and wide scale known looting has been allowed to continue throughout the 9 wasted Zuma years and continues unabated as the Zuma wing cadre control of the ANC still reigns and rules. It must be mentioned by name as they is what has economically destroyed this country. Nothing has been done to stop it, to prosecute the known guilty parties or to recoup any of the money. Continued escalation of personal tax is pointless as long as the hole in the bucket of looting isn't plugged.	Maurice

	2020-07-15 11:40:02	Western Cape		No I do not	The government must stop this endless drive to have more and more control over our lives. This relentless desire by big government to know everything about everyone is way too invasive. The basis of this is always to find ways of taxing it's people still more. All it will do is lead to the collapse of the private sector as too much of the private sector capital ends up in government hands, which is then used incompetently and ineffectively and wasted.	Dave

	2020-07-15 11:37:45	Western Cape		No I do not	Taxpayers' money should not be spent on creating and enforcing more regulations such as this, as we do not benefit. More regulations mean more confusion and chaos as it has been happening with the lockdown. I doubt if there are enough resources. NHI is the same. We cannot allow the gov to force these regulations. Before they put more control over the taxpayers, they much have some control over all criminal activities such as wastage and corruption within themselves and arrest the criminals in the parliament and government services. It seems everything stops at the investigations in this country.	Mari
	2020-07-15 11:27:10	Western Cape		No I do not	It all about more government control unfortunately.	Ingo
	2020-07-15 11:22:25	Western Cape		No I do not	Enough with the control already!! Systems like Fica are only necessary because the basic system of tax collection is too complex and doesn't work. A tax system which has only a sales tax to monitor would be much easier to operate and would not need any of these intrusive controls.	Eric
	2020-07-15 11:20:09	Western Cape		No I do not	The FICA is a further extension of the communist agenda this government has. if only they put as much time and energy into things that really matter, like crime, housing, unemployment and education.	Lizette
	2020-07-15 11:20:05	Western Cape		No I do not	FICA is a spy network. Spies are used to interfere in people's private lives. It is as such unconstitutional and harmful to citizens' inalienable right to freedom of choice. Criminal law is sufficient to deal with criminality. We do not need to expand the existing costly network of spies, who mostly serve their own interests and that of their political masters. The proposed changes are introduced with the aim of further limiting citizen's freedom, to pursue their own interests.	Michiel

	2020-07-15 10:59:20	Western Cape		No I do not	The cost of the FICA regulation to the economy in terms of manpower and unnecessary paperwork COMPLETELY outweighs the supposed benefits. 	2020-07-15 10:57:33	Western Cape		No I do not	Any new form of regulation by government takes SA closer to a full-on Socialist state. We need less government and less regulation. Covid has taught us bitter lessons about extending government powers. Certainly NO!!!!!!	Joe

	2020-07-15 10:53:47	Western Cape		No I do not	The blatant rape and pillage of our economy has , rightfully, created a total distrust of this ANC government with the result that actions such as this suggest there is a hidden agenda to enrich more of our corrupt officials.	Yvonne

	2020-07-15 10:34:45	Western Cape		No I do not	In principle, it is a good thing to include all the usual money laundering avenues like cash house, car and Kruger Rands buying. We all know the corrupt rush out immediately to buy the flashiest wheels, house, etc. However, I do not believe current legislation is enforced, so why bother to add new bits. In particular, I do not believe the banks treat all their customers equally, as is evidenced by the the corrupt washing fund through the financial sytem with impunity. The ordinary individual is watched like a hawk, just to prove to the regulators that they are actually implementing the law. Fix the current laws and enforce them before adding more complications. Let us first see a few orange overalls for the people who are corrupt and also for the facilitators of these deeds. The most corrupt ones still in power, they all have their stash out of the country long ago. The government is publising draft resolution for ammendmentd so well in advance....the corrupt ones have ample time to hide away. It has been with FICA instrouctions already.	pete
	2020-07-15 10:34:01	Western Cape		No I do not	These regulations are put together under the premise of antimoney laundering and anti-terrorism, but in fact its got nothing to do with better governance, and a lot to do with strengthen taxation on the everyday citizen. There is no mention of what the government or the F.I.C deems crypto to be, an asset? a currency? a method of transaction? No, but they're wanting to track it and tax it. Since crypto almost always eventually converts to FIAT currency via the already established methods, what is the reason for wanting to track this? Double taxation! Surely current FIAT policies already track money laundering and terrorism? The biggest fraud, corruption and terrorism, is currently taking place in government. Take any nationalised institute and audit it.... its rife with fraud. The economy is struggling and instead of government/F.I.C trying to improve the economy, it's looking for means of making more money, only for it to be lost via internal corruption and fraud. Why is there no mention of POPI controls or adherance measures, and who is accountable in terms of information being shared with 3rd parties. What is the process of sharing and will it be open to public scrutiny? Essentially all this does is strengthen foreign compliance and taxation but does very little for privacy and accountability, especially for those that may abuse this information.	Jorgen
	2020-07-15 10:29:10	Western Cape		No I do not	No I do not. Laws already exist, but are not being used to prosecute the looters of the government coffers. Government officials defraud their offices and get away with it. Evidence abounds but they are are still at their desks. Disciplinary hearings never take place, never mind court cases. We don't need new laws, just apply the ones we have!	Tony

	2020-07-15 10:26:50	Western Cape		No I do not	The government is already infringing on our rights enough. Let them rather just try and run the country properly, maybe provide reliable electricity and water. After they successfully manage to provide the basic necessities of a third world country, then maybe they can start pretending that they can actually successfully emulate the models of first world countries.	Ian
	2020-07-15 10:26:33	Western Cape		No I do not	Laws are only applied to a few. As a long standing client I battled to fica simply because my name is not printed on the municipality bill although the property is in my name too. I had to jump through loop of fire. 	2020-07-15 10:25:52	Western Cape		No I do not	This government just creates more and more laws and cannot even implement the existing ones or somehow manages to benefit from the new ones and pocket money personally. A totally ridiculous FICA amendment	Joan

	2020-07-15 10:18:57	Western Cape		No I do not	Communism in full force. Does the ANC believe the public is not fully aware of their agenda? Their plan has been in operation since they came into office. Their goal is to squeeze every last cent from the white man in whatever form they can dream up. But the ANC is getting far too greedy because when you are squeezing the tax paying population too hard, the system will crumble. But I suppose it won't matter because the politicians have already lined their bank accounts with our money to the tune of millions of Rand and they do not care about anybody else! The ANC pretends to care about "their people" and toss them the odd bone (maybe a house and free electricity) but their goal is not to uplift the population, the goal is to control the population into keeping the ANC in parliament so that they can just continue the cycle of pillaging all the money and resources South Africa has to offer. When communism is in full swing it will not effect the millionaire politicians or their offshore bank accounts. They will simply take whatever they've stolen and leave their own people scrabbling for food a means to survive. This is disgusting! Ramaphosa refers to whites as "you and your ilk". Yes our ilk built this country from nothing which is why you had the opportunity to turn south africa into a junk status shithole by stealing from every citizen you had a responsibility to care for. You are all a disgrace. This FICA amendment is just one more way to squeeze blood from a stone!	Brian

	2020-07-15 10:16:31	Western Cape		No I do not	Govt must first get the existing laws properly implemented to prosecute and charge the many government people who have and are still stripping the fiscus for their own benefit. Concentrate on that, before introducing new/amended legislation. South Africa is a country that has more laws than other and each new minister thinks it is his job to introduce new laws. Instead they should rather do the real job: Make sure that existing legislation is properly executed. We desperately need lawmakers and a government who will act against the ones who are continually enriching themselves, at the expense of ordinary people.	Barend

I and others are trying to build ourselves a financial stable platform but am now being curbed because ANC government has found another way to lay their hands on our hard-earned funds over many years. Young people entering the crypto market is again being swindled out of an opportunity to grow themselves financially with funds they are planning to build their future. We are being taxed in so many ways already yet we cannot see the progress the Government is making after more than 25 years at the helm. How much more do they want to take from us . 					Crypto currencies were developed precisely to keep it OUT of the hands of Government and out of control. How do you propose to "give back" the taxes should the "perceived value" of a crypto currency fall? Enough tax is paid on everything already!! Salaries get taxed, then the bit that is left is again taxed when you buy food or services. That already is double taxation. Remove taxes completely and start running the country on what your departments "earn" for services rendered.

Take a motor dealer at the lower end of the market. He usually sells vehicles for less than R100k - but now and again for more. Is he required to register as an AI?? What about civil engineers? They sell construction components, engineering elements etc - often for more than R100k. Are they probable money launderers and need registration as an AI? Very poorly thought through proposal and just another bureaucratic imposition. Keeps them in their jobs while doing nothing about the real money launderers such as our own "domestic prominent influential persons"	Alan

There are good and bad in this and I suggest that it should not make things more complicated for South Africans! People with a million rand and more income a year can be taxed accordingly but reasonably. It should be percentage and higher the more you make. People with interests outside SA with houses and other should pay tax than SA's. We pay far too much for houses for instance because too many foreigners buy cheap in SA. They must pay tax and the prizes should stay low. They cannot buy more than 1 house. Super rich and foreigners must pay more and we the locals must be allowed to have a life	Tjaart

It has not discouraged the people who were already breaking the law. Look how the corrupt officials in government (including in some of the opposition parties) have managed to embezzle and launder money with impunity over the past ten years. It is a waste of time designed to make us feel that something is being done about the curtailing the ill-gotten gains of crime. We need full transparency. There should be tighter integration with SARS here, not burdening the citizenry more for 0 benefit. SARS IT needs actual industry-experienced software engineering paying market rates (not absurd tender prices for simple websites). Financial institutions already ask for the same documents over and over that then have to be stamped over and over. Instead, provide a singular interface with SARS (NOT a third party) for citizens to be able to upload FICA & verify documents once, and South African institutions should then be able to query for that data automatically. Citizens can be given updates via sms/email when a new inquiry is made and can approve/block it.	Nikolaos

	2020-07-23 16:17:23	Gauteng		No I do not	The government has failed to address the rampant mismanagement of expenditure in State Owned Enterprises; insolvency of municipalities; graft by government officials; corruption of government employees and politicians, and has allowed South Africa to be raped financially because government failed in their responsibilities repeatedly to ensure the integrity and proper management of critical institutions. It appears that the government has no care in ensuring that BILLIONS OF RAND are not abused and stolen or squandered but would rather feel it more worthwhile to monitor the sale of a R 60 000 motor vehicle that has depreciated 80% relative to its original purchase price over 5 years. FOR WHAT?? The fact that a person speculates on a quarter bitcoin and makes R 4000 profit (that's if they don't lose their shirts) is more important than Eskom LOSING 1.4 BILLION RAND (minimum) to the purchase of substandard coal and failing to manage its coal purchases (2019 report)? That Eskom poor performance bonuses are in the many millions each year is less important than a person making a few thousand Rand profit on the sale of a gold Kruger Rand (not even taking into account the time value of money from the date of purchase of the coin)? GOVERNMENT NEEDS TO GET ITS HOUSE IN ORDER AND SAVE THE BILLIONS BEING SQUANDERED BY ITSELF as opposed to trying to see who might be making a tiny relative profit on a small speculation by a private individual. Yet government will employ hundreds of staff to record who is selling their car at a loss. The mentality of spending energy and resources saving your TV set in a burning home instead of trying to PUT OUT THE FIRE is insane. No wonder the entire African continent is such a mess.	Graham

If the Act was implemented correctly then how would it be possible that all the funds from corruption could flow between accounts without it being reported or stopped. The FIC Act is in place to make it difficult for the man in the street to do business. A complete waste of time and money because it is not implemented correctly and for the correct reasons. I worked in the banking industry for 39 years and I know every transaction can be traced and it is impossible that money from illegal activities can't be traced.	Jeanette

	2020-07-19 15:09:27	Gauteng		No I do not	The people already in government are stealing this country blind. There is NO NEED for this government to follow or regulate financial transactions to a world wide standard as the ANC government don't and won't follow any standard but their own so, who are they kidding? Rules only apply to law abiding citizens of which in my opinion many ANC government officials are not. More rules make business more difficult for people wanting to do the right thing. The criminal carries on as usual without ant fear of the law. When legislation is proposed by and for a responsible government for application by responsible guardians then it is sensible and necessary. But when the government is none of these things, and only ever proposes changes to remove any restrictions to its control of all funds available in whatever format, then the answer has to be absolutely NOT. 	2020-07-19 11:58:06	Gauteng		No I do not	Government is running the private sector into the ground. Government and teachers are getting salaries for No Work. Private sector is no work no pay. The Private sector must keep supplying government with finance but we are closed down and no finance for private business. The Pakistanis and Chinese opening shops where South Africans close down with poor to no cleanliness. Government can employ more people to educate the smokers and alcohol users and restrict them. Not penalise the private sector. Schools must remain open so that kids could be educated while parents can earn a salary to provide for their children.	Wessel
	2020-07-19 11:37:19	Gauteng		No I do not	The latest proposed amendments is yet another invasion into personal privacy. It has nothing to do with international standards, but ever increasing centralised control (a world wide phenomena). Who holds the government accountable? No one - the wolf guarding the sheep. The ANC is utterly non accountable - I repeat utterly non accountable. Imagine giving the wolf greater control over the sheep. The ANC constitutes the worst government SA has ever had in its history and that, compared to the awful era of the past since 1910. South Africa has only ever had illegitimate governments, but the ANC has done more to destroy the average man's life than any before it.	John

	2020-07-16 23:58:21	Gauteng		No I do not	The issue is not that the laws in place aren't good, but as is often seen the amendments make the laws broader but less specific. The laws should be clarified in all aspects before they get gazetted. The motive behind the law change is sound (anti-terrorism and money laundering). But the proposed changes don't seem to align with those goals entirely! The buying of kruger rands does not seem to be terrorist threat. 	2020-07-16 22:47:12	Gauteng		No I do not	Just another attempt by a corrupt government to gain more control over people's wealth to make sure their pockets remain full while the ordinary person is over taxed and overwhelmed with red tape. These types of amendments create more barriers to entry in a market that is supposedly free, and starts to reek of socialism and communism. Too much government interference stifles the economy, and even more so when the government themselves is not transparent. 	2020-07-16 14:59:26	Gauteng		No I do not	At this point in time we have more than enough regulation of what and how we do things. It is time for government to get their own house in order by taking people to court for what they have stolen from SOE' s and effectively from each and every citizen of South Africa. 	2020-07-16 14:14:36	Gauteng		No I do not	First of all, South Africa is supposed to be a democracy. Therefore FICA needs to be limited as much as possible and it must not now become cumbersome! Crypto Currency is a global currency with no borders and no government involvement, so hands-off please to governments everywhere! The South African government rather needs to apply all of it's current policies as these policies need to be applied here in South Africa, before the South African government adds any other new policies to the existing list of policies. Us South African citizens fully support a democratic South Africa and we do not want South Africa to become- and to be ruled as a dictatorship!	Carien

	2020-07-16 10:59:46	Gauteng		No I do not	If you own something of value, the South African government wants to take a piece of it from you, regardless of how destructive their attitudes are to the economy here in what was once a thriving country. Currently, if one has a South African retirement plan, the future is shaky; given our government is able to "regulate" how much you actually get paid out, of you get paid at all. The way they have arranged things, is not in our favor.. one day your retirement will probably be stolen so that an ANC official can have his/her bonus for that year.. Giving the government the ability to monitor our crypto currencies is s really bad idea; investing in things like bitcoin is one of the only ways we can protect our money from our own government —> this is why they want to "regulate it". Please help stop them by spreading this opinion!	Ashton

					FICA has in the past shown itself to be ineffective. It is already so complex that it has become expensive and as it expands it will become even more complex and more expensive and still only catch less than 35% of what should be caught. Kindly redefine your goals and purposes. You want to catch all illegal monies, or those in excess of R100,000, or habitually uses.... etc. You want to limit your costs to ...R You want to limit participants, business costs and time to You want to limit policing costs to Do you have a clear vision on how this is going to play out....that is where you are headed and how this is going to play out? Have you considered how much more difficult it s making for new entrants into the field. May I suggest that before expanding this effort you start from fresh using AI to achieve your purposes.

	2020-07-15 18:54:21	Gauteng		No I do not	Are these regulations not intended for anti-money laundering and anti-terrorism? The concern is, that government is only introducing this draft amendment for the purpose of increased taxation on citizens. Surely, current FIAT policies already track money laundering and terrorism? It is by now a known fact, that far more fraud and corruption has and continues to take place, within government and municipal departments. This is where stricter regulations should be put into place, combined with regular audits being carried out by independent and credible accounting institutions, in order to hold those responsible, fully accountable on a prompt and effective basis. The SA economy is in a state of collapse. The SA business sector and vast majority of SA citizens are struggling to just make ends meet. Instead of government trying to improve the economy and lives of ALL SA citizens, it appears that they are only looking for further means to plunder money , in order to repay debt and fund irresponsible and irrational decisions made, alike to the continued bailing out of Eskom, SAA and the list goes on to include, unconstitutional e-toll fees. There is no mention of what the government or the FIC deems crypto to be? It appears, that the only intent is to track and tax. As crypto in most cases eventually does convert to FIAT currency via the already established methods, one can only question why there is now a need to track this! Double taxation immediately comes to mind. There is no mention made of POPI controls or adherence measures and who, will be held accountable in terms of information shared with any 3rd parties. Government needs to define the process of sharing and whether or not, this will be open to public scrutiny, as otherwise, all that results is strengthening foreign compliance and taxation with very little left for privacy and accountability, especially amongst those who abuse information of this nature. In current context, this draft amendment can only be deemed to be viewed, as a further violation on the rights of SA citizens. When is enough going to be enough? SA Citizens are entitled to their privacy!	Marlene

	2020-07-15 18:46:48	Gauteng		No I do not	The government only want to add this legislation to cripple the industry with unachievable regulations and delays due to administrative hassles. This legislation will negatively impact the economy and only control the honest citizens. There is no way to govern this as access by government to crypto engines as this will cause global security risks, the dishonest will therefore still be able to do what they want and the honest will suffer under incompetent administrators with no benefit to due diligence and financial control. 	2020-07-15 09:51:08	Gauteng		No I do not	This legislation has nothing to do with protecting anyone, though it is hailed and promoted in such a light. It's about gaining access to what should in principle be private and confidential client affairs and data, and therefore benefits only those who may well have nefarious intentions. 	2020-07-15 09:23:06	Gauteng		No I do not	In 26 years the ANC & government has not proven that they can run this country fairly & make decisions to improve the state of the millions of people therein. This is just another way for them to divest people, who have suffered & worked hard themselves, from their property without compensation. Even if they do decide on compensation, what is that going to be? And where do they think the millions who are now homeless must go to? Instead of enriching themselves they should get honest contractors in each city & town to build houses for the masses who are sitting in compounds without. Not those that give kick-backs to be awarded the contracts & then use sub-standard materials to build. If this was done from when ANC took over the ruling there would've been enough houses for all... Their promises of 'free' has now turned around & kicked them in the face!	Joan

	2020-07-16 15:30:53	Gauteng		Yes I do	Like many other bills in SA, the bill is combative in its formulation as opposed to progressive. Laws should be drafted to make trade and business easy while tightened to prevent illegal activities and not with the sole objective of curbing illegal activities as this can be unnecessarily to the detriment of legal operators and create costly redtape that in reality does not really prevent criminal activities. The Bill needs to ensure Crypto Assets can be included in the BoP and recognized as legal tender. The Bill needs to also ensure that outward and inward crypto transfers are recognized. Lastly, the bill should revisit the exchange controls regulations to ensure that exchange controls limit is a nett limit after taking into account outwards and inwards transfers.	Kgaugelo

					Because of the historic misuse of RSA fiscus because of previous president's with it's associated leeches of kabals & such - if you are going to enact these policies then there ought to be ZERO exceptions, regardless of position & power! As an ordinary citizen I do sometimes feel that I am denigrated because my private personal financial transactions - as a retired citizen too - are subjected to a high degree of interrogation and as a law abiding citizen I do not object to this mostly because I do know & realize that I am not a thief or a crook. Yet at the same time one thinks - why am I subjected to this when those who supposedly represent me belligerently continue to abuse their position & power and still continue to operate as if they are above the law. How could I have a thief / thieves representing me?

	2020-08-03 11:10:57	Gauteng		Not fully	This amendment is too broad and therefore allows for abuse take place. There is no clear definition of what a "Casp" (Crypto Asset Service Provider) is and what it isn't. The amendment does not prevent the corruption, fraud and other financial crimes we already have in SA and instead punishes law abiding citizens and independent institutions through unnecessary red tape and bureaucracy. This then destroys prospects of new job opportunities being created in SA especially in a new and growing industry such as the Crypto Asset Industry. The draft amendment does not prevent money laundering; banks have proven themselves to be part of the money laundering problem themselves! Across the world, not only in SA. I do NOT support this amendment as it only benefits banks and government which have a proven track record of doing what is corrupt and self-serving. This amendment would only be meaningful if there was ANY independent, private group of institutions that could then be impartial and enforce the rule of law to the benefit of citizens and their government. Government keeps trying to force its corrupt fingers in every pie. I'm not saying they should turn a blind eye to what's happening, not at all. 	2020-07-23 16:21:02	Gauteng		Not fully	Modernisation of the law is very crucial but consideration needs also to be placed on enforcement of the bill to help reduce the high levels of social media scams, multilevel networking pyramids, high levels of undeclared monetary financial benefits accrued through the transitions throughout varying activities by individuals as well as the fraudulent classification of certain institutions as "Non-Profit" as a conscious attempt to subvert the law. Whilst banks do provide details on clients when requested, very little is done to regulate as well as monitor the actual flows of money throughout the country, very little is done to align such documentation to the actual flows that arise not only informally but through benefits that arise as a result of the movement mechanisms of money throughout our various sectors. Emphasis on ensuring control over benefits accrued financially through current and virtual platforms is important. There should be look at strengthening penalties as well as integration of various laws to better control money by individuals who may utilise varying institutions to mask their operations. 	2020-07-21 23:55:47	Gauteng		Not fully	The amendment indicates a gross misunderstanding of how crypto assets function and will render them technically illegal in South Africa. This is because transfer of assets on a blockchain happens on chain and no organization or service provider is responsible, which would most likely entail that the software developers producing crypto wallets/apps will be held accountable for something that is not within their control. They will have to compromise the security of their applications and users in order to even gain a semblance of the ability required to comply with FIC reporting standards. It is akin to holding the Mint responsible for how cash is used by individuals... This legislation would yield nothing but a slippery slope giving government the legal means to overreach with regards to blockchain technology.	Billa

I refer to the first couple of words of the crypto definition: "a digital representation of perceived value". So in other words my Edgars points or my Ebucks. How do we work out what the value is? 10 000 Edgars points and 10 000 Ebuck do not carry the same value. So who will be employ to govern this and how much will be spend on it? In a time of joblessness, homelessness and hunger why is the government concerning itself with "the perceived value" of a binary equation. There is over 5000 crypto currencies currently so how will the government govern it? Who will be going hungry at night because the "perceived value" of number on a screen is more important than the people that are suffering?	Koos

The individual takes the risk. I see this as yet another way for government to take more from the people that they are in no way entitled to in terms of taxes. The money is already taxed and what we do with it from there should be for us whether we win or lose. So we lose, there is no benefit from government to pay us to help the loss but if we make money we must pay the government. It must then work both ways. Regulations can be in place but there must be no intervention from government to gain from this.	Joe

In particular, I do not believe the banks treat all their customers equally, as is evidenced by the the corrupt washing fund through the financial sytem with impunity. 	2020-07-15 08:26:24	Gauteng		Not fully	As a tool to combat/deter criminal activity FICA appear to be a necessary "evil". In principal I support FICA but the sectors where it is relevant include ones where this legislation is impractical to implement and creating unnecessary burden and turning businesses into "illegal" operating entities. Section 1 need some serious re thinking on which sectors to include and which not. Even these being included should be further divided to focus only on high risk areas and not throwing everyone into the same category. Since the introduction of the FICA act, corruption and fraud have in general increased in South Africa. The role of FICA to combat this must focus on those areas where it can make the biggest difference and not try to make a difference to increase its scope making compliance and enforcement there off impossible resulting in all efforts of FICA being degraded. Regarding Crypto Currency. Although South Africa banking regulations and public listed companies regulations are to strict the Crypto sector should be regulated under them based on their scope of operations. This include FICA regulations.	Jan-Harm

	2020-07-22 14:37:00	KwaZulu- Natal		No I do not	They have no right to monitor or control people's efforts to improve themselves and their financial future by prudent investment choices. We are taxed more than enough everywhere else. Stop trying to be a socialist country and supporting non-contributors to the fiscal system by the few economically active. Create employment. Stop theft and corruption. Stop excessive salaries in the government sector when the performance and delivery is way short of expected or reasonable. You seek to kill off the golden geese that provide the tax base in the country. Give proper education to the people, stop eroding the qualification levels and rendering many people unemployable. Get your "ducks in a row" and your "house in order" before trying to plunder more from hard working individuals who are already taxed way beyond what we get in return. Deal effectively and quickly with the rogue individuals in state employ and those involved with the state capture debacle, looting and misappropriation of funds, stealing food parcels from the poor, etc, etc. Get the SOE's up and running before coming to take even more from the working people to bail out an incompetent government. Teach entrepreneurial skills and what it takes to make a success of any business from a young age so people can contribute in a meaningful way, understanding such concepts as productivity and the importance of being a team player to benefit the whole (business). 					The present regime has already collapsed the value of the South African Rand (ZAR) to junk status. Wise South African citizens are trying to avoid the terrible depreciation of the ZAR by investing elsewhere, including in crypto currencies, and in owning precious metals like gold, silver etc. Any profits from such activities (by organisations & individuals) are already taxed within the tax laws of South Africa. Therefore, any attempt by government to further restrict and regulate such activities would demonstrate that the South African government promotes the poverty of the South African People, and that their agenda is for the enrichment of those in government, and not for the host of South Africans that they represent. If we use as an investment then allow us to also buy it in our taxfree investments as it is also part of an investment. When a person buys a kruger rand why do you need to know who bought it as it could be a gift for a baby for when they are born. Why does the government need to know what any of our assets are when buying. Does this also include jewelery of any sort. This government is limiting all buyers to everything. 					I do not support any FICA regulations. If the passion to milk taxes can be directed towards cost cutting and removing non-value adding activities out of SOE's and the massive load that the Federal provincial setup has on our fiscus, I am certain that the annual budget will be more than sufficient. SOE's (Including ESKOM, SAA, Transnet, etc) can have their overheads and activities trimmed by around 55% and come out making a profit. Governmental Appointees, Nepotism and political interference must be eliminated here (we know it never will) first and then there will fill the fiscus instead of drain it like they are doing currently. All the provincial parliaments must be dissolved and we need to return to Provincial Administrations run by Government Officials who are appointed and not elected as there is no magic in the Ballot Box (Prof PLO Lumumba - Kenya). If you were a dunder head before you were elected, you do not become a wiseman overnight when you are elected. You are then just an elected dunder head!

	2020-07-18 22:01:44	KwaZulu- Natal		Not fully	Crypto does need to be regulated. I have had countless clients fall victim to scams. But the technology by design is not enabled to be monitored, unless you have the end address. But most South African exchanges have moved off shore and while they do already have FICA documents linked, they will not honour requests from SARS, FCSA, etc to provide them unless the judicial system in that state permits the request which is highly unlikely. Therefore the only way I can comprehend why this amendment will happen is because you want to know whose got capital gains in crypto. And for that reason I do not support this law in it's current form. Go focus on tax collection locally and stop forex scams then we can go after "intangible" assets.	Kyle

	2020-07-15 13:07:52	KwaZulu- Natal		Not fully	South Africa is already one of the most regulated countries in the world so why make it more so. This can only have to result of slowing down business even further. All it achieves is driving business transactions underground to avoid having to complete unnecessary paperwork and pay the exorbitant taxes. Yes, some control is necessary but to the extent of being detrimental to the economy. The Government should be encouraging easier ways to do business for the sake of the smaller entrepreneurs. Mathew Phosa said many years ago that BEE doesn't work yet the Government and the ANC persists with it - why, because it only enriches people already with money! What is the Government doing about all the corruption in business and looting of COVID-19 monetary funds and food 'parcels' for the poverty stricken families? 	2020-08-02 17:01:34	North West		No I do not	Ek sien nie die nut hiervan aangesien dit wil voorkom asof korrupsie nie afgeneem het selfs met die huidige Fica proses. Dis net meer administrasie (en sekerlik meer poste ook in die staatsdiens waar salarisse reeds die land verarm en ons ekonomie kniehalter) en dit skep net meer koste wat uiteindelik deur die gewone burger gedra word. Verminder eerder die "red tape" en maak dit makliker en eenvoudiger om sake te bedryf.	Johann

	2020-07-15 09:05:43	North West		No I do not	I believe that government is looking for new avenues to get their greedy hands on an asset that was/is legally procured by law abiding citizens. At present nobody feels safe, we are vulnerable to criminals and systems implemented by the current government. They are looting everything possible and are now grabbing at straws to milk the population even further. I do not trust the government in any way. They have slowly been turning South Africa into a communist state by changing laws to suit their agenda and impoverishing its citizens to such an extent that they can have total control over every aspect of all citizen's life. Rather than looking for ways to get their filthy hands on money that does not belong to them they should be focussing on eradicating corruption in their own ranks. I do not support this change to FICA.	Ina

	2020-07-19 20:52:59	Free State	No I do not	The concept of FICA has merit but the implication is an imposition and further red tape that is a burden for business. In the property industry, with registered estate agents it would be near impossible to undertake illegal money laundering without being found out. The burden of FICA - collecting documents from every tenant and buyer and keeping it for 10 years is a huge unnecessary burden. Rentals are usually relatively small amounts. Sales are handled by attorneys and this is the correct point for FICA. From the finance side the banks handle this and are another logical point for FICA. The Estate Agent is not a logical point for this cumbersome red tape - a simple requirement to report suspicious activity should suffice. As it is about 50% of all real estate transaction are done by unregistered estate agents that do not comply with either registration with the EAAB (a totally useless agency) or FICA or any other legislation. In my mind FICA is a complete waste of time. and the country would be far better off economically if it was scraped completely or limited to banks and attorneys. Other than the EAAB doing a rate inspection of registered estate agents (they never do it for unregistered estate agents) we have never been asked by a single person for any FICA documents. They simply take up time and space in our office to no purpose.	Mike

	2020-07-15 08:38:49	Free State		No I do not	As a tool to combat/deter criminal activity FICA appear to be a necessary "evil". In principal I support FICA but the sectors where it is relevant include ones where this legislation is impractical to implement and creating unnecessary burden and turning businesses into "illegal" operating entities. Section 1 need some serious re thinking on which sectors to include and which not. Even these being included should be further divided to focus only on high risk areas and not throwing everyone into the same category. Since the introduction of the FICA act, corruption and fraud have in general increased in South Africa. The role of FICA to combat this must focus on those areas where it can make the biggest difference and not try to make a difference to increase its scope making compliance and enforcement there off impossible resulting in all efforts of FICA being degraded. Regarding Crypto Currency. Although South Africa banking regulations and public listed companies regulations are to strict the Crypto sector should be regulated under them based on their scope of operations. This include FICA regulations.	Johan

					Looting in S.A. started as early as 1998 when cadres in the infancy of corruption were shifted from one department's high position to another departments higher position when investigated for fraudulent transactions. The monster has matured and NOTHING in S.A. will change unless this monster is dealt with the severity it requires. No more fooling with Zondo commissions and and and. S.A. needs an overhaul. That is the plain truth of it! If this administration was pure and honorable I would totally have agreed with this newer FICA, but in the current state of affairs it will just make the ultra corrupt more rich and more corrupt!

					Why do they need this? We do not live in a state where anything we do must be approved by them first, this looks like it is going that way. We are free, we live in a free country, with free will. We all are different, some work hard to earn more money, some don't, some study to get a better position, some don't. If you make more money legally and buy what you would like with it legally, why does the government want to know? There is no sharing in the wealth of a person who worked hard for it. The government needs to sort it out first before they go with things like this to the people.
