					Section 36 states that rights may be limited by laws of general application, but only insofar as this is "reasonable and justifiable in an open and democratic society based on dignity, freedom and equality". Is the mandating of the C19 'vaccines' "reasonable and justifiable"? Experts have noted that there are six requirements that are needed to justify a policy of mandatory vaccination: 1. The 'vaccines' must be properly trialled, tested and approved (this includes full animal studies; pharmacological reports; full registration with the SAHPRA (not Section 21)) 2. The 'vaccines' must be effective at preventing infection and transmission 3. The vaccines must be DURABLE ie: work for a substantial amount of time (at least 1 year) 4. The 'vaccines' must be safe and present negligible risk of harm to the person receiving the drug 5. No other reasonable alternatives exist to prevent or treat the disease 6. The risk or disease being immunised against must be sufficiently serious for the person being given the drug
	2022-01-31 07:59:24	Gauteng	No I do not	Mandatory vaccinations in Universities	The C19 'vaccines' fail to meet all of the 6 requirements above and we this need the SAHRC to protect our rights.	Joubert	student

					I feel that people are free to choose the medical care they wish to receive. I believe in informed consent and the constitutional rights which protect the individual in its entirety. I believe that a vaccine that is not effective for the new strain of Covid flies in the face of science and is illogical and criminal! A substantial amount of the South African population already has immunity and the fact that this immunity is not being considered is suspect of a more sinister motive.

					I am a third year Mechatronic Engineering student and have objected to mandatory Covid vaccines at UCT since I first became aware of the proposal in August 2021. It feels as though my effort to comment again on UCT's Draft Vaccine Mandate policy is a waste of time. Why would you want my opinion if I'm not one of your experts? It seems to many students that it won't really make a difference engaging so it's easier to just give in and get vaccinated or else walk away from getting our degrees. Creating more depression and segregation in our society. Below is the objection I sent to UCT on 14 Aug 2021. I don't know if anyone read it but for the record here it is again: By making the vaccines mandatory, you will not only be discriminating against those who chose not to be vaccinated on religious, medical or scientific grounds, but you will also be violating Section 29, Subsection 1b of chapter 2 of the South African Constitution: The Bill of Rights. "Everyone has the right to further education, which the state, through reasonable measures, must make progressively available and accessible." Additionally, the mandatory vaccines in general violate Section 12, Subsection 2c: "Everyone has the right to bodily and psychological integrity, which includes the right not to be subjected to medical or scientific experiments without their informed consent." By making vaccines mandatory, you are endorsing a new Apartheid, whereby those who chose bodily integrity will be discriminated against and denied the right to further education. Mandatory vaccines will not solve the problems of this pandemic. However they will certainly and surely create severe issues for future generations that we cannot yet fathom. I will not support a new Apartheid regime. I also attended UCT's online participation process on 14 Oct 2021. It felt very biased with the panel only representing one side of the debate and a number of my comments didn't appear in the chat feed. And no one replied to them. I didn't save my comments but would be interested to see the full list of comments submitted on that occasion. For transparency could all the comments be made available? At one point in that session we were told that no-one was being forced to take the vaccine. But we're not really being offered much choice with "narrowly tailored" exemptions, a huge amount of work in getting exemptions, daily symptom monitoring and regular testing. Which is very costly and stressful. Otherwise we have to walk away from our education if we don't take a vaccine. It seems it's not really a choice and it violates one of my core values which is offering people freedom of choice. It's also stressful being shamed as an "anti-vaxxer", feeling manipulated and insulted into a medical procedure I don't trust with reasoning I don't trust. With rules that keep chopping and changing, cover-ups and inconsistencies from governments and profiting corporations I don't trust either. How many boosters will we be forced to take if we accept this precedence? "It's been almost two years of living in a Covid-19 world...Throughout this period, the government has been consistent only in sending out conflicting, confusing and often downright misleading information on how to deal with this perceived threat to our lives and livelihoods. The scaremongering, fear and anxiety that South Africans were subjected to at the beginning of the pandemic, far outweighed the impact of Covid-19 on the lives of healthy citizens, which resulted in a number of suicides and an increase in cases of domestic violence as more and more people fell into depression while others joined the unemployment queues...Then with Omicron, the latest message is that two shots are not good enough, hence the government has started administering booster shots for health workers...." https://www.iol.co.za/sundayindependent/news/two-years-of-living-in-a-covid-19-pandemic-fears-threats-lies-stats-and-reality-6e827914-2d2e-412a-80de-89e1e7e3b4c1 Many of the Covid regulations have been irrational and failed to weigh up the consequences and harms for all groups. In my experience this applies especially to us students. I believe that the risk of Covid-19 needs to be weighed against risks to our education, employment, social lives and mental health. In Aug 2021 UCT published the article "Youth in the firing line of COVID-19 mental health pandemic" by Dr Patti Silbert https://www.news.uct.ac.za/article/-2021-08-24-youth-in-the-firing-line-of-covid-19-mental-health-pandemic This has been a major issue. In the first year of the pandemic I lost two friends who'd been in my class since lower primary school. My best friend Ben fell from a window at a university party and Gia hung herself on Freedom Day. One of the closest friends of one of my cousins committed suicide last month. And the close friend and classmate of another cousin drove off a cliff. And a matric boy in my brother's friend group at Wynberg Boys attempted suicide last year too. Forcing vaccine mandates in society will add to the stress. So will increased poverty. Another thing not being discussed is that stress causes illness too. Not just mental disorders but also illnesses like cancer. There also needs to be a lot more discussion about natural immunity, especially since Omicron. And also discussion about treatments which weren't mentioned in the policy. Last month the New York Times published an article about the potential for treatments to substantially reduce hospitalisation and death which could then give people more choice. "Covid Treatments are coming. Here's why they are a big deal." https://www.nytimes.com/2021/12/03/briefing/covid-treatments-pfizer-merck.html Besides all the treatments already available more importance could also be placed on health and fitness to improve natural immunity and reduce the risk of comorbidities. Why is there not more discussion about that instead of making the health of society the responsibility of the youth? What if you're wrong pushing a vaccine mandate? What if some fundamental beliefs about Covid-19 vaccines turn out to be false? What if they are not as safe and effective as you claimed? Would UCT accept liability for severe adverse reactions? We know several people who believe their loved ones died or had severe injury as a result of vaccination. According to the WHO's VigiAccess database, there were 2,878,762 adverse drug reactions to Covid-19 vaccines in 2021. Compared to 8,646 polio adverse drug reactions. http://www.vigiaccess.org/ Do you have a seed of doubt? If so then please read this article written by an engineer living in South Africa (given to me recently on a walk with Ben's mom). Much of what was said here really resonated with me. "Coming Clean" by Cory Zue https://www.coryzue.com/writing/coming-clean/ One of my core values is freedom of choice and not to persuade others when I don't have all the answers. But I appeal to you to please consider if it's possible that in the future you'll look back with regret if you proceed with the vaccine mandates.	Joseph	student

					Objections to the Mandatory Vaccination policy at UCT To the Vaccine Mandate Panel I write in my personal capacity, as a UCT alumni, BComm 1993, and a parent AMS fee payer of two students. I object to the proposed mandate in it's entirety. The following facts are why I am opposing the proposed mandate: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> The virus is endemic, it will circulate and as people (who already have a good level of protection after recovery from C19 or a vaccine) are exposed they will get a 'top up' that is more robust, durable and broader than a vaccine. This is not opinion – it is confirmed and accepted virology. Consensus is building, both locally and internationally, that we are exiting the pandemic phase of this epidemic and entering the endemic phase. This would mean that Covid 19 is treated as other infectious diseases are treated. 	John	business owner

Forcing treatment on people is something outside of medical ethics, infringes constitutional rights of people and to be quite accurate it is illogical and unscientific since COVID has almost 95% recovery rate, and medical office should be ecstatic that there is a disease treatable like COVID with other methods besides vaccines. According to VAERS (Vaccine Adverse Event Report System) which is certified by the CDC (Centre for Disease control and prevention), reports were filed of 18 000 deaths after the vaccine was taken, and 30 000 individuals with permanent disabilities after the vaccine was taken. This is alarming! If thousands of highly qualified scientists and specialists worldwide are warning against the safety and effectiveness of vaccines, WITH PROOF, how can I be ignorant? Israel is 98% vaccinated and shows highest amount of Covid cases at the moment. The vaccines administered for Omicron, is not effective. Not only Universities but worldwide!! And the current "vaccine" is proven to be ineffective in that it doesn't stop transmission nor does it protect the vaccinated, this is a definition of "failed vaccine", besides the fact that this is still and EXPERIMENTAL treatment and anyone taking it must give consent that they are partaking in a trial. 	2022-01-29 08:44:59	Western Cape	No I do not	Mandatory vaccinations in Universities	Mandatory vaccinations are the coercion. It takes away peoples right to freely choice for themselves. It puts unfair pressure on young people to conform and consent. It can lead to the unjust discrimination of some in the form of excluding them from a higher education. Access to education should be free for all. Furthermore the adverse effects of the vaccine are now very clear. Myocarditis under young males are a severe side effect. Furthermore the effectiveness of the vaccines against the new strains are very weak, so why then mandate something that do not work. It only adds to the problem.	Adriana	employed individual

					I am placing my contribution with a heavy heart. To me, it makes no sense to vaccinate young people. Generally they live healthy and fit lifestyles and statistics are in their favour compared to other age groups (specifically over 70) when it comes to the Corona Virus. Students contract the virus, spread it just as those that is vaccinated, but typically they dont get very sick, they dont typically die and they dont take up beds in hospital. Yet, we want to vaccinate without knowing the long term effects on humans. Millions of them. Same go for lecturers. They are mostly under the age of 65, and with variants becoming less aggressive now, we can argue they are also out of danger. It is ridiculous to offer non-specific antibodies for robust specific antibodies and I am sure society will regret this in the future. The vaccine is based on pure science and was developed for a specific Corona strain. This means that the vaccine in all likelihood will be ineffective against coming variants. I appreciate the fact that there are significant literature and expert opinions on the benefits and necessity to be vaccinated. There are, however, numerous medical and other commentaries and literature pointing to the significant risks that could be attached to the new vaccines which were created in record time and have not undergone the normal much longer trial periods. Accordingly, there are significant uncertainties about long term negative effects of the vaccines. There are at the same time, many specialists advising that especially low risk individuals, such as healthy young people, should think twice before getting vaccinated. I have seen literature pointing to possible negative side effects for pregnancy or unborn babies. The Constitution, which provides all with human rights protection, such as the right to life, dignity, of equality - means no one may be unfairly discriminated against on the basis of religion, conscience and belief, the right to bodily and psychological integrity (security and control of the body, not to be subjected to medical or scientific experiments, etc.), freedom of religion, belief and opinion, and fair labour practices. Some of these rights are also protected under the Health Act and the Promotion of Equality and Prevention of Unfair Discrimination Act 4 of 2000, the Labour Relations Act and the Employment Equity Act (particularly Section 6). In terms of the Disaster Management Act, there must be a risk assessment and a vaccination policy may not be enforced generally. Finally, I wish to reiterate that I do not submit this commentary lightly. I however, plead with the University to also appreciate the above position and the fact that it is not fair to enforce a vaccine policy on everyone. I again thank the University sincerely for the opportunity to comment and trust that you will consider it favorably.

Ons gaan gedwing word om deel te neem aan 'n navorsingsproek, waarvan niemand weet wat die langtermyn gevolge van kan wees nie. Dit is al bevestig dat die 'vaksien' nie effektief is teen Omikron-variant nie. Dit is ook bekend dat persone wat reeds die 'vaksien' gekry het, steeds Covid kan kry en ander persone kan aansteek. Uit 'n persoonlike oogpunt, almal van wie ek nou hoor wat siek word is reeds 'ten volle ge-vaksineer' en het al booster inspuitings gekry. Dit is net vir my nog 'n bewys dat dit totaal sinneloos is om die risiko te neem om 'n inspuiting te kry waarvan niemand weet wat die effek oor 'n paar jaar gaan wees nie. Niemand in my gesin het al Covid gehad nie, maar die res van my familie wel...en almal ná hulle die sogenaamde 'vaksien' gekry het. Hisride is niks anders as 'n geldmaak besigheid nie. 2022-01-26 16:42:32	Western Cape	No I do not	Mandatory vaccinations in Universities	By making vaccinations mandatory for students to attend an University it takes away the students' right for education. It is also scientifically proven that the vaccine does not reduce the probability that a person gets infected with the COVID-19 Omicron variant or reduce the probability of infecting another person with COVID-19 if you are infected yourself. The scientific facts in itself are enough to make it clear that vaccine mandates on campuses and in workspaces are senseless and needs to be dropped immediately.	Janke	employed individual

	2022-01-24 09:52:55	Western Cape	No I do not	Mandatory vaccinations in Universities	Implementation of a mandatory vaccine policy should not be done lightly and without serious consideration and reasonable ground - lest we wish to set a dangerous precedent whereby governing bodies are able to infringe on personal liberty at their own liberty, without regard of the impact that this will have on the individual. You would not outsource your most intimate decisions to a disinterested (operating on a general level) third party. And nor do I wish to do so. People should be allowed to make decisions for themselves, even "wrong" decisions. If there was a strong case for the vaccines preventing transmissibility of the virus, I imagine that this would be a different conversation. I would be more inclined to consider the merits of a mandatory vaccination policy. But - as it stands - there is no compelling evidence that the vaccines prevent transmissibility. What then is the point of implementing a mandatory vaccination policy? Suggesting that it is in the best interests of the individual who becomes vaccinated lacks the gravitas to justify this infringement on personal liberty. Let the individual dictate matter so personal. Considering that it was the university that proposed a mandatory vaccination policy, it rests with the university to make a compelling case - the burden of proof is not on the individual on whom you wish to impose this restriction. The implementation of a mandatory vaccination policy without strong and reasonable grounds for so dire and consequential an infringement on personal liberty is unwise and paves the way for further infringement upon personal liberty. An important question that proponents of mandatory vaccine policies should consider is; "where does the line get drawn"? And this question is valid and worth considering because if we are not at every juncture going to consider deeply whether in fact infringements on personal liberty are justified, then we are paving the way for arbitrary infringements. Let us know be naive and forget that our present democratic and stable society has not always been. History has had it's share of slavery and serfdom. People have a fallen nature and the atrocities that the world has witnessed stand testament to this. Governments and powerful institutions (such as universities) wield an unbelievable amount of power. It is the responsibility of ordinary citizens to demand accountability and the limitation of that power, otherwise we will have played a part in our own enslavement.	Frans	employed individual

	2022-01-23 21:04:28	KwaZulu- Natal	No I do not	Mandatory vaccinations in Universities	(1) people have always had the legal right to choose what treatments are allowed or disallowed on their body, based on the research and understanding of such treatments, there is insufficient long term results of the vaccines put forth. (2) The vaccine type currently being used Nucleic Acid (mRNA), this vaccine has insufficient data to support the longevity of the antibodies created by the immune system in response to the stimulated antigen, furthermore the immune system response is weaker to the mRNA coded covid spike protein antigen as it is a partial strand and not fully representative of the actual covid virus, as a result mRNA vaccines requires continuous booster shots to ensure and maintain its partial effectiveness. As compared to vaccine types that are whole virus (inactive), this causes the immune system response to be much more stronger and closer to a natural immune response. (3) Ultimately as with any and all viruses, the antibodies needs to be created by the immune system, rather get a virus and give the immune system the chance to do its job as it proves to have more long term benefits to the body making the immune system more robust to handle other viruses or variants thereof. (4) for people who have already recovered from covid without any vaccine, you would not want to lose any benefits the immune system as acquired by artificially trying to invoke an immune system response using a mRNA vaccine when the body has already built up a resistance to the virus. (5) Don't take high level scientific jargon and stats into consideration without reading and understanding the actual study reports, right now, there is insufficient time to collect the necessary data, and people in senior position, including scientists are under immense pressure to provide regular stats and data on vaccines and covid. Case and point on the CDC website, they make the statement studies show that people who recovered from covid and didn't get the vaccine were twice as likely to get covid than vaccinated people. But when you read the study, there was only 1 study done, and the stats from that study has holes in the way the study was done. There's no way possible to control the movement of people (unvaccinated and vaccinated) for a 8 to 10 month duration and know whether they actually where in contact with covid virus or not. Doing a test before and after a duration only works when the control group and test group is exposed to exactly the same environment during the full test duration, which was not the case here, yet the stats from this test is being used to say that unvaccinated people are 2.3 times more likely to get covid again than vaccinated people. So just consider the details. (6) lastly, the following comments are not meant to be insensitive to anyone who has lost someone to covid. The world needs the vaccine to work, even if it's ineffective or partially effective or has major long term side effects that will only be seen in the future, they need that hope so they can go back to living normally without fear, but part of normality is to realize and accept that death can happen anytime devoid of covid, in our country of high violent crime, death happens all the time. There are other sicknesses and diseases in SA that have far more higher mortality rates than covid, the fear of not knowing whether your immune system will overcome or succumb to covid is the biggest driving factor behind covid. Life is for the living, we either get busy living or get busy dying, it's our choice, some people are like ostriches, when the storm comes they stick their heads in the ground, with the body still exposed to the storm, others are like eagles, they fly into the storm and take on the challenges, fly or fall, their perception is different and that allows them to survive and conquer. Mandatory vaccinations with vaccines that have not gone through their full clinical trial period before use on humans, that have been accepted because of politicians need to do something about the covid situation and therefore circumvented the full process due to time urgency, is actually a coward way of buckling under the pressure.	Jerry	employed individual

					A mandatory vaccine policy at UCT or any other university is completely unacceptable any circumstances, much less so for our current one. The policy in question would serve to deny our youth education, because they do not want to get an ineffective injection that does not serve them or their interests. Let us be clear, the young people that have died of covid alone in this country and others is a very small statistic. Healthy, young people do not need a covid vaccine. It should be not even be mandatory it for those most at risk, merely advised. There is a shocking lack of transparency regarding trial data and it is irresponsible of the university to mandate any vaccine for its students. We do not know what the long term effects are. Never mind the horrible adverse reactions which people have had to them. Even if we disregard what I have written above, it has to be acknowledged that the vaccines are no longer effective, if they ever were. Why should students take something that will not protect them, not stop them from transmitting the disease and not even bring back some sort of normalcy? The universities who are implementing it claim that is for the good of the institutions, for the students and staff, but if that were the case; where is the exemption for natural immunity? Better yet, where are the mandates for general fitness and health? The universities in question are implementing this for reasons which they cannot even defend, it is just because they said so. All this and then comes the question of funding and ties to certain corporations and corrupt governmental agencies. I will not even elaborate, I encourage those interested to look into it, and I wonder why some people are so shameless. Then comes my advice to those who do not support this, do not comply. Try your luck with an exemption and if that fails, legal action. Go to SAUS or other student unions and make your case. Protest and help protect those even younger than us. If needs be, go to a university that has not implemented a policy of the sort. This is a rabbit hole, what other draconian requirements can be enforced if this is? The more people that comply, the more likely it is to work. I speak to vaccinated students and staff too when I say that. This is going to be another disaster in South African tertiary education, again caused by idiotic and impractical policies by those who presuppose they doing it for the "greater good". Our universities have shifted from institutions of learning, to institutions of propaganda and compliance. The university may dismiss the above, but the youth will never forget what it wishes it impose.

But it is also fact that long term effects of the MRNA vaccine are not yet known. It is also fact that young people are at higher risk of Mycarditis and other adverse effects from vaccine. If you weigh up the risk verses benefits, it doesn't make sense to vaccinate the young adults. And if the vaccination is to protect the elderly lecturers, then let the lectures get the vaccine to protect themselves. Don't force the young adults to potentially play roulette with this experimental vaccination in order to protect the elderly... 	2022-01-22 18:22:49	Western Cape	No I do not	Mandatory vaccinations in Universities	The covid vaccines do not prevent infection and they do not prevent transmission; they only offer the personal benefit of reducing hospitalisation and death; it is therefore no one else's business whether one chooses to vaccinate or not. Young people are not at high risk of hospitalisations or death from covid, but they are at risk of side effects eg myocarditis in young men. It is not right to force a medical intervention that carries some risk on someone who is at very low risk of dying from an illness. Long term studies have not been done. A large portion of the population have already had covid and already have natural antibodies, why is there no mention of this? The university will face litigation and be expected to compensate students who experience adverse events after a mandatory vaccination. 				Why vaccines should not be mandatory 1) This is not a vaccine, it is an mRNA protein created in the lab, it does not abide by the requirements for a vaccine and that is: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) it has to be a dead pathogen b) it has to be an attenuated pathogen c) it has to be a live protein d) the benefits of the vaccine must outweigh the risks. The toxic effects of the pathogen must justify the use of a vaccine, like in polio and measles 2) The mRNA protein is a toxic protein with severe lethal side effects. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) 400000 deaths and 3 million severe adverse events have been linked to this trial vaccine in the US alone in under one year, b) it is not an approved drug but has been given EUA approval because on the basis that there is a crisis and that there is no treatment. These two reasons are totally incorrect because: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> i) there is no crisis with the Omnicron . Omnicron is highly transmissible but is extremely mild; it has the least amount or complications like death and hospitalisation. ii) Omnicron is resistant to the vaccine, which was created for the wild strain iii) Omnicron can provide 13 times better natural immunity than the vaccines and for longer iv) there is a number of successful treatments against Corona using repurposed drugs like ivermectin, hydroxy chloroquine, SSRIS and several other drugs to treat complications. Early treatment of covid can reduce death and hospitalisation down to zero 3) The vaccine reduces one's natural immunity and places vaccinated individuals at risk of getting reinfected with shingles and TB 4) A study from Robert Koch institute has revealed that the natural immunity of the fully vaxxed has been reduced by 87% which means that they will end up with AIDs for which there is no cure. 5) 83% of double vaxxed females in the first trimester of pregnancy have lost their foetuses. 6) A British study has shown men over forty are at high risk of myocarditis after taking the vaccine, this risk is doubled with a booster and every successive booster. 7) The vaccine does not prevent transmissibility especially if it is ineffective against a new strain 8) The unvaxxed, with an intact natural immune system can defend themselves against new strains, whereas the vaxxed with a depleted immune system, will succumb to it as predicted by Prof Geert Vanden Bosch. 9) the majority of the unvaxxed have natural immunity due to previous infections. Once an individual is infected, they should not be vaccinated as is the case with measles and small pox because that is the science. 10) the trials done by Pfizer is not in accordance with proper scientific requirements <ul style="list-style-type: none"> i) it is not properly double blinded ii) there is no proper recording of data iii) there is no transparency iv) the contents of the vaccine is not known nor is there a consistency in the quantity v) there is a conflict of interest when a manufacturer conducts its own trial because it can conveniently obliterate information that is negative about the vaccine v) any drug trial has to be stopped after 50 deaths. This vaccine has been linked to 400 thousand deaths. It has to be stopped as was done with the H1N1 vaccine 11) Far too many young sportsmen are dying on the field after they took the vaccine due to sudden cardiac deaths. After the vaccine, in the past year, there has been 107 deaths amongst young soccer players. in the previous year, before the vaccine there were about 5 deaths. 12) A leading US insurance company has revealed a 40% increase in deaths of clients from thirty years upwards. This drastic increase has never been seen before. None of the deaths were due to Covid but through vaccine complications. 13) Children have a 100 % recovery. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> i) they recover within a day ii) they rarely ever get myocarditis iii) A study on 1.9 children in Sweden, where schools were allowed to continue with no restrictions revealed that the death rate during the pandemic was less than during the flu seasons. The deaths were not due to Covid but due to other co-morbidities. v) children who end with myocarditis from vaccine injury have little or no chance of recovery. They either die or become cripples for life 14) the spike protein can land in any cell of the body, according to the study by Prof S Bagkdi , virologist. The spike protein can turn the cell into a factory to manufacture millions of spikes to be released in the body. Once the spike protein reaches the rest of the body, the body's immune system will attack it and cause a severe inflammatory reaction. The body will end up being destroyed through a process of autoimmunity. 15) So far 289 million covid cases have been recorded. This is only 4% of the world's population of 8 billion, which is insufficient to declare a pandemic. 16) The 5 million that died represents 0.007% deaths in 20 months which is small compared to the 18 million that died through starvation, worldwide. 17) America, with just about 3% of the world's population, accounted for 14% of the deaths, with 800,000 deaths. Up to 85% of these deaths could have been avoided if early proven treatment was instituted.. 18) Japan, with one third of the USs population (120 Million) had only 18000 deaths or 0.5% of America's 800000 Covid deaths. Both countries were heavily vaxxed but Japan authorised the use of Ivermectin, which resulted in the incidence, complications, hospitalisations and death rate to plummet to almost zero during the Delta strain. 19) Africa has the lowest incidence and death rate from Covid with a low vaccination rate of less than 6% There are three reasons for this <ul style="list-style-type: none"> i) African countries did not apply strict lockdowns during the first wave, when the virus was mild so they acquired good natural immunity ii) because they lived in crowded conditions, they could spread the virus to bring about the desired herd immunity to overcome the spread of the infection. iii) they had free access to ivermectin, which was very effective against covid 20) The pandemic and it's restrictions have caused irreversible harm to the citizens of the world through unemployment, starvation and homelessness. 21) Breadwinners who ended up with strokes or died due to vaccine injuries left their families homeless and destitute on the street because vaccine manufacturers were granted total immunity against the adverse events.

Any attempt to discriminate against us as students and learners at Colleges and Universities is equal to medical apartheid and abuse of power. Definition: These jabs / injections are not vaccines by definition, as they do not prevent infection, nor transmission. Moreover, we reject that masks are still expected to be worn post-injections. Efficacy: The injections effectiveness is waning so badly, and so quickly, that these are actually failed experiments as proven by science across the world. We decline managements attempts to coerce students for any tests or trial injections, including expensive booster shots. There is no long-term safety data, as this EUA jab trial only ends in 2023. Safety: Injected persons are suffering many allergic and other reactions, not limited to myocarditis (swelling heart), blood clots (leads to heart attack/stroke). Reproductive organs may be affected. Reporting systems: These horrendous negative effects have been proven to be experienced worldwide in Vaccine Adverse Reporting Systems, such as the US VAERS, EudraVigilance, the UK Yellow Card system, and locally in SAVAERS: https://savaers.co.za/ Care: Most people cannot afford private health care. Public hospitals are also not properly equipped. Our health facilities do not know how to treat these injected persons injuries. Risk: The risks of students taking these injections far outweighs all and any alleged benefits. From numerous studies and data worldwide, Covid-19 has no severe symptoms in children and students. These studies also confirmed children / students are not resilient carriers or spreaders of the so called corona virus, which means there is little to and no risk of them affecting anyone. Treatments: Effective, safe and cheap treatments include Ivermectin, Hydroxychloroquine, zinc, colloidal silver, vitamins, neem, turmeric, aspirin, NAC, etc. Kindly refer to: www.worldcouncilforhealth.org/ www.FLCCC.net for protocols. Recovery and immunity: Students recovery rate is actually excellent. It is also proven in studies worldwide, that natural immunity far surpasses injection immunity. Injection manufacturer indemnity: These injections may be responsible for death, disability, and any other long term side effects. The manufacturers are indemnified by this government from taking any responsibility should this happen. Consequences: Should any student be convinced OR injected without written permission or written consent, all rights in full to protest and take legal steps and action, which includes: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Criminally charging as well as civil law suing the person administering the experimental injection on any student, anyone who promoted/facilitated this act and/or the college, its educators and management, the department of education, and various ministers. Embarking on a public awareness campaign regarding the violation of the student's rights to health, dignity and safety, and the rights of the parent / guardian. Reporting your college or university or facility to the Red List website [www.redlist.co.za] which lists organisations coercing, harassing, forcing, or assisting in experimental injection experiments. We reserve our rights to mount a full damage claim against you should we suffer any losses, in time, in fees, in travel costs, in legal costs or any other losses due to your non-compliance and activities relating to attempts to enforce any mandate upon us. And again if we follow the data in most vaccinated countries e.g Israel we see that they had the highest rate of hospitalizations which can also happen to students when forced to vaccinate and the whole academic year maybe disrupted. They have to think this through carefully so.	Bongane	student

It is also deeply concerning that the right to choice about what a person does to their own body is being removed. A third deep concern is that the young mostly don't get sick and if they do they recover fully. The recovery rate for older people is 99.7 % so what is the NEED for this mandate? None as far as I can see other than one of control. The longer the vaccination continues the more it is deemed to be ineffective- so what on earth is the point of putting an injection into a body a - that we do not know the contents of b - is ineffective c we do not know the long term impact of as it is too new. 					I do not believe in any vaccination that has not been fully tested. Their is multiple evidence that the vaccine does not stop the spread of the virus. In actual fact vaccinated are also a danger to unvaccinated. Unvaccinated look better after themselves . While vaccinated think they are now cured of the disease and spread it to unvaccinated. Lots of people have ailments and are being forced. This could cause long term damage. Their is evidence that the vaccine may cause heart inflammation and other ailments. Up until that point that this has not been fully tested you cannot force a person. My God given natural fight for disease is enough. If i should pass away then that is Gods decision not the state not mine nor anybody else. People that had the vaccine is also still passing away. That is then Gods decision. Because vaccine is then not fully protecting people.

	2022-01-12 11:53:05	Western Cape	No I do not	Mandatory vaccinations in Universities	Since there is a lot of conflicting research and facts regarding the recent covid vaccine I believe it should be a choice on whether to take the vaccine or not. Since there are many health risks associated with the covid vaccine I believe there should be choice. The vaccine is not entirely safe nor effective as you can still get covid if you are vaccinated. Where there is risk there should be choice. We are also experiencing a new variant now, omicron which is highly contagious but very mild. I have had multiple family members who have had the omicron variant and recovered just fine with the right treatment . I have also had family members who got the previous variant, delta, and went to see a covid specialist and also recovered just fine even though they had underlying health issues. If there is treatment out there for covid why must I take a vaccine that has potential health issues, such as cardiovascular issues (which are the recent testimonies coming out from people who have taken the phizzer vaccine) . I am a healthy young individual who can recover from covid, which would be natural and out of my hands if I catch it. 2022-01-09 16:38:29	Eastern Cape	No I do not	Mandatory vaccinations in Universities		Today is 9 January 2022 and it has been widely acknowledged worldwide that Omicron is no worse than mild flu, and it already evades the current vaccines - the Covid vaccines neither protect people from catching the SARS_Coronavirus_2, nor do they prevent transmission to others, which means that they are pointless. 2022-01-08 16:38:45	Western Cape	No I do not	Mandatory vaccinations in Universities		It is ridiculous to force the healthiest sector of a population who has very little to no chance of severe disease to be vaccinated with a vaccine that neither stops infection or transmission. What exactly would be the point in making university students get it? They will all remain equally vulnerable to catching and spreading covid, in particular Omicron. The data now is starting to show how risks of myocarditis are starting to outweigh benefits for this age group of males. What exactly is UCT going to do in the event of an adverse reaction? Hoping EDUCATION to ransom for an essentially ineffective vaccination is a complete violation of a human right - access to education. This is a state university, not a private entity and is supposed to be the place of ENLIGHTENMENT. Why does your Medical School not start advocating for improvements to health systems, institutions, structures in order to cope with surges of infection (if there should even be any more). The virus has mutated itself to a mild infection, and heralds the end of the pandemic. All pandemics end, as this one is. Stop this absolutely rubbish. 	2022-01-06 10:59:45	Gauteng	No I do not	Mandatory vaccinations in Universities	It is extremely disappointing that a University with the excellent stature and reputation that UCT has within South Africa has decided to consider this ill advised approach. Not only does forced vaccination fly in the face of the South African Constitution but more widely and internationally, also the Nuremberg Code. Notwithstanding the law, the step would be morally wrong particularly in light of the fact that the citizens of South Africa have spoken as evidenced by the low percentage of voluntary jabs taken. If vaccinated persons can not only get Covid but also infect others I fail to understand what UCT (and others) believe might be achieved by forcing people against their will? Are they aware of the potential consequences? Government has not changed a single law to support the enforcement of this approach - the risk to UCT as an employer alone will be entirely your own problem with no legislative backup from Government whatsoever - no labour law has been changed. Do not underestimate the South African people - you do so at your own peril. Please reconsider this extremely ill advised and foolhardy idea. Students are at low risk of serious outcomes and male students' risk of side effects, such as myocarditis/pericarditis is higher with the current vaccines, than with Covid. Long term side effects: autoimmunity, cancers, reproductive problems will only be determined in 5-10 years time. UCT will be legally liable for any injuries suffered, as neither the pharmaceutical company, nor the government is liable. 2. Since the Omicron variant's arrival, vaccines are not performing well against infection & transmission. In some parts of the world there is negative VE: https://www.medrxiv.org/content/10.1101/2021.12.30.21268565v1 and the Danish study "SARS-CoV-2 Omicron VOC Transmission in Danish Households" published December 27th finds "Comparing households infected with the Omicron to Delta VOC, we found an 1.17 (95%-CI: 0.99-1.38) times higher SAR for unvaccinated, 2.61 times (95%-CI: 2.34-2.90) higher for fully vaccinated and 3.66 (95%-CI: 2.65-5.05) times higher for booster-vaccinated individuals, demonstrating strong evidence of immune evasiveness of the Omicron VOC" There is therefore no logical/public health reason to mandate these vaccines as immune escape has already happened. Further evidence is the recent outbreaks on fully vaccinated cruise ships, amongst fully vaccinated NFL teams and even 66% of the fully vaccinated, 2 x PCR'd Belgian team stationed in the Antarctic in late December. 3. Individuals who have recovered from COVID have long lasting, robust immunity. 3. It is unconstitutional in SA and violates the Nuremberg code. FIRST DO NO HARM. UCT does not have the legal right to supercede the South African constitution Section 7.1 Is a weak attempt by UCT to give UCT JURISDICTION TO SUPERCEDE THE CONSTITUTION. Students and staff are NOT bound to UCT rules to the detriment of their rights as protected by the constitution. B. The South African constitution guarantees an individuals right to bodily and psychological integrity Section 12.2 of the South African constitution states the following: Everyone has the right to bodily and psychological integrity, which includes the right - a) to make decisions regarding reproduction b) to security in and control over their body c) not to be subjected to medical or scientific experiments without their informed consent Mandating a drug (a vaccine is a drug, given to healthy people. Vaccines thus have even higher requirements in terms of safety and efficacy) raises issues in relation to the right to bodily integrity; it raises issues in relation to section 9(3) as well; and the Employment Equity Act, in relation to potential discrimination on the grounds of thought, belief and opinion. It raises the issue of possible limitation of section 15 — the freedom of thought, religion, conscience and opinion. Section 36 states that rights may be limited by laws of general application, but only insofar as this is "reasonable and justifiable in an open and democratic society based on dignity, freedom and equality". Is the mandating of the C19 'vaccines' "reasonable and justifiable"? Experts have noted that there are six requirements that are needed to justify a policy of mandatory vaccination: 1. The 'vaccines' must be properly trialled, tested and approved (this includes full animal studies; pharmacological reports; full registration with the SAHPRA (not Section 21)) 2. The 'vaccines' must be effective at preventing infection and transmission 3. The vaccines must be DURABLE ie: work for a substantial amount of time (at least 1 year) 4. The 'vaccines' must be safe and present negligible risk of harm to the person receiving the drug 5. No other reasonable alternatives exist to prevent or treat the disease 6. The risk or disease being immunised against must be sufficiently serious for the person being given the drug The C19 'vaccines' fail to meet all of the 6 requirements above and before any mandate could even be considered, the onus would be on UCT to prove that it does in fact meet the above criterion to be considered "reasonable and justifiable". It is hard to believe that UCT is in support of Medical apartheid; discrimination on the basis of a 'status' that has no scientific or rational basis. C. Overreach of UCT into the personal, medical health of staff and students Even if the 6 requirements above could be met (they cannot as the data is clear), clause 3.2. 'SARS-CoV-2 vaccination' confirms that the main reason UCT wishes to force individuals to forgo their constitutional rights in order to work or study at UCT is because the 'vaccines' offer "overall protective effect of vaccination against severe illness, hospitalization and death." It seems that UCT feel they know better what an individual needs, and not only do they know better, they will force the individual to 'choose' to obey or face losing their job/ study opportunity? They will DISCRIMINATE based on a 'status'. No 'public good' argument but rather a paternalistic, colonialist mindset that 'we know better'. Not only is this illegal, it is also offensive. If UCT felt it was their job to tell staff and students what to do in order to be healthy then the logical conclusion would be that the policy would have to extend to forcing all students and staff who have comorbidities that could be mitigated via lifestyle behaviour change (eat better; exercise; don't smoke etc) to undergo a diet and exercise enforced programme in order to attend UCT. Over and above the previous points UCT is aware of the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Our country's medical specialists have confirmed that the new variant, Omicron, is less virulent than previous variants.• At the same time, they have confirmed that is extremely transmissible, that people of all immune statuses transmit the virus and that asymptomatic transmission is common.• Our already high population immunity levels are now even higher than before.• Even the most virulent Covid variants were considered low risk for young people, whilst the risks of vaccination, are relatively higher for young people.• Consensus is building, both locally and internationally, that we are exiting the pandemic phase of this epidemic and entering the endemic phase. This would mean that Covid 19 is treated as other infectious diseases are treated – with vaccinations made available to those who choose them.• Consequently, more and more countries are reducing restrictions and doing away with health passports and vaccine passports. President Ramaphosa was recently quoted as saying that there was a valid argument for dropping the State of Emergency.• The Covid 19 'vaccines' do not prevent infection or transmission. The vaccine status of students and staff is not a factor when it comes to planning for face to face teaching and learning. Good ventilation; people staying home if they have a tummy bug, or a cold, or any other easily transmissible infectious disease, and intelligent planning on the part of UCT leadership is what will ensure face to face engagement.• Covid 19 'vaccines' are still experimental drugs.• The CDC has recently stated that natural immunity is more effective than the 'vaccine' There is no rational or scientific reason that UCT would pursue the proposed 'vaccine' mandate. 					I wish to first and foremost state that it pains me to have to recognise the position that I find myself in, which is to engage on a topic or subject that, had it not been for the breach of my God-given rights, I would dismiss in the blink of an eye. However, those who believe themselves to be authorities in and over other people's lives, are imposing their will and displaying overreach into areas in which they have no business or permission or authority. The reality is that someone who believes that they know better than the next (by virtue of the information they hold), can only inform, advise and guide. That is where their impact ends. No human being replaces God with subjective science and hidden agendas – it must obviously be said that humans are equal and there is only one God. In addition, there is a mountain and mounting evidence that the medical fraternity is scrambling to remain relevant and it behoves UCT's "experts" to focus on objective evidence. The most heinous of crimes have and are being committed under the banner of "for the good of all", with people being reduced to fodder, having been stripped of their God-given and human rights. I therefore do not support UCT's position on introducing mandatory vaccination, just as I am opposed to any other form of discrimination, segregation or coercion. This is not Nazi Germany and the Nuremberg Code of 1947, amongst others, protects individuals from human experiments such as this one – I do not give my consent to this experiment. On the subject of vaccinations, let me be clear that I am not opposed to people choosing to be vaccinated, bearing in mind that what has been referred to in the context of Covid-19 falls under the umbrella of human experiment and not vaccine in my view. Having said that, I believe it very important that people have the choice to choose whether or not to subject their bodies to whatever poisons or toxins they so desire. I am therefore vehemently opposed to the label of anti-vaxxer. And since I have not disclosed my vaccination status to anyone other than close family, this claim cannot be made. Anti-anything suggests an opposite, but equal position as that which UCT is taking i.e., to enforce an entity or individual's will upon another by eliminating or reducing the ability to choose. If I prevent someone from expressing their choice, then I am no better than those who believe in coercion through mandatory vaccination and any other draconian measure. The issue for me is thus freedom of choice. Section 12(2)(c) of the Constitution states that "everyone has the right to bodily and psychological integrity, which includes the right: to security in and control over their body". According to the Merriam-Webster dictionary, autonomy is defined as "the quality or state of being self-governing", "the state of existing or acting separately from other" and "self-directing freedom and especially moral independence". Section 12(2)(c) of the South African Constitution states that "everyone has the right to bodily and psychological integrity, which includes the right: not to be subjected to medical or scientific experiments without their informed consent." According to the United Nations Population Fund, bodily autonomy "is about being empowered to make informed choices" and that not only is it a human right, but it is the "foundation upon which other human rights are built". Importantly, they state that "respect for autonomy is a core tenet of international medical ethics" and even UCT's general rules and policies of 2021 espouses one of its values as "respect for the individual privacy, dignity and the right to personal choice". Article 3 – Human dignity and human rights of UNESCO's Universal Declaration on Bioethics and Human Rights states that: "1. Human dignity, human rights and fundamental freedoms are to be fully respected. 2. The interests and welfare of the individual should have priority over the sole interest of science or society." In light of the above, the proposal of mandatory vaccinations clearly violates human rights as it breaches bodily autonomy and integrity and negates personal choice by reducing individuals to slaves, who by definition, possess no bodily integrity and autonomy. In terms of the "process of consultation" in UCT's executive engaging its staff, students and prospective students about the proposed vaccination mandate, as a UCT staff member who attended both "staff engagement" sessions and engaged with the incoming SRC president in 2021 as a student regarding the proposal, I wish to convey that from my perspective, there was an absolute lack of engagement on the part of the UCT panels and what I felt amounted to muzzling the session so that it was an information session rather than a discussion - no debate took place at all and there was only one side of the argument presented. While the following issues are also of grave concern to me and I will briefly mention the gist of them, they relate more to the efficacy of the vaccine and the valid data that has been ignored, but are secondary for me to the breach of freedom of choice, God-given rights and human rights through the proposal of implementing mandatory vaccinations. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Point 1.3(i) of the draft policy states that students who have not been exempted and do not provide proof of vaccination "will not have the right to enter UCT buildings and campus". This is blatant discrimination, namely, exclusion based on medical status and in breach of the Promotion of Equality and Prevention of Unfair Discrimination Act 4 of 2000. There is no data to substantiate that the vaccinated prevent infection or transmission any more than the unvaccinated. To suggest then that it protects the individual from more severe symptoms and death, should they fail to vaccinate, breaches freedom of choice – whether I live or die is none of anyone else's business. That is between me and my Maker. Each person has a responsibility for their own safety and security. Focus on your personal health by taking care of the immune system that God has bestowed upon you. It is your responsibility and if it is not up to par, don't place that blame or responsibility on the next person. I am no-one's keeper and everyone is free to do with their body as they choose, including how to take care of it – so, each individual has a duty of care to themselves; that is not my responsibility. With regards to the contents of the injection, these have not been forthcoming and should be in reference to the Health Care Act 61 of 2003. Several countries have and are in the process of backpedalling regarding mandatory vaccinations, as it breaches God-given and human rights. The claim that there are no long-term effects caused by the vaccines are preposterous, as they have only been in the public sphere for less than a year and therefore long-term data is not available! UCT has been and currently is funded by institutions such as the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation to the tune of millions of dollars. Bill Gates has publicly made statements about reducing world population, imposing vaccination programmes and discussed Covid-19 even prior to its advent. I cannot conclusively confirm that there is any correlation for UCT between its donor funding and allegiance to its funders' agendas, but it certainly does raise the question. mRna platform technology Chief Architect, Dr Robert Malone, and 16,000 scientists "believe that all patients should be able to make medical decisions without coercion over what medicine they accept or reject" and were vocal in this regard when speaking in Washington on the 23rd of January, one of the locations of the WorldWide Demonstration against mandatory vaccinations. As shown in a graph taken from the PANDA website on the 30th of January 2022, which I am unable to paste in this response, the survival rate of those who have contracted Covid-19 across the globe indicates that this was never a pandemic, but rather a man-made opportunity to enable power-grabbing and justification for heinous acts under the umbrella of "the greater good of all". Kary B Mullis invented the PCR test that's being used as the Covid-19 test and stated that it wasn't designed to detect infectious diseases. The CDC retracted its use in December 2021 as it failed its review. It does not detect the virus. It detects a piece of genetic material and is no proof that the virus is present. A PCR test cannot be used as confirmation of a positive Covid-19 diagnosis and therefore cannot be used as proposed in the policy. The CDC has also warned that the antigen test should be used with caution. Cruise liners with confirmed Covid-19 cases on board had, according to Wikipedia on the 31st of January, passengers amounting to 47,727. Of that, 3,236 Covid-19 positive cases were reported and of that, there were 83 deaths. That's 1,74% that reportedly died as a result of contracting the virus. People in close proximity and no social distancing with stats like these? Is this a pandemic? The CDC and several other studies have noted the superiority of natural immunity versus taking the vaccine. "Natural immunity was six times stronger during the delta wave than vaccination", according to a new report from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control. The UK has ended the NHS mandates. These are frontline healthcare staff. Japan has dropped the vaccination rollout. After reducing vaccinations and increasing Ivermectin to treat the virus, Covid-19 has ended almost overnight. This happened in less than one month. Another graph shows Israel, having one of the highest vaccination rates in 2021, with excessively high rates of infections. And the Israeli Vaccine Chief recently apologised to the people of Israel for the mistakes they had made in dealing with the Covid-19 virus. In conclusion, the bottom line is the threat that is being posed to my sovereignty by intimidation and threats to my livelihood, should I not comply. It has and is causing great consternation for me and my family and we will not be bullied and harassed into complying with a policy that is but the beginning of the loss of our personal freedoms. This is not the South Africa that I envisioned post 1994, but it is certainly the one that is being proposed through these draconian measures.

				I am writing this in my capacity as a prospective student at UCT. At my matric Valedictory service last year, my headmaster urged us all to do the following: Read the fine print Be critical thinkers Follow the money And at the previous Valedictory service in 2020 he gave this speech which I took to heart too: “It might be a good thing for us all to sit quietly and draw up our own list of how we personally benefitted from this pandemic. To me, there is however one key negative that has occurred this year which is going to affect you, your families, and future generations if you are not aware of, and do not act against the dangers it entails. We all know about the historic ongoing struggle waged by people all over the world, including SA, to acquire our basic human rights. These rights are enshrined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights adopted by the United Nations in 1948 and in the South African Bill of Rights (Chapter 2 of the SA Constitution of SA) adopted in 1996. My concern is that during this pandemic, throughout the world, we have seen these hard-won rights surrendered to central governments without a whimper. Now it is common knowledge that once citizens surrender their rights and freedoms to a government it rarely gives these rights back voluntarily. Reading the SA Bill of Rights will give you an idea of what rights we have surrendered since March 2020. The promise: 7 (1) This Bill of Rights is a cornerstone of democracy in SA. It enshrines the rights of all people in our country and affirms the democratic values of Human dignity, equality and freedom. 7 (2) The state must respect, protect, promote, and fulfill the rights in the Bill of Rights. In my opinion, the citizens of this country are being deprived of their basic rights and freedoms enshrined in the Bill of Rights. What have we lost: 12 (1) Everyone has the right: (a) not to be deprived of freedom arbitrarily or without just cause. 12 (2) Everyone has the right: (b) to security in and control over their body and; (c) not to be subjected to medical or scientific experiments without their informed consent 14 Everyone has the right to privacy, which includes the right not to have – (a) their person or home searched; (b) their property searched (c) the privacy of their communications infringed 15 (1) everyone has the right to freedom of conscience, religion, thought, belief and opinion; 16 (1) Everyone has the right to freedom of expression, which includes – (a) freedom of the press and other media; (b) freedom to receive or impart information of ideas; (d) academic freedom and freedom of scientific research. 17 Everyone has the right, peacefully and unarmed, to assemble, to picket, and to present petitions. 18 Everyone has the right to freedom of association 21 (1) Everyone has the right to freedom of movement 21 (2) Everyone has the right to leave the Republic 21 (3) Every citizen has the right to enter, to remain in, and to reside anywhere in the Republic 22 Anyone has the right to choose their trade, occupation, or profession freely. 24 Everyone has the right – (a) to an environment that is not harmful to their health or well-being 27 Everyone has the right to – (a) health care services ... (b) sufficient food and water, and (c) social security, including, if they are unable to support themselves and their dependents, appropriate social assistance. 31 (1) Persons belonging to a cultural, religious ... community may not be denied the right ... (a) to enjoy their culture, practice their religion ... 32 Everyone has the right of access to – (a) any information held by the state; 33 (1) Everyone has the right to administrative action that is lawful reasonable and procedurally fair, 33 (2) Everyone whose rights have been adversely affected by administrative action has the right to be given written reasons. Today you have been charged by the school and our Old Boys’ Union to make certain undertakings governing your behaviour and actions in the future. I end off my address to you with a charge of my own: I charge you to use every opportunity available to petition for the return of the rights and freedoms the citizens of our country and the world have surrendered to global and national governments. I charge you oppose in every way lawfully possible the further impingement of our basic human rights and freedoms.” I believe that the introduction of a vaccine mandate could result in a further violation of our Constitutional rights. In particular this from the Bill of Rights: Section 9: Equality 9.1 Everyone is equal before the law and has the right to equal protection and benefit of the law 9.2 Equality includes the full and equal enjoyment of all rights and freedoms. To promote the achievement of equality, legislative and other measures designed to protect or advance persons, or categories of persons, disadvantaged by unfair discrimination may be taken. 9.3. The state may not unfairly discriminate directly or indirectly against anyone on one or more grounds, including... disability, religion, conscience, belief... Not everyone reacts in the same way to the same medicines or vaccines. This is something that can be seen by looking at all the ADEs in the VigiAccess database of WHO and UMC. In 2021 the top two categories of negative adverse effects logged for Covid 19 vaccines were Blood and lymphatic system disorders (137,503) Cardiac disorders (184,370) Not allowing students access to universities and threatening jobs because of medical concerns is a form of discrimination. And it is also discriminatory to stigmatise people who have vaccine objections and treat them differently (for example subjecting them to a lot of extra work and stress and making them do costly tests). Section 10: Human Dignity 10 Everyone has inherent dignity and the right to have their dignity respected and protected. There is a lot of blaming and shaming people who don’t want to be vaccinated. A person’s medical or vaccine status should be kept confidential, like with HIV positive people. Not forced to be on display on a pass to get access to places. Their dignity should be respected and protected.

					If on the basis of social sciences mandatory proof of vaccination status represents a poor policy, lacking foresight into future negative social issues. South Africa is a landscape that multi ethnic, multicultural and requires people centred policies. Mandatory vaccinations will present a Pandora's box of knock on social issues - who is, who isn't. Us vs them. Has this been considered? Or is this purely a biomedical public health approach for a disease with dubious statistics which I shall not get into here... due to a statistical war that is already going on. In addition... the problem of effectiveness vs efficacy? A small minority will be mandatorily vaccinated. How does this affect, socially... the vast landscape of the under privileged, under uneducated, Lower socio economic tier in the western cape, let alone, the other provinces of SA. What language/ message are you sending? The data is clear. I'll say this again, the data is clear that there are confusing results from mandatory vaccination. Observations out of Israel is a worthwhile topic of scrutiny and a motivation / demotivator to apply mandatory vaccination. Last, not least, I bring you back to the problem of social ethics in this country. We ARE not Europe, and neither should we wish to be. We have no reason, biomedically to create such policy. Zero. The landscape of SA does not call for this. If anything, you may approach care homes, those of the elderly, those who are at a health disadvantage and I could sit on a panel and give in, possibly to mandatory vaccination of this group. Absolutely not in young people under the age of 30 (arbitrary number). In addition, if UCT requires, mandates vaccinations and will not allow students entry without proof of WHO approved certificates, will UCT take responsibility for the student who, did not wish to be vaxxed, on conscious grounds, but got disapproved by the panel, therefore forced/ coerced to vaccinate in order to enter UCT- who could possibly/ statistically be vaccine-injured? Will UCT hold surety for their medical bills? Will UCT be willing to take financial responsibility/ surety for the health of these students should something go wrong? UCT will be putting an unnecessary pressure on themselves, an unnecessary responsibility on themselves for the welfare of students should their health be affected by the vaccine. there aren't more than enough observations and anecdotes around the world of vaccine injury. it's preposterous that UCT will place themselves in such a position. and if UCT is not responsible for harm done... then who will be? The student who didn't wish to be vaccinated? The snake will bite its own tale. wisdom needs to be applied to the broader context. And there's that special word... context. This is enough. I could say much more. I apologise for poor grammar. This is a text box, not a thesis. I've done enough for UCT. Had the pleasure of representing this great institution, of being proud of the difficult but victorious road of academia I've travelled. I am a solid alumni. I trust that my advice, my words will be taken into serious consideration along with others who oppose mandates. Sincerely, Jonathan Joshua

	2022-01-31 17:08:57	Western Cape	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	The mandate policy as drafted contravenes basic and Constitutional rights of students, employees and contractors. The policy does not show, based on the available evidence regarding safety, efficacy and risk-reduction probability of the available candidate vaccines, that this contravention is reasonable and justifiable. Particularly, given that real-world studies show insubstantial (if any) reduction in transmission of COVID-19 due to vaccination, mandating the vaccine cannot be an effective tool for preventing transmission or for reducing transmission rates or likelihood in the interests of campus safety, and therefore would be a thoroughly unjustifiable breach of individuals' rights to choose not to be vaccinated. There are concerns worldwide about the safety of the available vaccines, while the trials are still ongoing. Their safety has yet to be formally established through the usual procedures. For any medical intervention, and absolutely for one still in experimental phase, like this one, the associated risks and benefits should be personally assessed and decided on in an environment permitting objectivity. Members of the University community should be encouraged to evaluate the risks and benefits and decide for themselves, not the opposite. "Informed consent" presupposes the freedom for informed refusal, without concern of possible discrimination or academic or occupational exclusion as a result.	Beverly	employed individual
	2022-01-31 15:49:45	Western Cape	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	I found it quite unbelievably patronizing the way the lawyer for UCT presented us with the statement that UCT takes no responsibility for forcing its employees/students to be 'vaccinated'. He stated that, if we were to experience any negative effects of this 'vaccine', we could apply to a government fund for assistance. Is he perhaps not aware of the dysfunctional state of governmental assistance programs such as the National Road Accident Fund? Why would this new fund be any different? Why would this be of concern? Now that Pfizer has been forced to reveal its data on the trials, it has become known, for example, that one is 5 times more likely to suffer a heart-attack from the 'vaccine' than without it. It is also well-known that the voluntary vaccine adverse effects recording system in the US (VAERS), which UNDER-REPORTS incidences of vaccine-damage by between 10 and 99 percent, has shown more incidents of damage from these 'vaccines' than from all other vaccines put together over its time of existence. Yet, they claim these 'vaccines' are 'safe' and we can go to the government for help if we are sufficiently unlucky that some odd incident might occur. What kind of treatment of UCT's employees is that? For 2021 VAERS showed over 790000 cases of vaccine-injury from these 'Covid-vaccines'. Therefore, we need a much more serious consideration of this problem than the lawyer offered in his presentation the other day. Furthermore, it has been shown clearly that this 'vaccine' neither stops transmission of the virus nor prevents one from getting sick from the virus. That it is ineffective in both these respects is clearly shown by the fact that for travel, vaccine-status is irrelevant and the ONLY thing all governments want is the results of the pcr-Test. Another clear demonstration of its ineffectiveness is the massive increases in numbers of infected people in the most-vaccinated countries in the world, such as Gibraltar, Iceland and Israel. What, therefore, is the point of a vaccine-mandate at UCT?	Peter	employed individual

	2022-01-31 13:14:20	KwaZulu-Natal	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	This policy cannot be justified as evidence shows that vaccines do not prevent infection or transmission. The Covid 19 vaccines do not provide sterilizing immunity and there is a growing list of studies proving that vaccinated individuals are as infective as unvaccinated individuals as a source of virus transmission. Covid 19 vaccine safety is a growing concern. There is limited data available regarding the wide-ranging adverse event reports (from databases and peer reviewed literature). The student age group population is at very limited risk from severe Covid 19 illness and the latest scientific research shows that side effects from the Covid 19 vaccine are more common in young people than originally thought. The vaccine could therefore pose more risk to young people than the virus itself. The Covid 19 vaccines are regarded as "novel" as their long term safety is not established and they are currently approved for emergency use until 2023. In addition scientific evidence shows that natural immunity is more robust than vaccination and that the majority of our student population is likely to have the benefit of natural immunity which negates the need for vaccination. 					- there has already been a call for the state of pandemic to be changed to endemic. A pandemic does not remove the right of individual to think for themselves and make decisions about their choice of medical treatment. - there are evidence that PCR test are deliver false negative results. - Not everyone will get the virus and of you do and recover natural immunity provides immunity. Does not seem as if this is taken into account and acknowledged. - if the organization and leaders have a concern for health then encourage students and staff to live healthy lifestyles, build up their immunity which is beneficial to prevent other modern day health issues e.g. diabetics, etc. - the whole debate vax vs unvaxed is creating a big divide in the country. I feel it is NOT beneficial for relationships, it divides families, it creates distrust and it almost feel if people look down on those who differs from their opinion /choice in this regard and treat vax-free people as "melaats". What I gather is that the vaccine is still experimental. If people has chosen out of free will to receive the experimental vaccine it is their choice. If they feel it was a hasty decision and a mistake, don't force others to do something to make the numbers and statistics look good. There are too many contradictory reports... where organizations turn around their findings and then to support the vaccine agenda. With low infection rates, high recovery rates and huge uncertainty about the effectiveness of the vaccines one wonder what is really behind this whole thing. Has your risk assessment taken into account the psychological impact on young people who loose hope on their future because they are not able to exercise a choice about taking an experimental treatment, and because of the choice they make are discriminated against and excluded from future education. It is taking away their ability to grow into the future leaders of our country. To force a mandate on anyone who might want or need to visit the campus of UCT(and for that matter any university campus or public place) on regular or even ad hoc and once off basis sounds like tyranny and raise serious questions about the real motivation for the mandate.

				It is illegal and unlawful to mandate this 'vaccine' and to make it a prerequisite before we can exercise our right to education. We are protected by The Constitution and International Law. We are not animals, we are humans that can think for ourselves and we can make decisions about medication and health on our own. It is as simple as that. Let those who are persuaded by science take the experimental vaccine, but do not force everyone to take this experimental vaccine. How can an institution that teach students the law, make unlawful and illegal decisions. You teach the law, but you do not abide by it? The contents of this experimental vaccine is unknown and genetic based mRNA vaccines have never been injected into humans in the past, it has no proven track record or outcome, no long term safety data, no safe/successful clinical studies done on animals, non-compliant with the standards of Safety, Efficacy and Quality set out in the Medicines and Related Substances Act 101 of 1975, no Patient information leaflet included/available or understandable, on the face of it being administered indiscriminately by Government and/or its authorised officials, without knowledge or understanding of each individuals medical background: medication is not a one size fits all. I submit that it is irrelevant whether the "vaccine" is registered for use by SAPHRA or not. I refuse to be used as a guinea pig or lab rat. It is widely known that so called clinical studies of this injection will only be completed in 2023 and I have proof of many who got injured and/or have died because of this experimental 'vaccine'. The injection is not a 'vaccine' by definition, as it does not prevent infection or transmission. The borders are being closed to prevent transmission, when it is only the vaccinated people that can travel, so it does not prevent infection and transmission. Even after the injection, masks are still required/mandatory, social distancing practiced and isolation. I submit that there is no proper science behind any of the above and it has now been established that the effectiveness of the "vaccine" is wearing off so fast that second, third and booster shots may be necessary. It has also come to light that the injected suffer allergic reactions, myocarditis (swelling of the heart) and blood clots which can lead to strokes or death and many more adverse effects. This is unacceptable and is against my will and conscience. I further submit that there are other safe and effective ways of treating infections of the covid virus such as, Ivermectin, Hydroxychloroquine, Vitamins C, D, Zinc, Quercetin, NAC, budesonide, hydrogen peroxide and more. I further submit that Natural God given broad spectrum Immunity has been proven to be far more effective against this infection than any other substance, for example in Sweden. It is accepted worldwide that a very small percentage of people infected succumb to the disease and these are usually people with a compromised immune system. I further submit that there is a difference between dying of Covid and with Covid and that this has been ignored. According to more than seventeen-thousand of the world's best doctors, the treatment protocols that are used in hospitals are medical malpractice and leads to more deaths. The Manufacturers of the injection have been granted immunity by the Government of South Africa against any liability for death or injury! This is against the Law of this country, more specifically the Aquilian Action which is part of the Law of Damages in South Africa. This action establishes the right to pursue damages resulting from culpa (fault/negligence). I question the motives of any Government or Ministers of such a Government, willing to subject its citizens to such carelessness and possibly negligent actions. I further submit that if the injection had been safe this protection would not be necessary. I know of no other 'vaccine' that gives the Manufacturer this kind of protection/indemnity. I find it unacceptable, and grossly negligent to subject people to it. It is also against my religion, belief and conscience to take this genetic based mRNA 'vaccine', and it is my right to exercise my non-derogable rights in terms of the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, Act 108 of 1996, as Amended. When it comes to medication, it is never a one-size fits all. I listen and got information from the worlds top doctors, scientists and lawyers, such as amongst many others, Dr Geert van den Bossche, Dr Ryan Cole, Dr Lawrence Palevsky, Dr Judy Mikovits, Dr Daniel Stock, Dr Vladimir Zelenko (who treated Donal Trump when he had COVID-19), Dr Sherri Tenpenny, Del Bigtree, Robert F. Kennedy Jr., Dr Lee Merritt, Dr Simone Gold, Dr Rashid Buttar, Dr Richard Bartlett, Dr Pierre Kory, Dr Michael Yeadon, Professor Dolores Cahill, Dr Ben Marble, Dr Peter McCullough, Dr Ben Marble and many more. There are also alternative means of medication that is proven to be effective against COVID-19 and all of the above doctors support and recommend alternative medication rather than COVID vaccines. They have treated countless patients (which includes 90 year olds and persons with underlying medical conditions) and all of them survived. So why make vaccines mandatory and infringe our rights? Numerous people experience symptoms (in the short and long term) after taking the COVID-19 vaccine this include, weakness and fatigue, joint and muscle pain, muscle twitching, spasms, tremors and shaking, internal burning, tingling and vibrating, neuropathy, paralysis, parasthesia and numbness, headaches, tinnitus and vertigo, stomach issues and weight loss, heart issues, blood pressure issues, petechiae and rashes, autonomic, sensory and motor dysfunction, brain fog, dysnomia and memory loss. (Visit: https://vaccines.daystar.com and https://covid.daystar.com for more information) The Nuremberg Code (1947) - international law <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Required is the voluntary, well-informed, understanding consent of the human subject in a full legal capacity. 2. The experiment should aim at positive results for society that cannot be procured in some other way 3. It should be based on previous knowledge (e.g. an expectation derived from animal experiments) that justifies the experiment. 4. The experiment should be set up in a way that avoids unnecessary physical and mental suffering and injuries. 5. It should not be conducted when there is any reason to believe that it implies a risk of death or disabling injury. 6. The risks of the experiment should be in proportion to (that is, not exceed) the expected humanitarian benefits. 7. Preparations and facilities must be provided that adequately protect the subjects against the experiment's risks. 8. The staff who conduct or take part in the experiment must be fully trained and scientifically qualified 9. The human subjects must be free to immediately quit the experiment at any point when they feel physically or mentally unable to go on. 10. Likewise, the medical staff must stop the experiment at any point when they observe that continuation would be dangerous As such this is a crime against humanity.

Moreover the legal, administrative, constitutional and political problems this will cause the institution are so vast a few of these off the top of my head being the potential racialised reading where UCT's white middle class libs pro vax mandaters force black working class students to be vaccinated. It's just so stupid and anti-intellectual and clearly influenced by the agenda of vaccine funding. Having been a PhD student in the Humanities at UCT for the past 5 years, the propagandist spirit of anti-enquiry and woke-washing that distracts from the institution's utterly market driven agenda is so depressing. There is no material politics at UCT it is all an embarrassing 2nd hand American imperial ideology that the vaccine mandates form part of and an infantile "be kind" virtue politics that feed only the egos of those in power whose interest in education and contribution to the innovative and imaginative and intellectual landscape of South African society is zero. Part of me wants UCT to carry out these mandates so they can face the fall put from the decision and their politics can be seen for what they really are, bankrupt and trapped in the self congratulatory liberal politics of the 20th century. 					I find it appalling that UCT could even contemplate a mandate that would result in the firing of staff or exclusion of students for wanting to uphold their rights to constitutionally-protected bodily autonomy. Our rights over our bodies are inviolable. Just as we have the right not to be raped. Just as we have the right not to have our minds tortured. So, too, do we have the right not to have something forcibly put in our bodies that we do not want to put into our bodies. That anyone could support the idea that a colleague could lose their job and livelihood and ability to feed and provide for their families for refusing a medical treatment that is still effectively experimental, and for which there are no studied long-term side effects yet, is morally unacceptable. Similarly that anyone could support denying a student the ability to study in order to become a contributing member of society and fend for him/herself. It was morally unacceptable when the Nuremberg Code was drawn up, and it remains morally unacceptable today, no matter how hard governments and institutions are trying to nullify it. Our bodies are the only things that are 100% our own. They are our countries over which we are the rulers. Our skins are our borders. We get to issue our own visas for who or what penetrates those borders and for what goes into our bodies. Whether that is permission to be cut by a scalpel, to ingest a pill or substance, or to be injected by a needle - that border control is ours. Respiratory illnesses are an integral part of our existence. We manage that risk. We try to stay healthy so that we can shake off our annual viruses. We act sensibly and stay home until we get better. We get our flu jabs if we feel worried or are at risk. There is no reason why we cannot continue to do that. The presence of unvaccinated people within the work environment is no more or less "unsafe" than the presence of vaccinated people, given that this is not a sterilising vaccine and both vaccinated and unvaccinated people are able to get it and transmit it (I know 14 vaccinated friends, family and colleagues who have had it recently). In fact, the only people who should be deemed "unsafe" are those who are ill. Not vaccinated does not mean that one is in a permanent state of illness or contagiousness. Vaccinated does not mean that one is immune. People who have had Covid already should not be required to vaccinate. There are many studies which confirm that immunity from prior infection is equitable if not better than vaccine-induced immunity. What if it does them harm and over-stresses their immune systems? Was this ever properly studied in trials? It is not a medical necessity, and violates the medical concept of "first do no harm". Where there is ANY risk of adverse effects for our young and healthy people - for anyone, actually - there should ALWAYS be a choice. Placing a burden of guilt on anyone to "do things for others" when doing so may compromise oneself in the process is ethically very, very wrong. Mandates are a one-way ticket to segregation and discrimination. It is not good for societal cohesion, and in the light of high exposure and recovery after the omicron wave plus the anticipated endemicity of the disease, forcing people to vaccinate on threat of firing or excluding them from the university is not worth the anger, trauma and division it is likely to cause, and is causing already.	Joanne	employed individual

It is known now that it does not stop transmission and does not stop illness. It may reduce severity but that is questionable. UCT was also very much against apartheid and discrimination in the past. Today you could be encouraging it which is unbelievably sad. The risk of serious illness with your students is extremely low which also brings into question these mandates. I also have a problem with the call on vaccinating some one who already have natural immunity. You would not vaccinate someone who has had mumps for mumps. But in the case of the covid 19 disease it has been clearly shown that vaccination does not prevent human-to-human transmission, and therefore the only justification for being vaccinated is to reduce the risk to the individual being treated of falling seriously ill. This is evident by the evolution of the Omicron variant, which in the majority of cases presents no more risk than a common cold. As a university whose purpose is to educate, this information should be disseminated, not suppressed. It is time to stop putting our healthy children in danger by exposing them to experimental drugs for a disease that poses almost zero threat to them, and will neither stop contraction nor transmission of the disease to others. 	2022-01-25 22:02:09	Western Cape	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	1. Is this mandate still justified based on a public health interest in view of the seemingly decreased disease severity associated with the Omicron variant, especially for young healthy individuals of whom a large proportion have already had Covid and therefore infer a degree of immunity and secondly this younger group is unlikely to overwhelm our health services if based on data from the UK surveillance reports. 2. Data from the most recent UK surveillance reports shows the incidence of Covid cases per 100 000 to be highest amongst the double vaccinated and far less in the unvaccinated. Israel has just had their highest number of daily new cases (75 000) with 98% of their population vaccinated, some with 4 shots. The data increasingly appears to suggest that the vaccine is increasing the risk of transmission, perpetuating the pandemic and increasing situations in which variants might be formed. Why challenge a setting whereby SA has coped with our current blend of immunity.....It makes no sense, especially if the vaccine is ineffective in the case of a new variant. If I am not mistaken, there was a similar event on the Cornell Campus in the US recently despite extremely high vaccination rates and campus had to be closed temporarily regardless, so what exactly is the point of the vaccine mandate? 3. Do we know the whether the risk of myocarditis following vaccination in young males increases if they have had prior Covid? We have individuals who had Covid before vaccine, had the vaccine, and now have had Covid again, and please don't say it is very rare as many of us know of quite a few cases of myocarditis and pericarditis post vaccine in individuals who were low risk of developing severe Covid. Do repeated doses increase the risk of side effects? Do we know the long term side effects of the vaccine.....no we don't. What is the point of vaccination for those individuals that have already had Covid twice for example with both infections being mild? Side effects are not being effectively reported and therefore it is not currently possible to ascertain the actual risk benefit ratio of the vaccine and to be able to make an informed decision, although a mandate removes that choice. Also, the efficacy of the vaccine wanes over time (4-6 months and shorter for Omicron), what value is a vaccine pass (if the vaccine infers as much protection against transmission as is purported by some researcher), if these individuals have had their vaccines ages ago and are already at low risk of severe disease by the mere nature of their younger age and general health. 4. With regards to the proposed testing strategies for those who qualify for exemptions - is this not currently redundant in view of the large number of cases within the vaccinated group we have seen with Omicron? 5. Covid vaccination should rather be focussed on those groups most likely to infer the greatest benefit e.g. older individuals, co-morbidities, especially as we do not have 5-year safety data. An indiscriminate approach may not be the best way to proceed. As mentioned earlier interestingly it seems that Israel has just recorded their highest ever daily numbers - while the vaccine certainly benefits the at risk in the short term, some are asking the valid question as to whether indiscriminate vaccination may in fact be resulting in increasing case numbers in highly vaccinated countries. Perhaps in South Africa we have managed to achieve a good balance between vaccinated and prior infection that has actually benefited us as opposed to countries in Europe for example and unless we are exposed to a far more virulent variant, which of course is possible, we wouldn't be guaranteed that our current vaccines would provide the protection needed anyway. Please act sensibly UCT - our youth deserve it.	Carrie	employed individual

How will you tell your female students and teachers, lab workers, etc their menstruation cycles could be damaged - potentially for life? And that miscarriage rates when vaccinated, esp during the first trimester, are far beyond the normal numbers (see article with studies and correlations on this here: https://www.lifesitenews.com/blogs/horrifying-hidden-pfizer-data-show-unborn-babies-newborns-dying/) What about athletes who get myocarditis and can no longer play (Japan have seen the correlation & have labelled all COVID-19 vaccines a risk for this - or just see the list of vaccinated sports players who've dropped on the field over the past 12 months who now have heart issues). @ Who will be liable for them and their hospital bills? 	2022-01-25 20:40:30	Western Cape	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	UCT thinks that it can get away with this by saying something vague about creating a 'safe environment', without ever explaining how exactly it proposes to create a safe environment with these vaccines which do not halt infection nor transmission! It is not UCT's job to keep students or staff out of hospital (the sole reason anyone would have to take the vaccine), otherwise there would be a thousand other things they would have to mandate to keep people 'safe'. UCT also does not answer any questions posed to them, nor engage in any discussion with people presenting actual scientific evidence or asking questions. There is now even LESS scientific reasoning to support a mandate with the Omicron variant, which poses almost no risk, and the SA population has very high levels of immunity already, according to our top scientists. Are you going to require people who got the Johnson and Johnson vaccine to have a second dose to comply with the mandate? It is now widely known that you are considered unvaccinated after TWO months of receiving the first dose, are you going to count these people as unvaccinated too? UCT, if you ignore the actual science and go ahead with these completely irrational mandates, you will be on the wrong side of history and have a lot to answer for.	Sam	employed individual

	2022-01-25 19:46:56	KwaZulu- Natal	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	We have to have freedom of choice. Our bodies are our own. The experimental jab has been proven to be unsafe, ineffective and dangerous. Where there is risk, there should be choice. The policy in its entirety is thus not desirable. UCT does not have the right to the personal medical treatment information of its staff and students. The University has operated without any such policy during far more perilous Covid-19 times for 2 years now. It is clearly not necessary. ALL of the actual data on the injections being mandated by this draft policy of UCT points to limited efficacy, for a limited period of time, and unknown safety--although VAERS provides more red flags re safety of Covid injections than it has for past vaccines, including that for Swine Flu, which was taken off the market over safety concerns! The American CDC has just admitted that post-infection natural immunity is superior and longer lasting against prevalent strains of Covid than 2-shot vaccine protection. (The UCT mandate ignores natural immunity altogether.) Actually, the CEO of Pfizer, Bourla, recently admitted Pfizer's 2-shot regimen offering "limited, if any" protection against OMICRON, with boosted individuals having short term "reasonable" protection. So the idea that Covid injections reduce transmission, should be very tenuously asserted. This is crucial because the entire greater-good argument for mandating vaccines rests upon it. Vaccinating the young has no potential for significant reduction in hospital pressure, as under-30's hardly ever get serious Covid 19 of any variant, but especially OMICRON, and vaccinating recovered people of any age is entirely pointless. The known risks of myocarditis, pericarditis and other cardiovascular conditions from the Covid injections are substantially higher for the under-30 age group in particular, and everyone else in general, than any historically acceptable risk levels for any other vaccine, even concerning diseases far more dangerous to young people--like influenza. In fact, in the past, just 50 deaths reported on VAERS (not necessarily confirmed) were enough to get a vaccine pulled from the market. For the Covid injections, VAERS shows over 20 000 deaths, and counting. And VAERS is a weak signalling system, not a counting system. Their numbers cannot be used to calculate risk rates, as a pre-Covid-19 Harvard study found that under-reporting rates on such systems mean that actual adverse events and deaths ran at 100x to 10x the signal for VAERS. This should be alarming to everyone with even 3 brain cells, and should scream "NO MANDATE" in the mind of anyone looking at real world data on this matter. Additionally, everyone presently accepting a Covid injection, is still part of of the drug manufacturers' clinical trials. In what universe, has it ever been acceptable to mandate experimental treatments? A recent Lancet letter "The epidemiological relevance of the COVID-19-vaccinated population is increasing" was recently published. I said that in the UK, secondary attack rates among household contacts exposed to fully vaccinated index cases was similar to household contacts exposed to unvaccinated index cases (25% for vaccinated vs 23% for unvaccinated). 39% of infections in fully vaccinated household contacts arose from fully vaccinated epidemiologically linked index cases. Peak viral load did not differ by vaccination status or variant type It is thus no surprise to me that the most highly Covid-vaccinated populations in the world today, are also experiencing the highest rates of covid illness across all ages bar the very young. Until this phenomenon is satisfactorily explained, UCT has no right to just ignore it and proclaim the opposite will happen in their university environment, when there is no evidentiary precedent on which to rest their claim. On the contrary, journalist Daniel Horowitz has pointed out that "Scottish data shows that the COVID-19 age-standardized case rate is highest among the two-dose vaccinated and lowest among unvaccinated! It further shows this trend of negative efficacy for the double-vaccinated persisting for hospitalizations and deaths. Something is very wrong here, and together with other data points, it raises concerning questions about the negative effect of waning antibodies, constant boosting, and the consequences of a leaky vaccine with narrow-spectrum suboptimal antibodies against an ever-evolving virus. Every Wednesday, Public Health Scotland (PHS) has been publishing a weekly report on COVID data juxtaposed to vaccination rates. Table 14 of this week's "Public Health Scotland COVID-19 & Winter Statistical Report" lays bare in plain English (and math) a rate of negative efficacy for the vaccine...What is clearly evident both from the hospitalizations and deaths is that the double-vaccinated are now worse off per capita even against critical illness, and that pattern appears to be accelerating." UCT has NO business putting out a pro-mandate policy on this, under the circumstances. Even if one is happy with vaccine apartheid and a pass system, which they clearly are!-- there is ZERO compelling evidence for any public good coming out of such a policy. In fact, all the evidence currently coming to light across the world is pointing to possible public harm/negative efficacy. Europe is cold feet on 4th shot boosters because of possible cumulative harm to people's immune systems. Although there may be a sector of individuals who might benefit from the injections which UCT wants to mandate on its campus, your average staff/student member is not part of that group, and the onus should be on the individual as to whether he/she wishes to assume the individual risk of taking the injections, when weighed up against the possible risk. I am appalled at UCT, my alma mater, and just hope that the the quality of reasoning used to inform the draft policy in question, does not reflect the quality of academic rigour at UCT in general these days !! 	2022-01-24 14:36:19	Western Cape	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	Mandatory Covid vaccination is entirely disproportionate to the actual risk posed by covid. The covid survival rate is close to 100%, even more so now. The dangers posed by covid, publicised in the main stream, does not match reality. Covid can and has been treated successfully with Ivermectin or Hydroxychloroquin by many doctors, less people would have died if this was provided to hospitals when it became known as an effective treatment. To mandate this experimental vaccine contravenes the most basic human rights of bodily integrity. It contravenes many ethical codes including the Nuremberg Code, the Declaration of Helsinki – Ethical principles for medical research involving human subjects, the Universal Declaration on Bioethics and Human Rights, etc. The vaccines are ineffective. In Ireland, Belgium, Israel, Taiwan, Singapore and the six New England states of the USA, where ±80% of the population has been vaccinated, fresh Covid infections are rife. The vaccines are not safe which is substantiated by the effects it is having on people. Up until September, the World Health Organisation conservatively notched up 2,5 million cases of adverse reactions including myocarditis, partial paralysis, chronic fatigue and death. Vaccinated deaths of all ages in Europe tallied 30,000 and 18,000 in the US. Will the University be accepting responsibility for adverse events that the vaccines will have on the people you are mandating to take it? Or will you follow the big pharma's example by making yourself exempt? It is clear that mandating vaccines for covid is completely baseless and therefore should be scrapped immediately. Most people oppose this mandate. Despite this, there seems to be a small group of people who are attempting to enforce their will on the majority. Stop this horrific infringement upon human rights NOW!. It is illegal to introduce mandatory vaccinations. It is against the Nuremberg code. And all officials involved in such a practise will eventually be jailed and sued for millions. Do you even warn them that after taking this vaccine they may be subject to neurological damage which could and has resulted in many thousands of deaths.? Do you even tell them that they have a much better chance of surviving covid if they do not take the vaccine and rely on their natural immunity? Well we all know the answer to that. Of course you do not! Nobody that perpetrates these vaccines can any longer claim ignorance. 					The proposed C19 vaccine mandate is not legal or ethical. 1) UCT does not have the legal right to supercede the South African constitution - This statement is based on expert legal opinion. 2) The South African constitution guarantees an individuals right to bodily and psychological integrity Section 36 states that rights may be limited by laws of general application, but only insofar as this is "reasonable and justifiable in an open and democratic society based on dignity, freedom and equality". Mandating of the C19 'vaccines' is not "reasonable and justifiable"! It is irrational, unscientific and a violation of human rights and freedom of choice.: • Our country's medical specialists have confirmed that the new variant, Omicom, is less virulent than previous variants. • At the same time, they have confirmed that is extremely transmissible, that people of all immune statuses transmit the virus and that asymptomatic transmission is common. • Our already high population immunity levels are now even higher than before. • Even the most virulent Covid variants were considered low risk for young people, whilst the risks of vaccination, are relatively higher for young people. • Consensus is building, both locally and internationally, that we are exiting the pandemic phase of this epidemic and entering the endemic phase. This would mean that Covid 19 is treated as other infectious diseases are treated – with vaccinations made available to those who choose them. • Consequently, more and more countries are reducing restrictions and doing away with health passports and vaccine passports. President Ramaphosa was recently quoted as saying that there was a valid argument for dropping the State of Emergency. • The C19 'vaccines' do not prevent infection or transmission. The vaccine status of students and staff is not a factor when it comes to planning for face to face teaching and learning. Good ventilation; people staying home if they have a tummy bug, or a cold, or any other easily transmissible infectious disease, and intelligent planning on the part of UCT leadership is what will ensure face to face engagement.

	2022-01-23 15:09:16	Western Cape	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	The pandemic is down to endemic. The vaccines proof to be not very effective. So it will do nothing to curb the spread or catching covid. The survival chance, of covid at its worst, was still very acceptably high, close to 100%. Huge mistakes was made in keeping and releasimg statistics with people dying from covid and people dying with covid. So in light of the abovethere are no need for any of the measures in this draft policy. It seems to rather fit a political and global agenda rather than really trying to curb a pandemic, the latter as stated by me was down scaled to endemic. We can not foretell the future so to vaccinate for some future wave or variant is just not viable as seen with current vaccines that proofed outdated and futile against the new omnicorn variant. Boosters are just also not working and is just a money making racket. Freedom of choice should be there, paramount, same like choosing to take any other medical procedure. 	2022-01-23 14:00:35	Western Cape	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	The Republic of South Africa is a nation with a constitution that prevents discrimination in its entirety. A human being has rights and bodily autonomy is one of those rights, the freedom to decide. In order for that right to be superceded in the best interests of public safety, the reasoning had to be proportionate to the threat faced. The CDC and WHO agreed that this case fatality rate is minimal. That Covid-19 is 99.8%+ NON FATAL in more than 98% of the global population of nearly 8 billion people. Masks cause CO2 retention and subsequent low pH, acidosis and illness. Vaccines are still in the clinical trial phase until 2023 and the results this far yield serious adverse effects notably pericarditis, myocarditis, gynaecological haemorrhage, Guillian Barre, thrombosis leading to myocardial infarction and CVA etc. Even considering vaccine mandates for a drug (as vaccines do not have a half life requiring multiple ongoing doses) is unethical, illogical and a violation of human rights mentioned in the Nuremberg code. South Africa must not follow the failed behaviour of the Northern hemisphere, which is preparing for its 4th 5th and 6th doses this year, but rely on showing the world that herd immunity works best for an illness similar in fatality to the flu. After we faced SARS COV 1 we never panicked and survived. 6% of the African continent is factually vaccinated, and has still THE LOWEST MORTALITY GLOBALLY. Lead Africa and the world by showing common sense, and that we do not sell our freedoms to anyone, especially the wealthiest of nations and people who were too greedy to get their boosters before sharing with Africa in the first place. The adverse effects are adversely affecting and killing thousands a week in Europe alone. The risk of adverse effects of this vaccine is not medically proportionate to the risk of death from Covid-19. All medical procedures require consent. The slippery slope of mandates open us to future possible mandates including a host of other agendas. As a medical professional having worked internationally, I plead with my country not to follow the gravest of mistakes other countries have already made and are only now seeing and admitting to. 					The foundational assumption of the stated policy objectives is that there is a positive relationship between the COVID-19 vaccine and maintaining a "safe and healthy working and learning environment...". This assumption is a fatal flaw. Coercion to take an unwanted medical treatment, policed with threats of rejection in the form of disciplinary procedures and expulsion creates a negative psycho-social environment. Negative discourse about the unvaccinated creates division and encourages bullying. Already, many that decline vaccination are silenced and feel isolated by the narrative propagated by higher education institutions and corporate leaders, among others. Unvaccinated have resisted mounting pressure exerted on them, clearly indicating that they are unwilling to be vaccinated. Coercing vaccination (any vaccination) to avoid losing income or a long invested-in dream of education is an exercise of power. An exercise of power that is experienced as unfair will sow and nurture deep and lasting resentment against the institution. The environment will be neither safe nor healthy.	S	unemployed individual

Should it not be a choice for the individual involved? Should he / she not have a choice to take an experimental drug with side effects to maybe protect him or herself? I took the double dose "vaccine" to protect my family, to keep it away from home. This one major reason for taking the jabs has become the biggest lie since the start of this entire thing as it definitely does not do that. So why force this "vaccine" on people where it does not do as sold? Why should people be forced to inject something that doesn't protect others? It just does not make sense, the only reason I can come up with is that everyone involved is getting something out of this be it power or money. What other reason can there be? Are people that afraid? I think people should be more afraid of what they've done to the world and generations to come. If it was necessary, the South African government would mandate it. The vaccines have failed: they do not provide immunity, they do not stop transmission and they do not limit transmission with the vaccinated currently being the more susceptible to catching and transmitting Omicron. It would be discriminatory and a breach of basic Human Rights, of the Right to Bodily Integrity and that of Informed Consent (which includes the right not to be discriminated against for saying "No!"), and an contravention of the South African Constitution to coerce employees and students into taking an experimental genetic product (which is not required for health purposes) in order to access education. The view that the vaccine is safe is false. Will the university be taking liability for all injuries and deaths arising from taking the vaccine? The concept that the University can hold a gun to employees and students heads to take an experimental genetic product to be educated is reprehensible. You have lost your humanity and human values. The university has been badly advised by Pharma sales agents, and indeed the university is most likely conflicted in having received funding from big Pharma in some way. 	2022-01-22 10:33:00	Gauteng	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	Every individual's medical records, history and choice is and should be a private matter. If you insist that someone else takes the vaccine because of government rules/mandates (not laws) you probably are aware that you have to give personal consent by signing a waiver of liability to government as well as the pharmaceutical companies when agreeing on the inoculation? This in itself should be enough to respect the freedom of choice of every individual at least on a medical principle. Because there are a particular rule/mandate in place, doesn't constitute that, that rule/mandate carries any weight of morality, ethics or rationality. The fact that the vaccine policy intrude on any individual's right to study and be educated is of great concern. Any such policy MUST go through a cost-benefit analysis based on factual scientific data of peer reviewed studies globally to understand the true efficacy and durability of the vaccine to actually protect against Covid-19 as well as considering data concerning ALL types of side effects that the different vaccines presents to individuals. It is clear from real world data that inoculation against Covid-19 and all of its variants has failed. A perfect example of this is Israel the most vaccinated and boosted nation is seeing record numbers of reported Covid cases any where in the world. In comaprison have South Africa fought of the Omicron surge with quite ease. The most rational health solution is to follow medical protocol where any student (vaccinated & unvaccinated) who doesn't feel well for whatever reason should isolate and not attend classes until they are medically fit to not spread any viral loads that they might carry. Students should be equipped with early treatment Covid kits on campus, especially those in residences where the spread of any disease for that matter is much higher. This would be a forced medical procedure with experimental medication. The vaccine is not well researched and not proven to be safe for 5 plus years since it has only been developed 18 month ago. No longterm studies are available. No longterm efficacy has been shown either and since many omicron patients were fully vaccinated and as sick as the unvaccinated it is not really proven efficient. It makes no sense to enforce an experimental drug on perfectly healthy students who were at no time really at risk due to Corona. Most young people get a cold and seldom a flu picture with Corona. So there is no medical basis to protect them from something so mild with an unproven safe or efficient vaccine.	Karin	business owner

The definition of 'isolated' has been changed to suit the narrative, as was the definition of 'vaccine' and 'herd immunity'. Roll it back and check the foundations. 2. PCR tests cannot be used for diagnosis. 3. Masks cannot protect against airborne viruses, you need a hazmat suit for that. 4. Social distancing also does not protect against airborne viruses. 5. Requests for further assistance have been made to international lawyer Robert F Kennedy Jnr (nephew of J F Kennedy), Dr Reiner Fuellmich (German corporate lawyer who won the emissions scandal case against Volkswagen Audi), Dr. Michael Yeadon (Former Pfizer Vice President), plus countless other doctors, professors, virologists, biologists, data experts and lawyers nationally and internationally; some of whom have already made direct contact with the police and have been acknowledged by Superintendent Simpson (Assistant to Cressida Dick, Head of The Metropolitan Police). The complaints allege numerous serious crimes including misfeasance and misconduct in public office; gross negligence manslaughter; corporate manslaughter, murder, conspiracy to murder, genocide and crimes against humanity. The evidence submitted by Philip Hyland and Dr Sam White against the UK's Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) is damning and shows they did not carry out due diligence surrounding the vaccine data, trials and studies; and that they continued to ignore the death, harm and injury the vaccines cause. Mark Sexton says: "This is now a live criminal investigation. We were forced to act due to the complacency of the UK Government, despite them being fully aware of the catastrophic death and injury figures to adults and children alike. This is nothing short of genocide; once again it seems that profit over people is the overriding motive. There is a deliberate blanket campaign of misinformation underway. Many don't even realise that the covid vaccine is still an experimental product. This is the most far-reaching criminal inquiry ever undertaken. 2022-01-15 20:25:21	North West	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	I do not understand how UCT can implement a vaccine mandate to the group that is among the lowest risk of severe covid/mortality i.e young, healthy people. The Omicron variant has clearly shown that c19 can be transmitted by both vaxed and unvaxed, and that recovered c19 have strong immunity and low transmission. Yet these mandates seek to discriminate between them, with n95s, testing etc proposed for the unvaxed, irrespective of previous illness/immune status. How on earth this cannot be viewed as discriminatory is beyond belief. To expect young people at zero risk of severe covid to comply with a vaccine that has been proven to have a higher risk than the actual illness (18 year old males, myocarditis, there are published studies) for some adverse effects, no matter how miniscule that risk is, is unconscionable. I'm a vaccinated health professional with post grad public health (MPH) and I'm a student parent. Please do not even try to implement this. 2022-01-14 16:04:08	Western Cape	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	UCT claim that the implementation of a vaccine mandate would create a safe environment for staff and students. There is no real word evidence to suggest that this would impact on Covid 19 transmission in any meaningful way. There are many global examples that show this. Highly vaccinated countries have experienced massive waves of covid. Cruise ships carrying only vaccinated passengers and crew have experienced outbreaks. Universities with 99% vaccination rates have had to return to online learning after outbreaks. To implement a mandate and strip people of their individual liberties for a vaccine that does little to stop the spread of the virus would be irrational and highly unethical. Furthermore, it is even less effective at stopping the spread of omicron, and we have no idea how effective it will be at stopping the spread of future variants. How can you mandate a vaccine which is still in trial and whose current and future efficacy is unknown. Just stop it! There is no virus. Scientists can't prove it. Therefore no vaccine and masks. 	2022-01-13 17:47:50	Western Cape	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	The Republic of South Africa is a nation with a constitution that prevents discrimination in its entirety. A human being has rights and bodily autonomy is one of those rights, the freedom to decide. In order for that right to be superceded in the best interests of public safety, the reasoning had to be proportionate to the threat faced. The CDC and WHO agreed that this case fatality rate is minimal. That Covid-19 is 99.8%+ NON FATAL in more than 98% of the global population of nearly 8 billion people. Masks cause CO2 retention and subsequent low pH, acidosis and illness. Vaccines are still in the clinical trial phase until 2023 and the results this far yield serious adverse effects notably pericarditis, myocarditis, gynaecological haemorrhage, Guillian Barre, thrombosis leading to myocardial infarction and CVA etc. Even considering vaccine mandates for a drug (as vaccines do not have a half life requiring multiple ongoing doses) is unethical, illogical and a violation of human rights mentioned in the Nuremberg code. South Africa must not follow the failed behaviour of the Northern hemisphere, which is preparing for its 4th 5th and 6th doses this year, but rely on showing the world that herd immunity works best for an illness similar in fatality to the flu. After we faced SARS COV 1 we never panicked and survived. 6% of the African continent is factually vaccinated, and has still THE LOWEST MORTALITY GLOBALLY. Lead Africa and the world by showing common sense, and that we do not sell our freedoms to anyone, especially the richest people who were too greedy to get their boosters before sharing with Africa. The adverse effects are killing thousands a week in Europe. The risk versus before is not even close to worth it.	ROBERT	employed individual

					As per all of the studies linked below, vaccinated carry the same viral load as unvaccinated and are still drivers of infection, the vaccine does not prevent transmission or infection and from real world data in countries with high vaccination rates like Israel, many countries in the EU like Ireland with vaccination rates as high as 94%, the infection rates are soaring with only 15% of the unvaccinated population making up hospitalisations and ICU cases. 2022-01-12 08:04:18	Western Cape	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	There is no scientific justification for mandates - especially not those attending university. Recent studies confirm what was shown in 2020 that people under the age of 25 have almost zero risk from COVID 0.0013% (or close to 1/100000). There is mounting evidence of risk from taking the vaccine - even if it is marginal in the case of young people we are seeing a potential increase in overall risk - on a risk benefit analysis this does not make sense. Vaccination does not stop spread - which dismisses the argument of protecting the vulnerable. The promise of herd immunity has not been realised either and will not be realised by the vaccine. There has been no justification given as to why a mandate is necessary which brings us to freedom of choice and the right to choose. Giving the state (or university) the power to make these sorts of decisions is exceptionally dangerous. If we lived in a society driven by real science - not by politics, money and ideological agenda there might be some justification. However, when you have a society that supports the shutdown, cancellation, silencing and censorship of anything that does not conform to the "approved" narratvie - then any claims of a basis in science goes out the window. Challenge and dissent are fundamental to science - without them real science cannot exist. Under the circumstances there is nobody (currently) with decision making powers that is qualified to decide on this issue. The possibility of corruption is simply too high. Until such time as we mature to a society that is capable of leaving behind petty and ignorant subscription to agenda and instead focus on solving problems rationally, objectively and logically, important decisions such as what profit earning products are injected into our bodies - should remain with each individual	Julian	business owner

	2022-01-10 20:47:59	Western Cape	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	Mandating a vaccine to stop the spread of a disease requires evidence that the vaccines will prevent infection or transmission (rather than efficacy against severe outcomes like hospitalization or death). As the World Health Organization puts it, "if mandatory vaccination is considered necessary to interrupt transmission chains and prevent harm to others, there should be sufficient evidence that the vaccine is efficacious in preventing serious infection and/or transmission." For Omicron, there is as yet no such evidence. There have been mass Omicron outbreaks in heavily vaccinated populations, so scientists are highly uncertain the existing vaccines can stop it from spreading. It has long been known that vaccinated people with breakthrough infections are highly contagious, and preliminary data from all over the world indicate that this is true of Omicron as well. There is no evidence that mandatory vaccines are reducing the spread of Omicron. There is therefore no legal basis for a mandate.	Michelle	employed individual

	2022-01-05 17:19:08	Western Cape	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	These vaccines are still in experimental trial phase which is why they need consent from participants. So how can it be mandated. I think these universities are arrogant to think that they have the right to dictate to others what they can and cannot do with their own bodies. Considering what we now know about these experimental drugs known as covid vaccines, anyone or any business or organization pushing people to get vaccinated are war criminals. No one can be forced to vaccinate and holding someone's livelihood or education in the balance is a gross human rights violation. Especially since there are alternative treatments that work very well against covid 19. So there is no need for anyone to vaccinate. It's crazy to try and vaccinate the entire world's people because of a novel virus with over a 99.9% survival rate. There is a reason why laws like the Nuremberg Code exists. Go and have a look at the WHO Vigi Access site or some of the other sites that lists all the vaccine adverse reactions. Millions of people are being negatively affected by these so called covid vaccines. These are severe reactions including myocarditis and death. Every single person has complete autonomy over their own bodies and no government, organization or corporate entity has the right to force anyone to vaccinate. So back off. Both vaccinated and unvaccinated people who become infected with covid isolate for 10 days. Both miss the same amount of education and have the ability to infect others. This is not a sterilizing vaccine by any means. Furthermore, young, healthy people have more risk of myocarditis and other rare albeit serious side effects, than they have from Covid. Especially now that the virus is on the verge of becoming endemic. To coerce young people into choosing between their education and their right to bodily integrity is disturbing! 	2022-01-05 15:12:24	Gauteng	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	The vaccine offers limited benefit and some studies indicate that having natural immunity(anti-bodies) is more effective and lasts longer and is also more effective against different variants (https://www.nature.com/articles/s41586-021-04060-7). If we pit the amount of Covid deaths against the amount of deaths caused by the common flu yearly Covid deaths are less, but we are not forced to isolate, quarantine or get a vaccine. If the vaccine was so effective why would it matter who gets vaccinated and who doesn't. If you choose to get vaccinated that is your choice if you choose not to that is your choice. My next point is on our constitution which took years to be created and was created specifically with equality and fairness in mind. When we start limiting peoples rights due to their choices or beliefs, no matter the scenario, we are going down a very slippery slope. In this regard we can look at it from another angle as well, we could say that the people that die from Covid normally has an underlying co-morbidity like being overweight, high blood pressure or diabetes and therefore everyone that does not exercise, and does eat sugar and fatty foods will not be allowed out of the house, because they are at risk. Finally our bodies are so extremely well designed that it can sort out most medical issues, bar trauma's off course, it is the only thing that can prevent or cure a virus and this is medically known. It all comes down to the right to choose. Each person should be allowed to choose whether they go or don't go for the vaccine. Each shop and restaurant owner can choose who they serve vaccinated or unvaccinated, but the blanket judgement taken by government, even though initially was a good response, now that we have more data should seriously be reconsidered. 					Listen carefully: South Africa, including its universities, is not a 'pass please' country. It used to be. That state of affairs, known as Apartheid, was deemed ethically reprehensible by the world. A mandatory vaccination or passbook in a society makes that society a 'pass please' society. It is an Apartheid tactic and has no place anywhere, least of all South Africa. A mandate to force people to take a medical therapy / medicine / vaccine / gene therapy / experimental drug is against the South African constitution and the Nuremberg code. The people pushing for the mandate are being unconstitutional at the level of the South African constitution and unlawful at the international policy level. There is no scientific sense in mandating any of the covid19 medical therapies that are being incorrectly referred to as vaccines. The medical therapies do not prevent a person from contracting the virus, nor from spreading it. The only thing that the medical therapies MAY do is prevent the most serious symptoms of covid19 when a person contracts the virus, but we have other tried tested and safe medicines such as Ivermectin and Hydroxychloroquine that serve exactly the same purpose. While I comprehend that some people may feel safer knowing that there is a vaccine mandate in society, their feeling of safety in this regard is totally without reason or justification. It would be like forcing me to wear a life-jacket while driving in case I somehow drown in the car, with this ludicrous measure somehow supposed to make the person in a different car feel safer. That person's feeling of safety may be real, but it would be completely irrational - so it is with the feeling of safety that some people may feel with a 'vaccine' mandate in place. A 'vaccine' mandate - even if the drug actually worked - would be medical tyranny. This would be unacceptable in a democratic society. Except now South African politicians and bureaucrats are talking about mandating a medical therapy that does not work. How laughably ignorant, stupid, and reprehensible.

Government and UCT have not given the public unbiased and detailed information on the covid injections. People are still unaware that these injections are in trials, have not been approved, and they will be participating in a mass clinical trial for a pandemic that has proved not to be so. The people should be able to use existing and approved medication (that works) as an alternative to an experimental one. This option is not been offered or even considered, why? Where is the transparency in this matter, why is government signing medical trial contracts with pharmaceutical companies without the public's knowledge or consent? No person should ever be discriminated against, be excluded from, or coerced into any form of participation of a medical trial. This goes against our constitution, our human rights, and the Nuremberg Code that was put in place for exactly what you trying to mandate. 	2022-01-05 11:49:34	Western Cape	No I do not	The draft policy in its entirety	Obviously, the vaccine mandate is unconstitutional in terms of the human rights of the general public, specifically the freedom of choice for medical intervention or treatments. Furthermore, this also goes against the post-apartheid South Africa's vision of wider access to education and removing the historical barriers to education. These points make these mandates a strikingly similar environment to apartheid-era UCT or any educational institution during that period that restricted access to education. Some would say vaccines are a necessity to save lives so everyone should be forced, but similarly the apartheid government used 'safety' and other justifications to discriminate and exclude people from education. The real question is, how are forced medical treatments any different to forced racial classifications to divide the country into vaccinated vs. unvaccinated? Have we really moved on from apartheid? Vaccine mandate draft policy by UCT will endeavour to destroy the right to education and will also endorse discrimination amongst students on medical grounds and further undermines the confidentiality of students in relation to medical status. This vaccine policy is not proven effective as it is claimed and propagated as students will still be equally susceptible to covid variants even after taking the jab and why should the unvaccinated be punished for not following the medical tyrannical ideology which has not proven scientific basis. Vaccine policy at UCT if passed into law might trickier riots and social disturbance which will affect the access to quality education and on the other hand vaccine mandates should not supersedes the Constitutionally entrenched rights of UCT students. UCT should provide alternative medical options for those who don't want volunteer in taking the vaccine so that there is a balance approach in this scenario not dictatorship because at the end of the day, UCT will indemnifies itself should adverse reactions be experienced after taking the jab. We must them uphold Medica freedom and freedom of choice amongst the students because the student's bodies are not the temples of UCT or government. We must uphold human rights above vaccine mandates. We must also trust in alternative medicinal options that our scientific research team in South Africa can explore instead of coercing poor students to take vaccine that UCT prescribes. In closing UCT must trust in natural immunity and allow the responsible UCT students to make the call concerning vaccine as medical freedom is still the order of the Constitution. Freedom of choice must be upheld and it must also be noted that there may be undiagnosed underlying conditions in students which will not be known during interview by health professional when one decides to take the shot because the medical conditions are progressives and sometimes undetectable which may further endanger the students when taking the vaccine shot as mandated by UCT which will be suicidal to students because no thorough tests are carried out before the vaccine is administer which will ensure that the students gets a clean bill of health before deciding to take the vaccine from the outcome of the tests, this is called medical freedom not medical dictatorship which South African government and UCT wants to impose on students. I stand for medical freedom as since there is not insurance for life after it is taken, I say let the students make their call on what goes into their bodies. 					What UCT is suggesting (and is now crystal clear for all to see, that the university is no more than a tool for the World Economic Forum who the VC personally and enthusiastically thanked) is in contravention of the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa and the Nuremberg Code. "Voluntary consent of the human subject is absolutely essential."Coercion and mandates fly in the face of this core principle. For those who do not study history are doomed to repeat it, and the last time the principles of the Nuremberg Code were violated,and as the war escalated, this lead to the deaths of hundreds of millions of people; more than 4% of the world's total population at the time. Mandatory medical treatments without voluntary consent and the segregation of society that goes hand in hand with these mandates, will make the atrocities of Apartheid and hence all the good efforts of transformation which UCT is driving, seem completely insignificant by comparison. Due to the nature of the indiscriminate mass vaccine roll outs worldwide, the potential for death and injury is far higher than during WW2.
					In Section 15.1.3 UCT suggests "limiting constitutional rights as little as needed". Even a lay person such as myself can see that this is nonsensical from a legal standpoint. A law is either broken or it is not. And what UCT is suggesting is unconstitutional. We all know about the long struggle against discrimination in South African. In fact for the Constitution to be amended to allow for medical discrimination would require prior public participation in the form of a national referendum, and the simultaneous withdrawal of South Africa from the United Nations and other Supranational Bodies.
					With regards to UCT's suggestion of subjecting vaccine free employees to separation due to incapacity, no such provision for medical discrimination exists in South African law and will result in the case being referred to the CCMA. It is important to note that no employer in South Africa has won a medical discrimination unfair dismissal case against an employee.

	2022-02-01 00:01:20	Western Cape	No I do not	Freedom of choice	I have two student sons – one spent the last two years studying Engineering at UCT and his brother has just matriculated and been accepted by UCT too. Our family had to deal with a high number of deaths in the last two years that weren't Covid related. Primarily cancers and suicides (including youngsters). It spurred us to do a lot more research and these are a few points for further consideration. - There are many highly infectious and transmissible viruses. For example Epstein Barr virus (EBV) and Cytomegalovirus (CMV). - This is only problematic in certain people who are more vulnerable. Environmental and lifestyle factors play a large role, as they do with Covid-19 but not enough is being said about that. What about the responsibility of people in society to look after their own health better? Many people have a choice about smoking or drinking alcohol, eating junk food, over-working, not exercising etc. But poor lifestyle choices is what often lands people in hospital. This needs more careful addressing rather than putting all the responsibility for full hospitals on healthy youngsters. - There are many treatments that help too. Dr. Peter McCullough also raised in testimonies, including to several US Senate Committees: https://vimeo.com/557790537 Other treatments should be explored further too. - Many of the symptoms of "Long Covid" overlap with symptoms of EBV as just one example. In Jan/Feb 2020, a study conducted at Renmin Hospital of Wuhan University reported: "...a high incidence of EBV coinfection in COVID-19 patients. EBV/SARS-CoV-2 coinfection was associated with fever and increased inflammation. EBV reactivation may be associated with the severity of COVID-19." [source] In a study published in May 2021 in the Pathogens journal it was suggested that many "Long Covid" symptoms may be the result of Covid-19 inflammation-induced EBV reactivation. [source] And in July 2021 the Wall Street Journal suggested that reactivated older viruses could be driving some of the coronavirus's debilitating symptoms. [source] In this article, attention was drawn to a review article published in the medical journal "Frontiers in Microbiology" which references many studies relating to how "Immune Dysregulation Promoted by SARS-CoV-2 Can Lead to Reactivation of Already Acquired Neurotrophic Pathogens Such as Herpesviruses" "It is likely that individual patients with a PASC diagnosis have different underlying biological factors driving their symptoms, none of which are mutually exclusive. This paper details mechanisms by which RNA viruses beyond just SARS-CoV-2 have been connected to long-term health consequences. It also reviews literature on acute COVID-19 and other virus-initiated chronic syndromes such as post-Ebola syndrome or ME/CFS to discuss different scenarios for PASC symptom development..... The individualized nature of PASC symptoms suggests that different therapeutic approaches may be required to best manage care for specific patients with the diagnosis." [source] This is a key point. We are not all equal in our gut makeup. Different medical interventions are needed for different people. A one size fits all vaccine approach is highly problematic for some. In 2016 the US Health Department added 5 new viruses to the list of known carcinogens, including EBV. [source] And in private correspondence the Head of the SA Cancer Registry informed me that 30% of cancers in Africa have a viral aetiology (cause). She cited this source. Besides vaccines for cancer and many other diseases there are also variants & mutants to consider so from my perspective it's wiser to proceed with great care and less medical arrogance when introducing a forced cocktail of new vaccines, especially where youngsters and immune compromised people are concerned. Rather allow for a more free exchange of natural healing solutions without stigma and promote healthier lifestyles and habits. The concept of mandatory vaccine passports for certain activities from travel to education and commercial activities isn't new but is very troubling and polarising for those who had negative experiences with previous pharmaceutical advice, resulting in lower levels of trust in the safety. 	2022-01-30 20:46:10	Western Cape	No I do not	Freedom of choice	The efficacy of the vaccine is unproven. People still get covid 19 with the vaccine. People that has already had covid 19, has antibodies that will make covid 19 less deadly (which is the reason why the vaccine is being proposed). The vaccine comes from a rushed process, side effects that does not make the risk to benefit ratio a smart option, especially for younger, healthier individuals. The manufacturers of the vaccine are also exempt from any lawsuits that may arise due to side effects from taking the vaccine. This also intrudes on an individuals right to medical privacy, and freedom of expression, and choice. Currently the only way to get exemption from the vaccine is a DNA test in which it shows whether you have a certain gene that will react negativly, but this is a very expensive and inaccessible test, making it an unrealistic option for most individuals. The Vaers report although estimated that only 10% of cases are reported are a horrific testimony to the deaths and injuries caused by the injections. If you going to force it onto students, then I think it's only right that you as the University sign a document for each and every student that you take full responsibility for any adverse effects that may happen as a result. Even the manufactures of this death shots indemnified themselves against the use of the injection. They want 75 years before all records are made public. I wonder why? Maybe because there will be nobody left alive to follow through. You are a University where you suppose to educate our youth. With this even being suggested makes me doubt whether you actually have the capacity to do logical thinking.	Neels	retired

There have been no long term clinical trials for these mRNA vaccines which means they are still experimental. And even if there were successful long term clinical trials (which there aren't), everyone must still be able to exercise medical freedom of choice and the right to medical privacy. PoPIA is being trampled on. It is against the constitution - freedom of choice, freedom of bodily integrity, the right to basic and further education, etc. Experts now know that the spike protein FROM THE VACCINE is dangerous and attacks the heart and other areas and can be lethal. In addition the vaccine doesn't prevent infection nor transmission. In fact, experts now know that it is more likely for people to be infected by a vaccinated person than an unvaccinated person. In addition, experts now know that Natural Immunity is robust, complete (full antibody response) and durable. Vaccinated people can still spread and contract covid. 	2022-01-26 18:25:07	Free State	No I do not	Freedom of choice	South Africa has been, for the past 27 years, been an example of democracy, freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom to move, the right to education, and the freedom to choose what happens to one's body. Our children's constitutional rights are being infringed upon by tertiary institutions that make experimental vaccines mandatory in order to gain access to their learning institutions. Not only are their right to education being challenged, but also their right to bodily autonomy. This goes against all that SA has fought for and paid a dear price for to make these freedoms a reality. My daughter is in her final year at UFS. She chooses not to be injected with an experimental drug of which it's efficiency is still yet to be proven. Now, she is being denied access to her department, or she has to give proof of her covid status on a weekly basis although she has the right to refuse to disclose her status. I implore the decision makers to urgently reconsider their stand and allow our children to exercise their constitutional rights and finish their studies in order to become productive contributors to the economy of our beautiful country. 	2022-01-26 14:49:25	Western Cape	No I do not	Freedom of choice	It has now been established that the vaccine-candidates do not protect one against getting covid nor does it protect anyone around you as you can still transmit the virus to others. The choice as to whether you want to or not take a vaccine-candidate that has yet to complete its safety trials should be your choice and no one else's, but don't make it out that it is for the protection of those around you. It is not for reasons stated above - you can still get ill and you can still pass it on whether you have had 1 or more injections. UCT you are trampling upon everyone's, student and staffs, right to bodily integrity and trying to wrap it up as workplace safety. If you were really concerned about your students and staff you would not be bullying and coercing them into taking a drug that is still in trail for the next 2 years, without knowing the long term safety. You would be looking around the world and South Africa for alternative ways to deal with Covid, and there are lots of ways that are effective and do no harm. It begs the question though, what do you as UCT get out of forcing the vaccine candidates on students and staff. What do you get out of it as this is not about health?	Lisa	business owner

	2022-01-25 15:44:02	Gauteng	No I do not	Freedom of choice	To whom it may concern, I am most concerned and disgusted with the way these mandates are infringing on my basic human rights. The South African constitution guarantees an individual's right to bodily and psychological integrity. Section 36 states that rights may be limited by laws of general application, but only insofar as this is "reasonable and justifiable in an open and democratic society based on dignity, freedom and equality". Is the mandating of the C19 'vaccines' "reasonable and justifiable"? Experts have noted that there are six requirements that are needed to justify a policy of mandatory vaccination: 1. The 'vaccines' must be properly trialled, tested and approved (this includes full animal studies; pharmacological reports; full registration with the SAHPRA (not Section 21)) 2. The 'vaccines' must be effective at preventing infection and transmission 3. The vaccines must be DURABLE ie: work for a substantial amount of time (at least 1 year) 4. The 'vaccines' must be safe and present negligible risk of harm to the person receiving the drug 5. No other reasonable alternatives exist to prevent or treat the disease 6. The risk or disease being immunised against must be sufficiently serious for the person being given the drug The C19 'vaccines' fail to meet all of the 6 requirements above and we thus need the SAHRC to protect our rights. This pandemic has caused immense divisions to family, friends and other relationships. There has been a stark increase in mental illnesses and suicide rates across the globe. As a South African citizen, I am horrified that our history as a country is deemed irrelevant at such a time as we appear to be nearing medical segregation and inequality once again. 	2022-01-24 06:48:06	Gauteng	No I do not	Freedom of choice	Good day, 1. I do not support the forced vaccine policy. God created us with the freedom to choose. We choose to worship Him or not. This freedom of choice doesn't end with Him but applies to life in general. Anyone trying to impose on this is working against our nature. 2. These vaccines are not preventing anyone from getting, spreading and dying from Covid. God numbered our days. We all going to die but at the time chosen by God. There is no logic in mandating these as they are not doing what they were meant to do. There is no difference between the vaxxed and the unvaxxed. The unvaxxed seem to be far much better than the vaxxed in fighting this virus. Nothing beats natural immunity. Our God-given gift. In conclusion, let people choose what goes into their own bodies. You don't own them. This is also against our South African constitution. The freedom we have was fought for. People died that we may be free. You coming with such policies that are causing discrimination, you want us to re-live the apartheid times. Please STOP! Regards, Freedom of choice and anti-vaxx supporter,	Nomali	employed individual

	2022-01-23 09:01:39	Western Cape	No I do not	Freedom of choice	The policy fails to articulate how the mandatory nature of the policy is linked to a 'safe and healthy' environment at UCT. Recent evidence proves that the vaccine does not prevent transmission. The policy has definitional issues, omissions, and cause for contestation; some are indicated below. The policy is silent on ongoing process for applying for exemption. - Will visiting academics apply for exemption before incurring travel costs? - What is the proposed exemption process for contractors, pay-by claim staff and visitors, taking to account new arrivals throughout the year? The policy is silent about transparency of process for consideration of exemption applications. - What will be the representation on the vaccine panel in terms of staff and students and their expertise? - What are the metrics that the vaccine panel will apply to assess whether beliefs are deeply held? For example, somebody can be deeply spiritual without being a member of a religious institution. - How will the vaccine panel ensure that all exemption applications are treated equally? There is risk that some decisions will be looked on as being very unfair in comparison to others. "Monitoring of policy implementation and outcomes" must include data for adverse side effects. The policy should state the source of data it will use for adverse events and on what basis they will be considered to be relevant or not. "False information and misinformation" is vague in definition and contentious. It is morally wrong to prevent people sharing information that is their 'truth'. For example, people will relay stories of adverse effects. It is questionable that any authority should police the retelling of these stories and personal interpretations / meanings. 	2022-01-22 20:35:12	Western Cape	No I do not	Freedom of choice	Every single UCT student is a sovereign being with individual choice over their body. Hence the famous line, 'my body, my choice'. The right to freedom should not be denied based on someone's choice as to how they take care of their health and what they consent to or not. This is as extreme as any other experience a student might or might not consent to. They have the choice as to what they put in and on their bodies. Mandation in universities is a sign of restriction and closed minded callous thinking, when it should be a place for people to explore their own beliefs and views and feel free to make these descions without an overbearing totalitarian hand signaling that their choice is 'wrong' and punishing them for it. In the end, we each know our own bodies better than anyone else, and if someone else's opinion is wanted it will be sought out. Let's look at the broader picture here, where human rights are coming into question. The decisions we make today will have a big impact on future policies. If we allow educational facilities to make our decisions for us regarding this, what other freedoms and human rights will they defy in the name of 'caring' for safety. This is about individual choice, freedom and basic human rights. Another caution to take into consideration, is that there is not one person who has had this vaccine that has already lived a full and long life post-jab. It is still in its experimental phase. We do not know what could happen. It is so important that there is no persuasion, coercion or manipulation around each student making their own choice.	Montana

	2022-01-22 11:56:17	Western Cape	No I do not	Freedom of choice	I do not support the idea of mandatory vaccinations. As a UCT alumni I'm disappointed that this was even considered by UCT. Vaccines have been shown not to stop the spread of Covid-19. Therefore there's no logic in forcing everyone to vaccinated. The vaccines have also clearly been shown not to do what they were supposed to. They are proving to be largely ineffective against the omicron variant. And possibly will be less so to the next variant. Even the argument that they prevent (or reduce) serious illness and death is no longer valid, as the latest variant is so far not leading to serious illness or death – so this needs to be monitored first. On top of this, the effectiveness of vaccines has been shown to wear off after approx 4 – 6months, and there is no idea yet of what damage a continuous regimen of 3 - 6monthly boosters could do to our immune systems. Especially to prevent something that now equates to a flu. And actually, compared Europe, SA is doing pretty well with regards Covid fatalities despite low vaccination rates. So let people decide for themselves and continue encouraging those more vulnerable to Covid, the elderly, obese and those with co-morbidities to get vaccinated. For the rest, warn them of the adverse effects (as these are real and relevant) and let them weigh up their risks and decide for themselves.	Jacques	business owner

Good Day I am writing this as a concerned employee and South African citizen. No company, university nor government can dictate to its citizens or employees what they can and cannot do with their body especially in terms of this "vaccine" as it offers nothing in terms of protection and maybe some evidence in reducing severe disease however that statement in itself is problematic as a vaccine should not prevent severe disease but prevent you from catching the "virus". 	2022-01-20 11:32:24	Western Cape	No I do not	Freedom of choice	Much new information that was previously unknown or suppressed is coming to the fore, which may prove implementation of a mandatory vaccine policy not only an infringement of rights to privacy, bodily integrity, freedom of religion, freedom of belief, and/or freedom of opinion, but also a forcing of people to inject harmful substance which the university would then be held liable for. There's been a whole new trend in how countries, businesses, and institutions are choosing to manage the pandemic in more recent weeks since the call for comment on the draft UCT Vaccine Mandate Policy was issued by Professor Mamokgethi Phakeng on 20 December 2021. The South African government has decided to take a more pragmatic approach in pursuit of a policy that does not blindly adopt the principle of actions that are not feasible in the local context, and ultimately yield nominal benefit. The main element of the new approach arises from a high level of population immunity which has largely evolved through natural infection over the course of the first three waves and prior to the advent of vaccination. As a post-graduate student in my final semester, I am able to safely work remotely within the academic environment without posing any wide risk to campus-based staff and entities. The implementation of a mandatory vaccination policy for all students and staff at the University of Cape Town will limit access to education, and deny students such as myself, who have invested heavily in their education and already spent large sums of money with the university the benefit and reward of completing their studies. Informed consent is formed from knowing the benefits and risks of a medical procedure, then giving voluntary consent with no punishment if not consenting. I do not see how the students are allowed to give their informed consent if they are not allowed to study if they do not receive the vaccine. I understand that the vaccine is seen to reduce covid-19 spread. but i am concerned about the longterm effects of mandating medical procedures, or mandating something like this, which has very controversy opinions. 					First of all, I'm thankful to Prof Phakeng and UCT Senate for initiating this step as the VC promised during our Alumni AGM in Dec 2021 after my question if they were enough public engagement. My open-edit doc has more details which were shared to VC and other UCT communities interested: https://docs.google.com/document/u/1/d/1jriIxxqZaiyAffdE1w2RqhoWMrSU4ZLeRgYwrTPbLpc/mobilebasic?userstoinvite=mwparadza@gmail.com 1. UCT as promoting academic of excellence should first establish a multi-disciplinary & independent academic researchers to have access to SAHPRA data & others to confirm: complying with vaccine manufacturing process (locally & internationally), vaccine efficacy, compliance (locally & internationally) in setting up COVID vaccination sites, expiration period of vaccines & scientific evidence or data of countries that reached population immunisation at 70% of vaccinated and double check the victims of side effects, advert events & others who were reported and how the gvt addressed the issue Answer: no country so far, even Israel who reached more than 70% of vaccinated couldn't reach herd immunity 2. Vaccine manufacturers or gvt or UCT should be reliable in case of problem associated with vaccination to comply with the rules of vaccination. Answer: None so far is reliable, at your own risk 3. Is Vaccine efficacy = 100%. Answer: No 4. Does Vaccine preventing disease? Answer: No, but reduce illness associated with COVID but not in 100% efficacy which a drug against COVID can also do 5. Did FDA approved most of COVID vaccine, not yet even J & J vaccine is still authorised under emergency use 6. Can SA constitution approve vaccine manufacturing? Section 12 of the constitution insists about the freedom of choice. Hence, requiring vaccine mandatory will require the change of the constitution 7. Can the unvaccinated affect vaccinated safety? Answer: no if both continue to apply social distancing, wearing of mask in public places and continue testing and other measures which are undiscovered 8. Is the current vaccine consent form listing all possible side effect, advert events as required prior to being vaccinated. Answer is no 9. Does the vaccination centre inform the candidates or public about some past medical conditions which may interfere with vaccine intake? Answer: more research are needed based on advert events & other problems y associated to establish such correlation. Hence, based on statements above, mandatory vaccination cannot work for UCT or any other institution and people in consultation with their doctors with their medical files & research can freely decide especially if their immune system seems unable to handle such virus and virol load

					Even cursory research into the narrative around covid-19 vaccines provides ample proof that: 1) the mainstream's narrative is not the whole picture 2) prophylactic methods to covid-19 other than the vaccine are available and effective 3) it is not necessarily true that non-vaccinated people cause mutations of the virus: there is an equally strong argument that vaccinating too early in the pandemic has been the cause of the variants. As an alumnus, I have always looked to UCT as a proponent of freedom of thought, freedom of choice, tolerance, and critical thinking. It is objective fact that it is too early in the trajectory of the covid-19 virus for anyone to know conclusively whether vaccination is the best method to overcome the pandemic. So many medical professionals have spoken out against the vaccine that it can only be regarded as bigoted of UCT to enforce the pro-covid-vaccine mindset upon the entire UCT community by mandating this vaccine. Doing so propounds neither freedom of choice, nor freedom of thought, nor critical thinking, nor tolerance. If this goes ahead, UCT will in objective truth no longer stand for what it claims to stand for. This is a big moment for this time-tested institution: will it have the courage to stand against ubiquitous medical hegemony, or will it wash its dignity away with its values by kowtowing to an (at best) flawed narrative? Whichever way the decision goes will be of enormous consequence to human freedom on the entire African continent. Take courage, UCT, and respect each individual in your community enough to trust that they will make the right choices for themselves and for the whole.

Every single individual should have the freedom to choose being vaccinated or not. Both vaccinated and unvaccinated can be infected, asymptomatic and or carriers of the virus. I believe it is undemocratic to have mandatory vaccination enforced and discriminatory to those that chose to be different. Unvaccinated are fully aware of the risks their choices entail. Unvaccinated are usually a lot more cautious as they know vaccinated could be carriers without symptoms. Annually there are many more people that die of Malaria and of hunger/poverty across the world. Is there a vaccine for that? Don't follow the USA and others like sheep. 	2022-01-11 23:03:53	Western Cape	No I do not	Freedom of choice	As an institution that advocates for liberty, promotes free-thinking, and reflects the values of the Constitution of South Africa, implementing a mandatory vaccination policy goes against the rights of freedom of choice, freedom of religion, the right to bodily integrity, and access to education. Apart from the social impact, the university will lose revenue from students who do not want to be vaccinated yet would like to attend a tertiary education institution and receive an in-person college experience. Furthermore, the businesses on campus will suffer, while the university will still incur the same running costs for electricity and maintenance of buildings while less people use the facilities. Additionally, the university is likely to lose funding from individuals and institutions who do not support mandatory vaccines. There is sufficient proof that whether vaccinated or not a person can transmit COVID., get sick from COVID or die. During December a women spoke to me and told me of her nightmare story after taking the vaccine as she had major side affect which she reported and has decided not to take the booster. Her doctor told her that he had received a letter stating that he was not allowed to diagnose a symptoms of the vaccine as a direct side affect. Since when is anyone except for God responsible for me or my children's health and body. Note the no of Corona deaths in the last 3 months of 2021 worldwide=314,687. Number of death by car accidents world wide =393.479. So perhaps driving is the new pandemic and we should take every ones licences away and just to be sure remove their car keys. Oh and let's not forget the number of cancer patients that died in the last 3 months. A whopping 1,164,714, so what do we do about them as no one seems to have found a cure or vaccine for cancer patients. Come on guys wake up. I fail to see the reasoning to mandate vaccination to allow access to any area, never mind universities. The vaccine gives individual protection only and as such, should be the individual's choice to take it or not as it holds not benefits for protecting others. I would also like to add that it is up to the government to expand hospital capacity, which they have failed to do these last two years. Thus, they have no right to force the public to get vaccinated to "save hospital capacity". Government failure does not justify mandatory vaccination.	Lindi	employed individual

2022-01-04 21:51:20	Limpopo	No I do not	Freedom of choice	I understand that you are considering mandating your staff and students to be vaccinated against COVID-19 in order to retain rightto access of your facility. I understand further that some members of staff and students feel threatened by the SARS-CoV2 (the "Virus"). Certainly older people and those with comorbidities are at risk. I also understand that the vaccines have been sold to us as the keys to the shackles that have been placed on our lives and that many just want to get out of the nightmare that our lives have become. There are, however, reasons not to be fearful. All viruses attenuate over time and science dictates that COVID-19 will become less virulent over time. Although COVID-19 is a serious disease, the reality is that more than 99% of people who are infected survive. COVID-19 is a disease that disproportionately affects older people in our society making it easier to focus protection on those most at risk. The World Health Organisation ("WHO") puts the average infection fatality rate at 0.15%, but for people under 40, the risks are even lower. Whilst the vaccines are less efficacious than initially hoped, they nevertheless seem to offer good protection to the vulnerable from death and hospitalisation. We also have vastly improved treatments for COVID-19 that are contributing to increasing survival rates. Vaccines are also not a panacea. We will never be able to rid the virus from our world. We know that the virus circulates amongst animals and it is probable that it came to humans via animal transmission. Even if it were possible to vaccinate every person on the planet, we cannot vaccinate every susceptible animal. Moreover, vaccinated people can become infected and can pass on the virus to others such that the virus can continue to circulate amongst the vaccinated. The vaccines are not approved drugs in South Africa. Only the Pfizer vaccine has received approval from the FDA and that in controversial circumstances. In South Africa, the authorisation is for 6 months only and any employee vaccination plan would need to be withdrawn if the state of disaster ends. The initial trials that have been completed suggested that there were a number of serious short-term side effects. The list of short-term side effects is constantly being expanded as we learn more about the vaccines. There have been a number of worrying developments. More adverse events have been reported into government-run adverse events systems the world over from the COVID-19 vaccines than all other vaccines combined over the last 30 years. Whereas the spike proteins produced as a reaction to the mRNA vaccines were supposed to remain in the deltoid muscle, leakage to other parts of the body has now been shown. Notably, the production of spike proteins in receptors in the ovaries and testes (which was not contemplated by the manufacturers) could have an impact on fertility especially with regular doses of vaccine. This needs to be investigated. Incidents of heart inflammation in the young have exceeded expectations. The long-term impacts of the vaccines have not been measured. The manufacturers of the vaccines are indemnified against all liability for the vaccines, meaning that those who mandate them carry a higher burden of liability if there is a problem. We acknowledge the arguments that vaccines have been around for many years and that some vaccines are mandated for travel. We note however that the mRNA vaccines that are in use in South Africa are a novel technology that cannot be compared with prior vaccines (some of which have been shown in the past to be unsafe). We also note that these are "leaky vaccines" being distributed during a pandemic unlike other vaccines currently in use. In countries with high vaccination rates, there have been mixed results from the vaccines. The US CDC recently acknowledged waning immunity in the vaccinated and will soon require a third shot for people who were vaccinated more than 8 months previously. Most countries have not removed the restrictions imposed on daily life despite high vaccination rates. Even with 100% of the population vaccinated, outbreaks have occurred on ships and the main presumed function of the vaccines currently is to protect against severe disease. Vaccines have never been mandated as a prerequisite for employment in South Africa. Our Constitution (including Sections 9 and 12 of the Constitution) protects against discrimination and guarantees the right to bodily integrity. On the other hand, the courts have affirmed that employers do not have the right to enquire as to employees' or prospective employees' status when it comes to the HI virus. HIV/AIDS is a far more devastating illness than COVID-19, as set out above, accordingly the protections afforded to HIV/AIDS patients can readily be inferred to apply to those persons who are not vaccinated against SARS-COV-2. Government has given reassurances that vaccines will never be mandated by law. Accordingly, the UCT would be exposing itself to significant liability were it to elect to do something never before done in South Africa. We do not believe that it is consistent with the democratic ideals enshrined in the South African Constitution to compel employees or students to give up sovereignty over their own bodies in order to retain their right to access. The right to make our own decisions about our health and bodies are basic human rights entrenched in international law and our Constitution. We believe that a decision to mandate vaccines will create a divisive corporate culture and that it will act as a barrier to retaining and attracting talent. The vaccines appear to protect those who have taken them. Vaccinated staff and students are, therefore, protected. Even if it were true that the unvaccinated have a moral obligation to protect the rest of society, there is no scientific basis for compulsory vaccination given that the vaccines do not prevent transmission and that we cannot eliminate COVID-19. It is not the role of the UCT to impose morals on the staff and students through coercion. I see this as unacceptable in a democracy that has a history of controlling access to education through discrimination and cannot tolerate such a culture spreading in our country. We call on you, therefore, to reject mandatory vaccine systems and to create an inclusive culture at the UCT.	Jan	retired

	2022-01-04 20:48:51	Gauteng	No I do not	Freedom of choice	Citizens should start informing themselves & break away from the main stream media, who does not disclose the hundreds of thousands of people who already died from the vaccine. Look at Australia, it has become a fascist state, with mandatory vaccination policies. In simple language, this poisonous and deadly injection of synthetic foreign material into the bodies of those accepting this shot, will cause extreme inflammatory and auto-immune diseases, and with nanoparticle technology injected as well, these pathogens will be able to invade every cell in the body as well as in the brain. This creates deadly consequences, and can cause any number of horrible diseases, adverse reactions, and death. Wearing masks that steal valuable oxygen, isolation, and any other draconian measures that cause extreme stress to the body will only enhance the dangerous effects possible. The same is true of most all those that have received vaccines or flu shots in the past, and due to the nature of this toxic brew, the possibility of having your body attack itself in what is called a cytokine storm, is much more likely to occur after taking this injection. The uninformed public is targeted first and foremost, simply believing the government would never lie to them. The government is more than lying and these health professionals go on the record to document the government and media lies. As the vaccine is set to kill and cripple the seniors and the uninformed in the first wave of genocide, their vaccine induced deaths and disease states will be used as the excuse to force the vaccine on everyone else, as the evil media and corrupt government will simply re-label the medical genocide as COVID-19 or something more deadly than COVID. This has been the plan the entire time. It's all a depopulation weapon to achieve the mass extermination of the human race The spike protein is a depopulation weapon. The "vaccine" is a Soylent Green-style extermination / suicide shot that has been repackaged as "medicine." The "pandemic" was media hysteria whipped up to create panic and widespread demand for the vaccine so that people wouldn't resist the extermination shots. I believe these vaccines will change the DNA of a person and will be mandated soon as a false cure and may include an RFID microchip and or trackable nanobots. Also, I suppose the vaccine pill could also alter our DNA and include nanobots and Luciferase enzymes. In addition, the quantum dot tattoo may also be used and have similar functions as the other ones. I say stay away from it all and count it all as damnable and all potentially the Mark of the Beast! If you accept the mRNA vaccine it will most likely change your DNA and cause you to be a hybrid Nephilim which is no longer a creation of God and therefore I believe irredeemable. In addition, the other false solutions are equally as damning in my opinion and we should resist all COVID-19 solutions from the government and put our trust in Jesus Christ alone! 	2022-01-04 20:15:49	Western Cape	No I do not	Freedom of choice	Mandated "vaccination" is illegal and Constitutionally impossible in South Africa which is very easy to prove. Every single one of the jabs on offer are classified experimental to which all the manufacturers agree. The earliest possible experiment completion date is 2023, and that may now be impossible given that the experiments have been unblinded. That the jabs have been "approved" under Emergency Use Authorisation (EUA) does NOT MEAN THAT THE EXPERIMENTS are terminated and they must still legally be completed. So to be clear, all the jabs are experimental which President Ramaphosa very recently confirmed publicly thanking all the people who have participated in this medical experiment, expressly using the the word experiment. South Africans can be grateful for paragraph 12 (2) (c) of the Constitution which reads: 12 (2) Everyone has the right to bodily and psychological integrity, which includes the right— (c) not to be subjected to medical or scientific experiments without their informed consent. Further more 12 (2) (c) is defined a non-derogable right which means a permanent right that cannot be changed. Ever, like the right to life. This means that NO one can be mandated or forced to participate in ANY medical experiment without their freely given INFORMED consent. Remember ALL the jabs on offer are medical experiments, at least until 2023. And after 2023 paragraph 12 (2) (b) kicks in (well it's already in force) provided it has not been changed which is theoretically possible but unlikely. 12 (2) Everyone has the right to bodily and psychological integrity, which includes the right— (b) to security in and control over their body. Conclusion: Given that ALL the jabs are experimental, even though the may have been "approved" for wide spread experimental use but only under emergency use authorisation, and then ONLY if INFORMED consent is given WHICH IS REQUIRED, each and every South African has the non-derogable right to decline the jab and not to be discriminated against from doing so. A valid question that has been asked is; "Well if mandated jabs are impossible, then won't the ANC then just make laws and / or regulations making the lives of the "unvaccinated" impossible? This is impossible under Section 9, Equality, of the Constitution, which is sometimes referred to as the anti-Apartheid clause. Equality 9. (1) Everyone is equal before the law and has the right to equal protection and benefit of the law. (2) Equality includes the full and equal enjoyment of all rights and freedoms..... etc.... Effectively we are all subject to the same laws, which was not the case under Apartheid. This means that the government CANNOT make one set of laws for the "vaccinated" and another set of laws for the "unvaccinated". 70% of South Africans are "unvaccinated".	Zahir	employed individual

					Vaccine Mandate
					Thank you for the opportunity to comment on UCT's proposed vaccine mandate policy. As a South African citizen whose child is at university, I strongly oppose mandatory vaccines.
					Introducing a vaccine mandate policy would result in unfair discrimination. The South African constitution in the Bill of Rights affords us all the rights to "freedom of choice", right to bodily and psychological integrity and the right "not to be subjected to medical or scientific experiments without their informed consent." Informed consent is a principle in medical ethics and medical law that a patient should have sufficient information before making their own decisions about their medical care. It should be noted that the commission for gender equality warns against imposing mandatory vaccines for employees and students and measures should not trample the basic human rights that are enshrined in the constitution.
					Scientific studies now show that the vaccines do not stop or reduce Covid-19 transmission, and do not reduce the outcomes associated with Covid-19. Peak viral loads did not differ by vaccination status or variant type. "The US Centres for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) identifies four of the top five countries with the highest vaccination population as "high transmission" countries. Many decision makers assume that the vaccinated can be excluded as a source of transmission. It appears to be grossly negligent to ignore the vaccinated population as a possible and relevant source of transmission when deciding about public health control measures." https://doi.org/10.1016/j.lanep.2021.100272
					Adverse effects reported include thrombosis, stroke, myocarditis and Guillian Barre syndrome to name a few. These may be life-threatening adverse events and mandating a vaccine that could result in the death of an individual, I regard as irresponsible. A new study published on January 25, 2022, on JAMA Network, has shown that the risk of myocarditis following mRNA COVID Vaccination is around 133 times greater than the background risk in the population. The 18 to 24 male age group saw significantly higher risk of myocarditis for both Pfizer's and Moderna's products. Given the plethora of studies confirming the link between vaccination and myocarditis, the CDC has commenced active surveillance of adolescents and young adults to monitor their progress following heart-related incidents. Long-term outcome data, however, are not yet available. Given this risk and that university students are young individuals falling into the high-risk age group for myocarditis, informed consent must include giving them this recent evidence and fully knowing that their participation in vaccine rollouts would be used for the long-term data that we are still awaiting.
					It is important to note that the proportion of people with immunity to Covid-19 (from infection and/or vaccination) has risen substantially, exceeding 60-80% in several serosurveys in South Africa. Recent evidence from the CDC shows that natural immunity from previous infection offers better protection than the current vaccines. Important to note that top Israel immunologist, Cyrille Cohen advises that vaccine passports should be phased out in the Omicron era as the virus is 'better at immunizing than the vaccine'. South Africa has a high population of patients with previous exposure to Covid-19 infection. Mandating a vaccine to this population knowing that the adverse effects haven't been completely studied, I regard as irresponsible and negligent. I think it would be important to note that in the US, the supreme court overturned the government's decision on mandatory vaccines for large employers and federal employees, when evidence was presented to the courts.
					There has been a call to scrap some remaining Covid regulations and Professor Madhi says the now reversed decision to do away with quarantine and contact tracing was informed by science and slammed the national department of Health's decision to pause its plan to do so.
					The University of Cape Town is regarded as an institution with access to experts in the departments of both law and health, and one would expect that such a world renowned institution would give critical thinking to the above mentioned so that the students will be able to make an informed decision when deciding on whether to vaccinate or not	Thega	business owner

Three simple questions, I - and all peoples - ought to ask: 1) Does the vaccine prevent transmission of the virus? 2) Does it prevent acquisition of Covid-19? 3) If "symptoms are reduced" by taking the vaccine (to what extent?), however, one can still experience side-effects (known & unknown), surely it should be the choice of the person to take the vaccine or not? Or, is UCT, the institution, willing to take responsibility for any and all adverse effects? Oneendlebe uvile.	Tim	student

	2022-01-22 14:07:14	KwaZulu- Natal	No I do not	Access to education	As a seat of education, I am dismayed that this has even been suggested. The 'pandemic' is rapidly becoming 'endemic' and it makes no sense to mandate an experimental gene therapy 'vaccine' for students for whom the risk of such far outweighs the risk of the virus itself. The vaccine has been proven in numerous peer reviewed papers and international studies to have dwindling to zero efficacy against subsequent variants of the virus. An esteemed university such as UCT should be standing against oppression and this mandate would be an oppression of individual freedoms which will lead to a far greater erosion of freedoms in time - something the educated leaders of UCT would be well aware of. It is folly to pander to the propaganda-created, fear-driven vote of the populace over scientific evidence that has been presented which is resulting in countries worldwide revoking such overreaching mandates. Should UCT mandate vaccines it would show just how far behind in the research they are - not ideal for garnering respect as a flagship university. Mandating vaccines is discriminatory and will deny access to education to those in the population who prefer not to participate in a medical trial.	Louide	employed individual

It has been proven that vaccines do not stop the spread of the virus, and if so why make it mandatory if the students are still required to follow necessary COVID restrictions? I do not believe that it is fair to force students to take the vaccine, as these are young adults our future who we expect to be able to make their own decisions. This is nothing else than politics and in SA we cannot afford to have some sort of mandate that prohibits someone of an education. It is absolutely ludicrous and don't tell me to follow science, there is no such thing, you follow scientists and the "pandemic" has been created and is used for ulterior motives, now young people who has worked hard and has the ability for Higher education needs to sacrifice their own personal believe and who knows maybe their health for others to feel they are doing society a favor by imposing such measures as forced vaccinations. 	2022-01-05 22:36:49	Gauteng	No I do not	Access to education	This is unacceptable and mocks our constitution. South Africa is not the USA or Australia. Our Constitution actually matters over here! Pfizer scientists admitted on video that our natural immunity (if previously infected) is stronger and lasts longer than the man-made vaccines. Yet you make it your business to decide whether a student, who may have a strong natural immunity, should get the vaccine. That boils down to medical advice without proper consult, since all of us are different, and it is unethical. As a University you should know better, at least have the decency to care about facts, since you are supposedly teaching facts to young adults. Fact: natural immunity exists according to (unbiased and real) science. Fact: You can just as easily spread Covid when you are vaccinated compared to when you are unvaccinated. Fact: There is no proof that the vaccine saved anyone's life, since such proof would entail their previous death. Logic! Many have survived Covid before the vaccine even existed. Should they thank the coffee they had for saving them? Do you have any idea how ridiculous your arguments are? This will be written up in history and people will associate institutions with mandatory vaccine policies with radical disasters and minds that naively held views that were very far behind in time. It can easily be compared to the pass laws. Great essay material in future. May the policy makers' first names be well known by then. Not like the names of famous freedom fighters in all of history, but rather their infamous oppositions. You should have no right to request medical information from students, and no right to discriminate based on it. It is completely ridiculous, especially in South Africa. We may not be a first world country, but our Constitution is a winner in this world. Not because of anything other than freedom! Please Google "democracy" before you refer to it again. And just like Covid, the vaccine isn't safe for everyone to get (FACT), so you will and must be held liable for each injury and death you cause if this outlandish policy is approved. Even if such accountability will only occur once you are long gone. It won't be the first time that a new generation sees the mistakes of the past one, and marks it with shame by burning buildings or cancelling names. The truth will always find a way to survive. You feel well accepted by society right now, by having the audacity to even draft such irresponsible policies, but don't get too comfortable. Not even the Government made it mandatory. Why do you suppose? Because the moment you do that, there's liability! You are trying to limit very important human rights in SA, one being freedom of education, and the moment you approve this policy, just like in labour law, when you deprive someone of a basic human right, by setting ultimatums before allowing them to enjoy such right, it is force. And since you are forcing people whose medical circumstances and backgrounds are unknown to you, to take part in a medical procedure, you are being irresponsible and quite frankly, non-South-African. Firstly, as someone who had covid and have a natural immunity to the virus I find it strange that this is not part of the passport conversation. Natural immunity will always trump vaccine immunity, yet there is no mention of adding natural immunity to the vaccine passport or giving people with natural immunity the same freedom as is planned for the vaccinated. I also don't believe that people should be forced to take a vaccine which they are viewing as a risk to their health. As we are seeing in countries with large numbers of vaccinated people, the vaccine is not going to stop covid from spreading, whether you've had the vaccine or not you can still carry and spread the virus. 	2022-01-14 12:27:16	Western Cape	Not fully	Other	Then UCT vaccine mandate is complicated. My initial response was to response "Yes, I support." I support the idea that any new student registering at UCT for the first time should be vaccinated. I do NOT think current students should be unable to return without a vaccination - that feels too much like unfair exclusion from academics and would be far too disruptive to lives. I think the vaccine mandate must be scrutinised very carefully to see which people are being the most excluded. Perhaps a better solution is to start the year and embark on an aggressive education campaign - put a vaccination on campus. Have people constantly engaging with the students to encourage them to get vaccinated. I think adjusting the vaccination mandate to be different depending on your level of study could be a good idea as well - if you want to do a honours/masters/PhD and the work is based mainly on campus, enforce a vaccine mandate. For undergraduate students it needs to be looked at much more carefully. I am in full support of everyone being vaccinated and I am in full support of private sector businesses enforcing vaccine mandates. That makes sense. Public institutions I think need to be more careful.	Amy	business owner

While vaccines might not stop never variants it does still prevent severe illness and therefore takes the pressure of our hospitals and allows us to regain some form of normality. All institutions and shops, public spaces etc should work towards the implementation of mandatory vaccination.	Jurgen	employed individual

	2022-01-12 12:30:27	Eastern Cape	Yes I do	The draft policy in its entirety	My freedom, maybe even my right to life, is negatively affected by those who choose not to vaccinate. Having been vaccinated, I now help protect those who choose not to be vaccinated, while they present me with the threat of infecting me.	Jean	retired
	2022-01-12 10:35:17	Western Cape	Yes I do	The draft policy in its entirety	Your policy has been adopted to minimize infections however its been proven that the vaccine does not stop infections and assist vaccinated people from not infecting their loved ones. If its to minimize the severity of symptoms then i would request proof that your current death rate is mostly in favour of the unvaccinated as myself and half of my unvaccinated acquaintances was diagnosed with the new strain and we experienced the same mild symptoms as those thats been vaccinated. The current infection rate and death rate does not justify your radical approach towards covid as the recovery rate is over 97 % a rate you r welcomed to contradict. If u have any sensible reason that can justify your policy then please table it	Desmond	unemployed individual

	2022-01-06 07:53:28	Gauteng	Yes I do	Mandatory vaccinations in Universities	The only way out of this pandemic is by everyone playing their part by vaccinating to lesser the chances of future outbreaks and chances on other, more severe mutations being formed. The vaccine hesitation, being driven by a false narrative of conspiracy thinkers, has no place in modern society. People seem to have forgotten why less babies die these days...because of the vaccination programme all babies are enrolled in at birth, and no-one seems to care about.	Engelman	business owner
	2022-01-05 11:22:23	Mpumalanga	Yes I do	Mandatory vaccinations in Universities	I feel that all work places, tertiary institutions, and schools should all have mandatory vaccine ruling in place. To resist vaccine is absurd in this climate. Scientific data shows that the vaccine is the only way to prevent the virus from crippling the economy and lives.	Carol	employed individual
