2022-10-05 14:49:48	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Reducing the taxes that government take from the resale of fuel, can reduce the burden and expenses for final consumers and reduce the ever increasing inflation costs	Johann	employed individual
2022-09-23 11:54:20	Western Cape		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Taxpayers are milked dry to fund corrupt government departments where funds just disappear and are not used to improve road safety. Road safety is a joke as thousands of people are killed annually due to no policing of speeding, overloaded, and unroadworthy vehicles by unlicensed drivers on shockingly poor roads. Statics show more taxes and levies do not lead to improved road safety.	Dietrich	employed individual

2022-09-14 07:59:32	KwaZulu-Natal		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	This is the fastest way government can try to relieve their own shortfalls as all citizens are reliant on the fuel price.	Fourene	employed individual

2022-09-07 21:20:09	Free State		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Billions of rands are collected from the fuel price, and how much is actually spent on road maintenance and road infrastructure in general? How much accountability and transparency is there regarding what happens with the taxes that is collected from the fuel price? Is the fuel tax a percentage of the fuel price or a specific amount per liter, independently calculated from the fuel price? If it is a percentage, then the government is collected astronomical amounts of taxpayer money with this high fuel price! Again, where is the accountability and transparency?	Gert	employed individual

2022-09-04 16:24:28	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	We are among the highest taxed citizens in the world, this in order to fund the highest income inequality and largest government wage bill in the world. We are taxed to the hilt and double and even triple taxed in some cases especially in relation to vehicle and road use, along with the multiple vat payments that accompany the various costs we are subjected to including repairs and maintenance due to poorly maintained roads and potholes. The almost 1/3 in fuel taxes we are currently paying is ridiculous, this is another scam by the criminal enterprise running this country and it must be reviewed and put to an end, with as immediate an effect as possible.	Ncedo	employed individual
2022-09-01 17:29:36	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	The fuel levy and additional taxes should NOT be used to suppliment other taxes, and each driver / owner of a veicle shuold be rquired to have 3rd party insurance to cover accidents. This should be part of the responsibility of owning a vehicle	Daniel	employed individual

2022-08-22 12:26:31	Gauteng	Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	We are constantly being taxed via the petrol price and government has realised that this is the easiest way for it to fill it's coffers without accountability for the millions that they are squandering and greasing each others palms with. Accountability is key. Please go ahead and give them some red tape for a change. Prevent them from dipping into our live savings; pensions; wages and salaries even further. There isn't enough dependable public transport systems. Workers are forced to pay more for private transport and thus earn less. Bring this to an end! Taxes should be reasonable and affordable for the workforce keeping government's coffers full.	Rajni	employed individual

2022-08-18 07:58:49	Gauteng	Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	The public is way overtaxed in every faset and receiving nothing in return. The condition of our roads is clear evidence of this. An audit in the entirety of fuel taxes is a must, not only to determine if the public is paying too much, but also what is being done with the money.	Mauritz	employed individual

2022-08-04 19:52:42	Gauteng	Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Fuel prices are a hidden way to tap more money from tax earning citizens that commute daily to work, not forgetting our millions of parents and service providers who have to transport children to schools and students.	Hettie	employed individual
2022-08-04 11:38:04	Western Cape	Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	The land is in a financial state but the government increases every thing even there salary and the ordinary people do not have jobs or do not even get a big salary. The government should think about their people and not themselves. The people in government should pay less so that they can understand what the rest of your country feel. Why must they earn so much for sleeping in their chairs. I don't understand.	Tharina	employed individual
2022-08-04 08:22:59	Western Cape	Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Feel that this could be avoided with correct management and planning, and less fuel tax.	Paul	employed individual

2022-08-03 22:01:47	Mpumalanga	Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	The ANC want every one to be poor. easy to control and manipulate poor people. they milk the people who are honest and the people who pay taxes. they know what they are doing and they got a plan. they serve the one who steal, destroy and kill. the day will come when the righteous people will be conethen all will see who stay behind.	Coenraad	employed individual
2022-08-03 21:06:00	Western Cape	Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Fuel is part of distribution and cost. Pre ANC kak we had a fully functional railway service. Then came these brainless sperms and demolish railways. They knew petrol is a milking cow. It works in their favor, as they pocket more and more. The SOCs are bankrupt. But the petrol price must foot the bill. Bull shit. Get a better way of establishing the price.	Frikkie	employed individual

2022-08-03 09:32:28	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	How can the SA government charge 70%-80% taxes of fuel ? This is pure corruption compared to other african nations such as Nigeria where fuel costs around R6 a litre. The cost of fuel should be based on supply and demand.	Philip	employed individual

2022-08-02 15:01:59	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	The taxpayers keep paying more to fund theft and corruption in government. We want to know exactly where the fuel is spent. Otherwise, remove the fuel levy and the theft of it ends	Gat	employed individual
2022-08-02 13:00:54	North West		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Fuel levies are treated like the government's dedicated ATM. That needs to change.	Jacques	employed individual
2022-08-02 10:10:22	Western Cape		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Fuel prices are way too high. Neighbouring countries that get their fuel from SA sell their fuel cheaper than our fuel. The taxes on fuel are too high	Jacques	employed individual
2022-08-02 07:45:35	North West		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	What is the African Nationals Cadres doing with all the taxes and levies? Oh, they don't fix roads, they don't lower fuel prices, they pocket it! An independent body should have long ago already reviewed the fuel price. Keep the minister away from this review process. The review body should review fuel prices on a monthly basis and in consultation with economist, actuaries and true fuel experts.	D	employed individual
2022-08-01 21:11:43	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	I believe that we are being overtaxed on fuel and the money is not being used for the right purposes, the conditions of our roads is proof thereof, it is also affecting our inflation and adding to the cost of food prices where the majority of our people are battling to put food on our tables, it is also adding to cost of transportation public and private,	Brendon	employed individual

2022-08-01 09:38:40	KwaZulu-Natal		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	We needed an option to select all of the above. The constant fuel increases have a chain reaction causing everything to go up, making life impossible for most people, and those who may have just been scrapping by are now unable to make it through. All this translates to is more poverty-stricken South African citizens. As you can tell, this equals more turning to crime - a vicious cycle. The taxes on the fuel price are just another way we as taxpayers are being taken for fools - there is enough money for the state to continue its duties if they plugged the corruption hole. If you think the increase in petrol and the increase of goods after that, as a result, is conducive to a thriving economy, you have another thing coming.	Meegan	employed individual
2022-08-01 08:22:13	Mpumalanga		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Money from taxes is being misappropriated. The ridiculous amounts demanded for taxes of every kind are consistently being used to line the pockets of the corrupt ANC. Where is the levies going that are supposed to be going to the road accident fund or the repair of the roads? Why are we paying e-tolls and extortant toll-fees when we already pay these levies. 2022-07-31 20:50:44	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Inexcusable the situation caused by an inept government Legislation has closed all our refineries so now only imports at our exchange rate as pathetically caused by same government The strategic fuel reserves sold off at 10% of value without consequence by the same government The entire system and economic development plan and policy needs review and correction. Including labour laws. Trade laws and workable environmental solutions	Craig	employed individual
2022-07-23 14:19:23	Northern Cape		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	A large portion of our fuel cost is taxes. Where do they go? And why do I have to pay so much taxes on everything?	Stephan	employed individual
2022-07-21 14:01:03	Western Cape		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	With taxes skyrocketing across all areas, and the high networth individuals having left in droves, and continuing to do so - how is taxing those of us still here providing a sustainable economy? Salaries are decreasing, the unemployment rate is increasing- so where does this leave the rest of us? In the gutter... so who then will be left to tax? Raising an economy relies on the generation of spending power, and increasing the base of people with consumable spending power.	Sonya	employed individual

2022-07-20 12:09:10	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Since fuel is a product which influences the prices of virtually all other goods, it is vital that it remains affordable to avoid raising the cost of living to ruinous levels and plunging the country into poverty. The price of fuel affects the prices of food, clothing, travel etc. These are fundamental building blocks for the country.	Marisa	employed individual

2022-07-13 09:10:32	Mpumalanga		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	This has a huge snowball effect on the entire country, and the Tax Payers are carrying the burden thereof.	Alda	employed individual
2022-07-13 09:07:21	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	The fuel taxes aren't been used what it was met for. At this time it is milking the tax payers. Crude oil can be imported from Angola and Nigeria and SASOL can refine it at a 10th of the current price that is going to the pockets of Shell and BP. Why are we not looking after the wellbeing of Africa first? We do not need Shell BP on them. Keep the Africa country and build it. Or we will lose more than what we have!	August	employed individual
2022-07-13 08:19:16	Western Cape		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	There are only a few tax payers that carry the rest of the country. Now we must also be loaded with additional taxes on fuel cost because the fat cats and cadres of the ANC stuffed their coffers, stealing our money, that we work for in order to pay for more of their cadres and a host of other 'grants'. It is rubbish.	BERNIE	employed individual

2022-07-11 21:00:25	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	A big burden on the taxpayers with high fuel costs, inflation, extreme electricity costs, food prices and more. Yet we have to deal with loadshedding daily. Food prices have gone up to R60 - R80 per shop. Petrol have gone up from R550 - R900 for a medium sized car.	Bernadine	employed individual

2022-07-10 19:18:03	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	With fuel increase, every tax payer suffers, because everything is affected Even the price of bread increases	Fikile	employed individual
2022-07-10 06:53:54	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Most South Africans are struggling to make ends meet, but an overlarge (and woefully inept) government gets salary increases and that money needs to come from somewhere. Enter fuel increases (with an excuse of the war to justify it). So with the domino effect of fuel costs, how are we supposed to provide for our families? The greed and lies need to STOP.	Brenda	employed individual
2022-07-09 17:56:12	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	The fuel prices have gone out of control and even though the government see this they insist on adding their ridiculous taxes and costs onto the price of fuel. Time to stop all these extra costs we have to pay. Every vehicle must be insured and then the Road Accident Fund cost can be cancelled as well as the Insurance will take care of that. The ANC is just greedy thieving cadres.	Theo	employed individual
2022-07-08 15:40:09	Free State		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Tax is a burden for us and need to give account of what it used for. Everytime before a holiday the tax goes up, but never comes down. If petrol price goes up then everything goes up - the cost of living is getting too high. In order to survive with the basics like food, water, electricity and petrol, those that can must go into more debt. This is a vicious cycle and when will that be paid off with interest? 2022-07-08 13:06:07	Western Cape		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	The ordinary citizens of this country cannot keep paying for government's mismanagement and wasteful expenditure of taxes. The fuel levies keep going up and up to compensate for this and affects the price of absolutely everything. The most vulnerable and poor cannot survive this, nor can our economy. There is a need for transparency and an independent revue of the fuel price.	Jaco	employed individual

2022-07-08 12:03:05	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	NO reconciliation of how taxes are used is ever made public. For all we know, the majority of fuel levy taxes do not end up being used for what they are intended. Corruption is rife.	LOUISE	employed individual

2022-07-05 12:50:10	Western Cape		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	I would welcome a review of the fuel levy taxes. Firstly, is the tax going where it is supposed to? Secondly, do we need these taxes, given the state of our road infrastructure and amenities, one has to ask if the money does indeed get spent on what it is intended for. This, coupled with a huge revenue loss of the unregulated, tax free operations of the taxi industry, makes it unaffordable for the average road user. It is rather unfair that someone who commutes to work and back home has to pay the same tax levies as someone who operates a vehicle to generate income and use road infrastructure all the time. I have to carry the cost of expensive fuel for my own car, pay more for my family who uses public transport because of increased taxi/bus fares, and, I must pay more for food and other supplies which comes via road freight. Ridiculous, something must be done!	Sam	employed individual

2022-07-05 12:11:53	Western Cape		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	We are at a point where we are starting to retrench people due to the cost of everything just increasing to record prices, I'm a single mother and the bit of child support i get form my sons father is no longer enough and due to him also suffering due to the high fuel cost he is unable to pay more in child support, at the end the higher the fuel price the less food i can put on our table as a single parent, i'm literally driving my food money out to work and school... it can't go on like this, i'm not sure how long i'll be able to keep the roof over our head!!	Heidi	employed individual
2022-07-05 12:03:24	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	It is ridiculous that the fuel price has hiked yet again.	Jason	employed individual
2022-07-05 11:55:49	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	It is evident, and has been said in pain english: The current fuel price point is set to recover on the losses experienced during the covid lock downs. The current price is not linked to anything other than greed. This is plain extortion on the supplier and regulator's behalf (for allowing it) an we, law-abiding citizens have to fork the bill. We (SA) produce our own fuel and export to other sub-saharan countries at a lesser price than we (citizens) have access to in our own country. It is therefore evident that the current government does not have the citizen's best interest at hart, and therefore I call for a change.	JJ	employed individual
2022-07-05 11:46:49	Western Cape		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	We are paying tax 5 times over on every cent we earn. This is madness. It's not sustainable at all. 2018 we already paid above R16 per liter. Now 4 years later we pay more than R26. Where the tax on this is more than what, 30%? And that is on money already taxed. Then we pay VAT at 15% on all money spent. SARS wants to clamp down on their meager 10% of the population who actually pays tax.... Just squeeze us to death and get it over...because it's either that or it might just be a total collapse. Not even talking about electricity and then property taxes....where is it going to stop?	Eugene	employed individual
2022-07-05 11:41:09	Eastern Cape		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Please review the petrol pricing I can not carry on like this we are being held hostage by the government and its SOEs its just another way to steal from those who work hard and take less home every month on our salaries as we don't get increases. 2022-06-28 08:32:32	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Workers get taxed on their pay. Then they get taxed on their travelling costs . Living costs are taxed because you pay 15% tax on anything you purchase. If you try to save anything , you get taxed on that. If you're lucky enough to have contributed to a pension throughout your working life and get to the point where you supposed to benefit from that saving, you get taxed almost 45% on your pension payout. If you receive a death benefit, you get taxed on that. Is it not time for government to rather start looking into the wasting; stealing and underhanded payouts for tenders that don't deliver ? Into the compulsory usage for MP's and government employees to use all state facilities and not private ones for the benefit if there families medical care; schooling; housing; electricity etc? The saving will be huge. There will then no longer be a need to keep dipping their greedy hands into the "fuel pot" each time so as to to grease their palms to feed the hungry beast of corruption. Tax should at least be 10% of our income, more than that is just crime against humanity. It's slavery. How many times must 1 salary be taxed? It's taxed before the employer pays it into your bank account, taxed when you withdraw from the bank , taxed when you buy at the supermarket or fuel station. To keep up with that, citizens will have had to had salary increases of 109%. Yet salaries have on average increased by 35% odd in the last ten years. This is clear evidence that we have a government that is out of touch with the needs of the people it is supposed to serve (they seem to think they have the right to serve themselves only). There has been no transparency about the taxes levied and where these monies go. Government should focus on cleaning house, stop stealing the money, stop corruption and start governing. 2022-06-14 08:36:06	Free State		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	I believe there is far too much taxes put on fuel prices. Buying crude oil and refining it into Diesel, Petrol and other by-products still only cost about R12/L. South African cannot be compared to first world countries for fuel prices as our buying power (ZAR) is not as strong and we loose international buying power every year with a weaker Rand. Plus inflation is just putting far too much strain on South Africans. Salaries have actually reduced during and after lockdown and many South Africans cannot survive. Government is there to serve the public not to make money of it. Government should make decisions to create jobs not to make it more difficult. I call for an independent audit into the fuel price structure and also not fixed price reselling of fuel.	Ettienne	employed individual

2022-06-14 07:04:39	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	With all items' prices increasing, the inflation on fuel tends to leave a person with even less money to live from. I support the independent review of the fuel price as the tax payers are always at the short end of the stick when it comes to contributing. The government's corruption and fraudulent use of tax payers money should be at the top of this list as government has no idea how to effectively manage the budget in the best interest of the country and rather stuff their pockets with tax payers money. This independent review should have a look at all avenues that can assist in elevating the burden of fuel taxes and to make life a little more bearable instead of raising prices. 2022-06-13 16:21:06	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	The South African working class is the most taxed in the world. From social grants to fuel, we carry everyone on our little salaries. We don't have a reliable transport system even if we wanted to make use of it. Nothing seems to be working under the current government. All they care about is stealing from the public purse, corruption I the norm, and none of them is ever held accountable. If this continues SA is going under, runaway inflation will be the death of this country, and unemployment is at a record high, which in turn pushes the high crime rate due to frustrated youth who are unable to find employment. In Gauteng, and elsewhere, the government has relinquished its responsibility towards maintaining infrastructure, and has allowed other entities, re: Sanral, to milk citizens for more money, in order that government could keep fuel taxes for themselves. The ANC does not even remotely have an idea of taxes & how it works let alone running a country. These fuel hikes will only ensure 1 thing & that is an increase in job loss & shortly after looting will pursue & not long after that a civil war most likely. GET RID OF THE EXCESS USELESS, LAZY MINISTERS AND DEPUTY MINISTERS AND DGs, ETC ACROSS ALL DEPARTMENTS. * CUT MINISTERIAL BENEFITS AND IN PARTICULAR MAKE THEM PAY FOR THEIR OWN PETROL!! * REDUCE THE SIZE OF GOVERNMENT WORKFORCE WHICH IS BLOATED AND INEFFECTIVE (WE PROBABLY WON'T NOTICE ANYWAY!) * STOP STEALING AND GIVE LIFE IMPRISONMENT TO THOSE IMPLICATED IN CORRUPTION AND THEFT	Angela	business owner

2022-06-25 01:04:54	KwaZulu -Natal		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	At present the price of a liter of petrol is more than the minimum wage. a large portion of the price is made up of taxes in the form of the fuel levy and the road accident fund contribution. This is paid even when the petrol or diesel is used for generators, for equipment used on golf courses, lawnmowers at home, etc. Not only is it unfair that the taxes are paid in respect of fuel not used on the road but it has led to the poorest of the poor suffering extreme financial hardship. Travelling by taxi has become unaffordable for those earning minimum wage or receiving only social grants. the cost to get to home affairs, hospitals and other necessary services is simply too high due to these excessive taxes. Apart from the direct inflationary impact of this action, the annual plundering of fuel users pockets - as occurs in every budget speech is unsustainable. 2022-06-13 21:19:36	Northern Cape		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	I already commented on my previous comment to this very important subject. It is of utter importance that the current tax structure needs to be reviewed as soon as possible. The current taxation structures determines the profits charged by businesses, as explained, which lead to inflated prices been charged on goods and services. This is not only applicable to the fuel levy's and taxis, but include a review on all taxes charged by government. This must also include an review of government expenditure in general and an audit on certain positions within the public sector with respect to Infrastructure development where billions can be saved with the implementation of proper sustainable policies. 2022-06-13 14:16:22	Free State		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	It is time to get rid of taxes on fuel. If anything, it should be to fix the roads, but then open for scrutiny. Bring back Third Part licences to provide for road accidents, where each category pays an annual fee according to the category his vehicle falls under, thus depending on usage and road statistics on abuse for the category. The rest to the dustbin. This government most probably lives on these taxes, though. They are cash, they are immediate and they probably cover for a lot of poor bureaucracy. Without it, it will become so much clearer that we live in a failed state, where cadre deployment bankrupts the fiscus and stops any possible remedial action. Yes, by all means let an independent review be done, including all factors, from ridiculous pumping fees to government abuse of the system.	Cornelius	business owner
2022-06-13 12:03:02	Mpumalanga		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	Besides the enormous burden on taxpayers, the unaffordability is becoming a huge concern an with unaffordability comes all the ripple affects like increases in food cost etc. making the poor person even poorer. 					Workers get taxed on their pay, their travelling costs , and their expenditure through VAT & import duty. South Africa has one of the highest tax rates amongst its development peers. Then many South Africans pay again for the security, education, health, road fixes, clean water, electricity generation that government was supposed to provide with taxes. This is because government has completely failed in providing the basics: due to state capture, endemic and egregious corruption, and policies based on the NDR (which should long ago have been committed to the rubbish heap of history based on its universal failure to benefit citizens, its cruel outcomes in removing individual liberties (and often life), and its inevitable impact on increasing inequality because it looks after the political elite at the expense of citizens.)
					This is all to feed a government with the largest cabinet in the world, one of the highest levels of corruption, a policy of state capture, racist laws and policies across the board which will have the inevitable consequence of throttling the economy and destroying employment opportunities. Hence South Africa has an exceptionally high unemployment rate exceeded only by a very few political basket cases like Zimbabwe, Venezuela & North Korea. (Most even half-well countries including developing countries have unemployment rates in the single digits.) The less money this government has, the less it can waste, steal or use in producing destructive legislation.
					We need an independent review of fuel taxes to put in the public domain the arguments for and against retaining one further level of taxation that contributes to substantially to inflation (given current circumstances); and feeds a government that uses its time to create laws which strangle the economy, take away individual choice and make it exceptionally difficult for most citizens to earn a living and educate their children. Given the impact of Russia's invasion of Ukraine, it there is not action now to reduce the economic pressure on the average citizen, there could be unfortunate disruptions to society that could have long term deleterious effects.

2022-06-25 21:15:05	Gauteng		Yes I do	Burden on taxpayers	South Africans are being taxed into poverty by a self serving government. This government was elected by the people to serve the best interest of the people but continues a long history of self service. Tax collection is an integral part of the role of government but the huge burden being placed on the average tax payer is unconscionable and immoral. It is a fact, proven in courts of law, that government officials have and continue to steal from those tax paying citizens who elected them. The huge rise in fuel prices includes a large tax component. The make up of the tax component must be reviewed but most importantly, checks and balances must be instituted by non governmental institutions that will hold government officials accountable for their actions as to the outflow of these overburdening fuel taxes. South African citizens continue to pay but see no reward in the way of public infrastructure. We the people of South Africa demand that our transport systems receive their rightful tax allocations to enable long overdue repairs, maintenance and capital expansion. We have paid our money now give us the goods. We will no longer drive on empty promises and rutted roads. We demand accountability. Do your jobs as good PUBLIC SERVANTS or get out of the way. 					Unfortunately due to the demise of Transnet everything in South Africa must be carried by road, from raw materials to final consumer products. All imports are mostly carried by road trucks from our ports to inland destinations. So ever increasing fuel costs drive up prices which drive up inflation which cause labour to demand higher wages and so the vicious circle carries on. Most nabouring countries getting their fuel from South Africa are selling fuel at dramatically lower prices that what South Africans have to pay. An independant review can highlight misaligned costings, wasteful spending, activities that are not cost effective or may say the calculation is correct. 					Given a significant proportion of the fuel price is made up of various taxes and levies I believe there is room for a total review of the price structure, downwards, to reduce the burden on citizens. Sky high fuel prices contribute to rising costs, inflation, food prices and transport costs. Given some SA citizens (mostly in the poorer sectors) have been shown to pay 20 - 30% of their income on transport costs (especially for taxis), a reduction in the fuel price would contribute significantly to a higher income and reduced hardship for such people. We cannot continue to squeeze the poorest people in our society and make their lives harder. The social costs are just too high and poverty, hardship, crime, GBV and unrest will increase. We do not need high fuel prices, we need employment opportunities on a large scale to enable people to earn a living, contribute to society, and regain their dignity.

When neighbouring African countries get fuel for far cheaper we have to carry that burden. This government has a weak ability to manage the fiscus and as a result it over taxes us at every possible turn to make up for what it cannot manage and what it destroys. The fuel levy for example. The fuel price needs to be de-regulated, allow for VAT to be charged on fuel and remove the fuel levy. Make it just another commodity like every other paid for item.	Alain	employed individual

2022-07-12 15:36:23	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Ultimately, without knowing the exact details, the government is likely using the fuel levies to subsidize their income streams. It is widely understood that corruption is rife, and results in inefficient and ineffective use of the incoming revenue derived from basic taxes (VAT). 2022-07-08 11:15:59	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	We have experienced high oil prices before and while our currency was stronger then, the current cost of fuel just doesn't correlate. There is also evidence that the Government is procuring cheap Russian oil which only adds to the speculation that the consumer is being overcharged. If we compare the cost of Brent Crude Oil in November 2011 it was US$109 a barrel and the Rand at R8.00 to the US Dollar and we were paying R10.77 for a litre of petrol. In November 2021, Brent Crude Oil was US$83.40 a barrel and the Rand at R14.72 to the US Dollar and we were paying R19.47 for a litre of petrol. If you take all of the fuel levies combined across this period they have risen from R4.49/litre to R10.10/litre, that a combined increase of 126%. The levies are going to increase again next month which is going to have an intolerable impact on our already floundering economy and will impact the most financially vulnerable sector of our population the hardest. 2022-07-05 12:48:13	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	I have never benefitted from any of the taxes I pay for fuel. I drive through and avoid pot holes constantly, traffic lights never work, the highway between OR Tambo and Kempton Park doesn't even have lines painted on it anymore. How have I benefitted from the road and fuel taxes? I have however suffered greatly due to the fuel prices. I spend about 50% of my earnings on fuel now to get to and from work and clients. 40% on medical aid due to the poor public health services that the government offers, and I make a plan with the remaining 10% of my earnings. If those taxes on fuel are reduced or discarded, I will have another 20% left of my monthly pay to actually survive. I grew up on Botswana. My dad ran a fuel station there. Additionally the method must be reviewed as we don't get Brent crude here but from other countries like Angola, Nigeria and Iran, so why is the Brent crude price used as a base? Fuel needs to be deregulated so that stations can compete. Sasol does not even use oil to make fuel, why are we being charged the same as oil? If Sasol was 50% cheaper than competitors, I for one would gladly switch.	Mateen	employed individual

2022-07-02 16:27:48	Eastern Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	As I understand it, the Government puts about 50% of the income from fuel prices in "their pockets". Where does this money go to? As a result of the soaring fuel price, EVERYTHING else goes up in price! This is unsustainable. This is a down-spiraling hectic circle. And who suffers the most? The middle class and poor people. Middle class people's salaries do not go up, and the poor people don't have jobs, or very poor paying jobs. This again causes the middle class people to care for the poor people, because most of the rich people, amongst them Ministers and heavily paid Government officials, mostly don't care about the poor people! 2022-07-01 15:30:10	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The taxes component in our fuel price is too much and it makes the fuel price unaffordable for most ordinary workers who also have to commute. The state of some of our Roads in the country, especially regional and local roads is a risk to safety and life of users due to their poor conditions and potholes. Those roads with toll gates are also a bottleneck to traffic flow during busy periods. South Africa has too many indirect taxes, especially for us poor people. 2022-06-30 09:18:40	Mpumal anga		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	In Mpumalanga we already pay more per liter of fuel than the people in Johannesburg for instance, because it is said that the fuel must travel further to get to us. Because of this, the food prices in Mbombela is also much higher than in Johannesburg for instance and with the fuel continuing to increase so ridiculously soon we will only be able to afford pap - as it is we don't have money to buy meat. We do however earn a small income, but what about the causal house workers working for a small daily wage that also has to cope with increased taxi and bus fares because of the fuel increases. Soon the little they earn will not be worth them coming from the townships into town to work. There has been a few videos making the rounds about how much the fuel ACTUALLY cost vs what the government makes us pay for it and all the taxes and levies are absolutely absurd. The keep on wasting money and then through fuel levies and taxes they want to just get more and more from the citizens of the country. Why does one pay income tax then? A full independent review of the fuel price structure and taxes is supported fully so that all the unnecessary charges the government puts on the citizens can be brought into the light. It is actually cheaper to cross the border into Swaziland, Mozambique and Lesotho to put in fuel there and now I wonder where they get their fuel from?	Mariette	employed individual

2022-06-29 13:45:20	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	I support that a review of the fuel prices must be done. Maybe during these difficult times, at least taxis must be dropped. Fuel prices are in-affordable and people can not afford to get to work. Fuel prices also have an extreme effect on the food price, which makes living even more in-affordable, and if people can only barely survive that affects the economy as well because almost nobody is spending money on anything else. The poor gets poorer, middle class poorer, work will get more scarce and with this the unemployment rate even higher. Our country will starve, due to these high fuel cost. Help SA survive by not hiking the fuel even higher!!	Lezel	employed individual

2022-06-29 12:54:35	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The middle class in SA in the main are the ones the support the economy. 2022-06-28 10:48:18	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The structure of our fuel pricing need a full review. The taxation especially, since a hefty portion of the fuel price is a percentage based tax, which pushes the fuel price way higher than it really needs to go, further filling state coffers at the expense of the people of South Africa. The US dollar based international fuel pricing system is a huge part of the problem. I would love to see a free-market international fuel economy which is not manipulated for profit by the fuel industry, although our government has less influence over this. 					Eating an orange If you are fortunate enough to afford some citrus, you know that an orange has a peel. There are many ways to get inside, with your fingernail opening it up and starting to “chip” away at the skin, to get to the fruity part. There are examples of cutting open the top and bottom and slicing one side, and the orange reveals its fruit neatly rolling out like a red carpet. Now, one normally just takes the fruit, and leaves the skin and pith. For those that aren’t aware, pith is the white spongy part on the inside of the skin. Here’s the thing. Our Economy, is like an orange, which the crooked ones in government (all aren’t crooked) opened up, in whichever way, and munched on the fruit. Not being satisfied with only the fruit, they started scraping and eating the pith, until there was just the skin over, and they started looking at the skin, with eager eyes, wanting to find a use for that as well. Those few and fortunate enough to have a job, are paying heavily from under the skin of the orange, starting with taxes, rates and taxes, taxes on goods and services, value added taxes (VAT) and taxes on fuel. I have heard that there is speak of a “driving tax”. Now this means, we have passed opening the orange, we have passed the stage where the fruit has been eaten, passing the pith, and are now at the stage where the raw skin is being observed for gain. When is enough, enough? When will you think of those at the bottom scale, with their R350 trying to cope?

					We no longer trust the government with our tax money as well as all the levies they impose on us all. They need to stop giving away free money and rather invest in repairing all the infrastructure, hospitals, schools, etc that they have neglected for the past 28 years. Pushing up the fuel price will only cause us all to stop traveling, affecting tourism. Prices of all our goods have already become unaffordable and a further fuel price increase is only going to push more people into poverty

					It’s time for this madness to stop. We need a new ruling party but until that happens, we need to try and reduce the hectic and ridiculous costs of living in South Africa. The fuel price is just the tip of the iceberg. I cannot believe that it has come to this. I feel like an imposter in my own country as I barely scrape by despite being born here and living here my whole life. The ANC has failed miserably and apartheid has nothing to do with it. This is the here and now. The problems are happening now and something needs to be done. I will support anyone or anything who wants to make a change!

2022-06-28 08:11:49	North West		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Botswana's fuel is far less expensive than ours, and yet they import their fuel from SA? The answer is a bloated and unworkable fuel structure, where the majority of the costs are just taxes, not the actual cost of fuel. Why should the taxpayers suffer to support the government. The fuel structure must be changed so that ordinary South Africans can live their lives productively again, not barely scraping by while others have their fuel paid by the taxes that is received from the ordinary South African. This fuel structure hits the poorest among us the hardest, while wealthy politicians just get more wealthy. For those who are contributing in taxes on a whole, we need to insist on fairness and equality. I would support a Bill or Case that suggest to exponentially decrease the MP's salaries and perks, to help the working class in SA, and to use the monies to actually deliver what the government has promised their people. The poorest suffer the most as taxi fees keep rising. I live too far from work to walk. So do most of the country. And with the fuel price rising, we can't afford to go to work. How do you work if you can't get there? Most of the country does not have the luxury of working from home. We have to be at work to earn a living. 					The increase on fuel price will have a an impact on the prices of everything else like food prices, household goods etc. The petrol price increase will have a major impact on the unemployed and Middle class citizens of the country. The citizens which are already in poverty situation will be the ones to feel most impact from the increase of the fuel prices. The president should consider this when making decisions to increase the petrol price. The transport industry will also increase it prices due to the petrol price increase. Now for the working class, this means the expenses of getting to work have increased as well as the cost of food and other essentials however the salaries and wages are still the same. The increase in essentials is far greater than the increase of the wages and salaries of the Middle class or working class. For instance, an individual earning R10 000 and one that earn R40 000 both get a 10% increase from their employer. That means the worker that earn R10k will have an additional R1000 to try and mitigate for the increase in their expenses, which is far less the increase in expenses. The worker that's earns R40k will have R4000 to mitigate for the increase which is much more reasonable in terms of the impact of the increases as compared to the first worker. Parliament should consider the lower income groups to try and cover the cap. The lower working class will feel the pitch 10 times harder then the few individuals that earns higher salaries.

2022-06-27 08:06:22	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	I fully support an independent review of the fuel price structure and fuel taxes. The taxpayers need to know whether all the taxes added to the fuel price is really necessary. In the past, the fuel levies were used to maintain South Africa's road structure. This is no longer the case, and taxpayers are urged to pay for using the roads through toll fees, e-tolls and municipal rates and taxes. If the fuel levies are no longer used to maintain the roads, why are they still being charged? Taxes on fuel are critical, as it has a ripple effect on the entire economy (inflation, cost of living, food prices, etc.) and should therefore be carefully considered.	Hantie	employed individual

2022-06-25 11:53:33	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	This is not the first time the cost per barrel hit such a high price. There was a point where this cost hit $140/barrel and the cost to consumer was R11. Now that cost is $120/barrel, $20 less than the high that was reached before, but now the consumer pump cost is just over R21. How did we get to this point... What is happening doesn't make sense and something needs to be done now. What is happening is unsustainable and as usual this government is at the center of it all. We are being taxed to death while government pretends to care and is constantly in deliberation mode. Suspend all taxes while the price of fuel is being reviewed. That is the only way to spur this government from deliberations to implementation. It can't be that while they are taking their sweet time deliberating this untenable situation, the consumers are bled to death and the economy suffer irreparable damage. Let there be an immediate relief to consumers through the suspension of all fuel taxes while this government continues to deliberate. Our economy is being destroyed while household costs continue to sore beyond what the people can afford. A caring government that knows what it is doing would not by any means have allowed for things to get this far without righting course. Shame on this government.	Itumeleng	employed individual

2022-06-25 09:58:12	KwaZulu-Natal		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Roughly, back in Jul 2008, when the price of oil peaked at $140 per barrel, exchange rate was R7.7 meaning the Rand equivalent was R1,100 per barrel. At the time the fuel price was R6.00 per litre. Currently at $110 per barrel and R16.0 ROE the Rand equivalent is R1,800 per barrel. By simple math the petrol price should be around R10.00 per litre, all else being equal. So please explain the R15.00 difference per litre, and that is why an independent review is non-negotiable. As it is the budget does highlight R92.6 billion in fuel levies, which is killing the man in the street, and sadly majority of these funds are mismanaged.	Jean-Pierre	employed individual

2022-06-24 19:38:32	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The cost of fuel to the average citizen is becoming unaffordable which will create a greater financial burden on the citizens of this country. Why is it that we can sell the same fuel to neighboring countries at lower prices, but cannot assist our own citizens to afford the same fuel. The taxes applied needs to be reviewed and adjustments made. More and more citizens will be forced to sell their cars and the lack of public transport is not an option. That will then in turn impact people's ability to retain jobs, thus increasing the unemployment rate as well as increase mental, emotional and financial distress of so many more people. 2022-06-24 15:05:54	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	the rising fuel price constitutes to a rise in inflation which kills off any household in S.A. it brings high food prices and survival becomes more difficult for your everyday citizen. does the politicians and all these ministers ever pay for their fuel and basic food stuff? if you don't pay these exorbitant prices for all these things you will never understand what the average South African must face on a regular basis. Get another oil supplier , abolish these ludicrous taxes and all the other things to the fuel price , we are funding the road accident fund which is basically bankrupt because of maladministration and yet we must fund these dead horses. 2022-06-15 08:55:25	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	As a public service employee, it is becoming increasingly unbearable to afford the basics due to the high fuel levy which has resulted in the highest petrol price to date. It's a double tax on us to pay the fuel levy and also pay income tax. On top of that, the government refuses to grant salary increases, more than three years we are sitting with the same salary while cost of living is sky-rocketing every year. We are struggling to make ends meet because the petrol price hike affects everything from food, taxi fares, etc. What about the poor? We are increasingly convinced that the government of the day cares little about the citizens of this country, particularly the poorest of the poor. It is time that this fuel pricing structure be looked at by a public entity. 2022-06-14 00:58:48	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The fuel price has become unaffordably high, not only due to the cost of the oil but also due to the levies that are added. Unfortunately fuel is at core of our economy as people need to be transported to and from work, food to shops and service providers to their customers. If the fuel price is increased so too will the cost of living, to the extent where it will no longer be financially viable for people to travel to work and in effect increasing unemployment. The cost of food will go up and people will shop less causing lay-offs at shops and eventually their closure. We have to be careful how much and where levies are applied to the fuel price and it is with this that I support an independent review of the fuel price.	Marthinus	employed individual

					The ever increasing fuel price is a sure FAIL for the South African economy. This can only drive further unemployment and further poverty. How will this aid South Africa as a whole. In our company, when pricing from our suppliers increase we carefully ascertain whether to carry the increase to our customers or just absorb the increase. Mostly we absorb the increase as it's the best overall income and can at the same time allow pricing to actually stabilise. Don't be so reactive! Drop the government expenditure, salaries and luxury spends rather to absorb these increases instead of burdening is middle and lower class who pay taxes. Tighten your belts for once. We are taxed to the hilt at every avenue. Do you want South Africa to crumble simply to succeed in letting Russia and China take us over for good. Poor show guys, you are a disgrace to South African people. Greedy power hungry people who only care for themselves. Be gone with you or else we will be gone, and then where will your tax money come from with no one who can afford to pay taxes.

					We have so few tax payers in this country, they are expected to carry so much, the government is wasting so much money on cronyism and corruption, this country is destined for full on anarchism if they don't help soon! Fuel prices are directly linked to food prices. People can't get to work if they can't afford taxis, there is so little reliable public transport. If they keep squeezing and squeezing there will be an eruption, like in Sri Lanka. Those politicians had to flee or be killed. There's only so much people can handle. If the government, for once, is seen to be doing the right thing, perhaps this can be avoided. There is enough for everyone, but never enough for a greedy man.

					Something has to be done 100% about fuel costs, firstly much of the cost is made up of levies and taxes which we see no benefit from, the roads are in disarray, carnage is beyond ridiculous, we still have toll fees on top of that and many other taxes fees towards road departments. Raw cost of fuel is around R12 per litre, yes sure there are now manufacturing costs and transport costs to consider on top of that, but at the same time the producers of the fuel also make profit from the by products of the process so their margin on fuel production should be limited to no more than R2 a litre, transport should be no more than R2 per litre, we are now at around R16 per litre that leaves a difference of around R10 per litre again taxes and levies should be capped at R2 per litre as well that is billions into the coffers and in any event is wasted and stolen:- (We should be paying no more than R18 per litre at present. We have been fleeced for way too long now, time for an independent body to look into fuel costs and set the pricing. Independent means no one who is involved in Government nor the Fuel industry are to be part of the setup.

Also check the buy price from all oil suppliers to compare for competitive prices. At the current cost levels of fuel, never mind future, even I can see the fourth industrial revolution breathing heavily all over us for zero jobs for all by 2030, thereby making fuel an irrelevant consumer item!! 2022-07-10 18:30:43	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	This is simply another form of taxation as the government is losing taxes due to the reducing tax base and the high emigration rate, and because the economy is not growing. This review is urgent because it will lead to unrest. Most South Africans travel by taxi. Taxi fares increase. People cannot afford the fares. Fuel increases lead to all prices increasing. permanently. This country is a revolution waiting to happen. It is already a disaster. It is only a question of time before the unrest of July 2021 repeats itself but on a far larger scale. Nothing will stop it. Anarchy reigns supreme in SA. We have no police, no army and no criminal justice system. The petrol price issue is far more urgent and dangerous than most people realise. It will be the single factor that sparks a revolution. Just what Zuma wants. Read the Maverick Newspaper article on the theft of arms, ammunition, money, communication equipment. The ANC is split. Unrest is coming. The catalyst will be the fuel price. And, 2) a detailed plan must be drafted, allocating sufficient funds from the fuel levy towards an energy transition plan that will steadily and aggressively reduce the environmental footprint of the country's transportation.		business owner

					Fuel prices need to be reviewed independently to see not only if they are reflective of global prices but that the fuel levy is used efficiently and no funds are wasted. Fuel levies should be brought down. Very importantly, new fuel mixes must be pursued which could encourage job creation in South Africa. Sugar cane is an excellent fuel and sugar cane growers are struggling to find adequate markets. This would be an immediate way to not only stabilise fuel prices but to become more independent of foreign oil and grow the South African economy. New land should not be taken up for new sugar cane, but existing sugar cane fields can produce the fuel required. This was done years ago and was available at SA petrol stations years ago. The independent review should not only look at prices but local, sustainable solutions that are environmentally sound to take us away from dependence on foreign oil.

					Fuel prices drive the price of so many goods and services in SA. Every time fuel costs rise, the cost of living goes up. It is becoming unsustainable for individuals and small businesses, and even big business probably won't put up people's salaries in line with the rising costs of living now. Government takes enough in tax through the fuel price. It is up to them to keep inflation in check by keeping this rising cost in check for consumers, most especially the poor and unemployed.

Or is it so they can put some of the money away for voting time to try and fool everyone into thinking hey they are fixing potholes they are finally completely there promises and after they win production stops and leftover money goes into their pockets as it is not being used to complete the road works or paying Eskom so that we don't sit in the dark or need to spend more money on petrol for the generators not to mention installation solar systems...the government just doesn't care because if they did they would realize with life getting more expensive crime will skyrocket as they go hand in hand...the government cant even pay the SRD on time and yet it is suppose to help SA's citizens some have been waiting for months after being approved and all they can say is be patient..Some families cant wait they relay on that money for just some food..if something doesn't happened soon SA will not be ... 				Everything in a modern economy relies on fuel somewhere along the line. It is an essential good, from the poorest of the poor to the richest among us. We need it for getting to work, having our food reach the shops, to keep warm during cold weather, and to supply generators when Eskom inevitably fails to keep the lights on. Why then is petrol still taxed? It is more essential than bread as it is needed to get the bread to our shelves. It is the bedrock of a modern, motorised economy — yet it is taxed as if it is a luxury. As of February 2022, 33.5% of the price of fuel paid for taxes and levies. The largest of these being the general fuel levy, but also notably the Road Accident Fund levy, which is reportedly needed to pay compensation to victims of vehicle accidents, but is in actuality used as a piggy bank by corrupt politicians. A third of the price of petrol goes to government. While food costs rise, people struggle to get to work and our prosperity dwindles — every drop of fuel we purchase furnishes the extravagant spending of the state. This becomes even more frustrating when one remembers that in 1993 the ANC criticised the National Party for raising fuel prices, something of which the ANC now makes an almost monthly tradition. As of June levies and taxes make up R10 of the price of fuel per litre. On top of a global rise in fuel prices South Africans are suffering whenever they have to inevitably top up their fuel tanks. This doesn't just mean motorists can't drive to a luxury restaurant or the mall. It means workers are forced to dip even further into their dwindling incomes to get to work, and that food prices rise as transport costs increase. And as these prices rise all prices rise, a knock-on effect that can devastate an economy. But this can all be remedied: remove all levies and taxes on petrol. Consider it an essential good, because it is. It should therefore be allowed to be as cheap as possible. While government cannot control the basic fuel price (and shouldn't), it can spare South Africans from a huge chunk of the existing cost. Further, government could go a long way to improving the real price of fuel by removing price controls on petrol. Allow petrol prices to float like any other product. Let petrol stations compete over cheaper fuel, incentivising the market to drop prices. Price fixing never works. All it does is remove a good from reality. When petrol is price-fixed too low there will be shortages. If it is price-fixed too high, consumers suffer. Rather let companies compete over selling petrol and see what the real price is. The biggest possibly negative consequence of removing taxes from petrol would be that the government will lose a huge source of revenue. But the Road Accident Fund and fuel levy were never meant to fund the public budget. We have so many taxes already: income tax, VAT, corporate tax, inheritance tax, capital gains tax, tariffs, levies... the list goes on. SA has too many taxes, too many sources of revenue. And none of it is helping service our enormous debt and failing budget. Perhaps then the problem isn't a

2022-06-29 09:16:34	KwaZulu -Natal		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	It only makes perfect sense for the fuel price structure and fuel taxes to be openly discussed and even widely publicised. The government has an obligation to be open about the fuel price structure and has an obligation to keep the cost of fuel down to a realistic level, that will enable people to actually live. With the rife corruption and looting of tax payers money most South Africans know that they are supporting criminal activities when filling up at the pump. The fuel price is totally unpatriotic and instead of the government taxing the fuel and then stealing the money and failing to provide anything of value to the people, they could simply make a different to the people of the country by slashing the fuel taxes. This form of positivity towards the lives of South Africans doesn't even require much know how - which we all know the government lacks on levels that are all encompassing. Bottom line - give back to the people, slash fuel taxes instead of raping and pillaging tax payers at the pump.	Colin	business owner

You would do better to scrap all fuel levies, thereby curbing inflation and stimulate our economy so that one can gain VAT & income tax that will increase as you stimulate the economy with no fuel levies. 2022-06-28 09:36:55	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Fuel prices must be reviewed monthly by an independent organisation like the AA and the responsibility take away from government. High fuel prices affect the economy and that affects the poorest of the poor.	michelle	business owner
2022-06-28 09:31:13	KwaZulu -Natal		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Currently we have little to no say in the price of fuel. We need to look at it from the ground level, and start to get private business to participate and have ownership in oil,gas and refineries. We are helping too many other countries with low fuel and make us the citizens pay for it. Politicians have made our fuel like bargaining chips for our neighbours and enhance their personal agendas and better their own needs in those countries.	Vikash	business owner

2022-06-28 07:17:31	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The government are acting like gangsters. They MUST have the rights removed to dictate fuel taxes. Consumer protection act should take them to task for price-fixing. Independent pricing is a MUST especially since we are part of BRICS which allows us to purchase cheap oil from Russia	Dominic	business owner
2022-06-28 07:16:29	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	I believe an independent review will create a more transparent process. I trust this will be a fact finding process putting the truth in front of the public and allowing for further public participation on the outcome. The process should also investigate where and how the money raised from the fuel levy is allocated to and open the discussion for further similar independent reviews of how the money are spent for the improvement of all South Africans wealth. 2022-06-28 07:15:15	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	There needs to be full transparency with regards fuel prices as well as government subsidy of the fuel prices. 2022-06-27 20:25:37	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The fuel price has far too many taxes on it , which could be covered in other ways such as mandatory 3rd party insurance should you wish to register a drivers license, or proper job creation as well as though low cost automated tolling solutions that are not put through ANC tender but a public participation process to cover the long roads. Or even better public transport systems.	Jayson	business owner

2022-06-27 14:17:29	Mpumal anga		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	These prices are unacceptable. How can the average person on salary of between R5000 and R10000 afford. There is no reliable local public transport facilities in this country. Smaller towns do not even have buses, let alone trains or taxis. The average taxi fare per day, from what my staff tells me, is R20.00 either way. This over 20 working days minimum is 800.00 and that is the minimum. Some staff have to travel 80 - 100 km to work every day. An average car 's fuel is then up to R4500.00 per month.!! It cost an average of R150.00 per day to drive my grandchildren to school every day - that's about R 3500.00 per month just for schooling!!!!	Viv	business owner
2022-06-27 13:37:38	Eastern Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	South Africans are already taxed on every thing that is purchased plus on earnings and the tax is just squandered or embezzled by those in any position to do so. To tax us further on the fuel required to earn a living is putting people out of jobs or further into difficulty. The rate of taxation is extreme and if we are getting oil from Russia cheaper than other countries in the world, why is our fuel cost so high?	Dione	business owner

2022-06-26 11:22:14	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	By mid 2020 it didn't take a rocket scientist to understand the devastation that was to come by destroying economies and that not all these consequences would appear immediately. Those fortunate enough to have financially survived the initial wave now find themselves still fighting to survive yet again, driving global poverty to an all time high, I'm sure the living and breathing 7.9 billion people then and now are grateful to still being alive while being unable to actually live, while the select few global elitist wealth grew dramatically, wonder what the WEF test run postmortem reads, on you will own nothing and be happy, and if they believe this is now achievable with the will of the people. We can get a barrel of oil at around $70, government then needs to ensure that there is no price gouging by refiners, this would be an immediate relief in fuel prices	Jason	business owner
2022-06-26 10:24:12	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	This is day light robbery. This is called muzzling the ox that treads the corn or killing the goose that lays the golden egg. 2022-06-25 15:11:18	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The government buys fuel for R10 a litre. Their markup on the price and their profit is unacceptably high. Its sheer robbery!	Jason	business owner
2022-06-25 14:38:32	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	I believe an independent board reviewing our current fuel dilemma will be advantageous as corruption is a general factor in our country. This further increase will begin to shutdown sectors of our economy, place a great danger on food supply as well as prices and demand will only continue to grow. South Africa needs to reform its views on energy and will need to act before energy and fuel prices are to great.	Chris	business owner
2022-06-25 14:14:46	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	What is the govt doing with the fuel levy? Roads are un disrepair...so cleatly not bring spent on roads infrastructure Also the burden on the tacpayers is too much to vear We beed a break from this over taxation The zar value is not helping either Import duties should also ve dropped in its entirety In my view our govt is clueless....they only know how to enrich themselves instead of exerting proper and just governance in our country	Zuleigha	business owner

2022-06-25 12:33:00	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Ministers and members of parliament are driven around with cars and fuel that taxpayers pay. Thus, they dont have faintest idea or feeling of helplessness when the price goes up again. They dont experience the inconvenience of changing routes, or even not driving at all. And there is the example of Freestate Premier, with an antourage of a dozen cars - All at taxpayers expense. And dont the 55 000 pump attendant jobs at us. Further increases are going to result in job losses because we will not be able to get to work.	Dries	business owner

2022-06-23 09:18:30	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Fuel prices are tied directly to the financial pressure on consumers. The rate at which fuel cost is rising is causing consumers to stop spending and reduces the production of goods. This will further hurt the economy and make the already crippled economy unsalvageable. Government should review the way money is spent instead of using the old no effort ways of just squeezing more out of its citizens. Government has worked hard to put itself in this position and it must work hard to get itself out instead of trying to choke another decade of power out of consumers by running the same unsustainable program. Most of SA's citizens do not contribute financially to state coffers. That would be a good place to start. Spending money on bottom up education and get these people into a capable state so there are more of us working to support the country.	Schalk	business owner
2022-06-23 08:39:59	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Government has ripped their citizens off enough. Fuel tax should not be used to fund the government of their out of control and corrupt spending.	Grant	business owner

2022-06-17 20:16:36	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Fuel erm, drives everything. It's not just the fuel price that goes up, it's the entire cost of living. This is ok for about the top about 5%, but for everybody else, it means they are poorer by a long way. The fuel levy doesn't do anything except fund government excesses at the cost of the whole country. South Africans never signed up to be economic slaves.	Frederic	business owner

2022-06-14 13:38:28	Limpopo		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	We understand that primary fuel prices based on international crude oil prices are outside our control for factors such as exchange rates, geopolitical events, sentiments, and dumb politicians driving non-achievable agendas and narratives. The high basic price is further compounded by the fact Government sees it as a source of income for milking by loading it with excessive levies and taxes. If the Government were able to run efficiently and reduce expenditures and gross incompetence, then Taxes could be reduced or better targeted. An Independent Review carried out by Supply Chain Experts, Financiers, people without vested interests and relevant organizations, is urgently needed to critically examine where changes and reforms could take place. There are many and this should happen quickly, not take months. Keep the government out of it until the very end once improvements are identified and analyzed. They are too conflicted and are not motivated to change but have every reason to maintain the status quo.	Andrew	business owner

2022-06-14 07:38:17	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	We need an independent review of all fuel costs ! Citizens in the country pay taxes upon taxes and levies upon levies which fill the government coffers and rob hardworking citizens! We insist on transparency and unit the government can stop misconduct and corruption, taxes should be withheld as the taxes are not being spent to uplift and grow the economy but rather to grow the bank accounts of corrupt government officials. The fuel levies are just another avenue for government to steal from its citizens and MUST BE STOPPED!!!	Frankie	business owner
2022-06-14 07:33:40	Eastern Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The high price of fuel affects everyone and almost everything in a negative way, with no doubt, the poorest suffering the most again. The Government profits from our suffering as a nation, almost every area that requires an intervention is a further area to corrupt or plunder. Stability in basic services is essential to allows what's left of private business to keep stimulating the economy.	Wayne	business owner
2022-06-14 07:11:03	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The middle bracket earners are severely struggling to afford travel to work and back. I don't know how on earth the lower income earners are affording travel to work and back as Taxi's always increase taxi fares to match petrol price increases, but don't compensate for price decreases in fuel when they do happen. The higher fuel prices are very evident in the prices of food and groceries in general in the supermarket and so consumers are being squeezed from every angle. If CPI was a true measure of inflation (the basket of goods was more realistic), it would reflect closer to 20 - 30% inflation. And the poor are the ones who suffer the most as they have no assets which are offsetting some of the effects of inflation meaning they feel inflation and price increases the most. Let's have the fuel price structure and fuel taxes audited to ensure a zero based budget structure is employed instead of simply increasing these prices year on year. The government needs to employ a more efficient and lean process instead of misallocating resources.	Tim	business owner

2022-06-13 16:30:43	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	With the current economic conditions in South Africa the additional burden on the consumer (road user) is tremendous. We all know when the fuel price rises so does everything else including food. This places an extreme burden on the poor within our society and the general man in the street who cannot bear the brand of continually rising costs. Small business is also under pressure to remain head above water. It is no secret that at least 34% of the retail petrol price is taxes. The government is greedy in their attack on petrol prices which we all know is an extremely soft target and a highly emotive subject. This is deplorable that the government can place this cost on the motorist to increase their coffers at the expense of the the motorist while the ministers do not pay tax. The government ministers are not in touch with the reality of the consumer, while sitting in their ivory towers. We are seeing the government "milk this cow" and soon the "cow is going to be dry". The government should be promoting the prosperity of All the people of the nation not trying to "kill the cow" by way of continually increasing taxes and especially the petrol price. By continual increases of the petrol price one must remember that more jobs are lost especially in the small business sector as it becomes impossible to employ people with amongst other the petrol price escalation.	Lance	business owner
2022-06-13 16:07:48	KwaZulu -Natal		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Cost of living is too high in South Africa. Part of the problem is the high cost of fuel. Government must appoint an independent committee to take an indepth look at this situation.	Sandra	business owner
2022-06-13 16:02:31	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Government should scrap all fuel levies. The 100 billion they get from fuel levies must be collected from elsewhere e.g. increase corporate tax by 0,1%. The corporate environment won't even feel that and they would also recover the extra tax with cheaper fuel. Also input cost for the manufacturing and as well service industry would be less therefore prices followed by inflation will come down and job creation stimulated.	Riaan	business owner

It is ridiculous that South African citizens must pay these levies and taxes on fuel, which are not even used to maintain out roads. The government is overtaxing fuel for its citizens so that there can be more money in the government coffers for them to steal and misappropriate. Enough is enough.	Mada	business owner

2022-06-13 10:55:52	KwaZulu -Natal		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Are we becoming the next Zimbabwe? Its not a tax on the rich but slap in the face to the poor who has to bare the brunt of the resulting food price increases.	Khatija	business owner
2022-06-13 10:50:12	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The current pricing of fuel is just ludicrous. We do not get the benefits from the taxes, yet taxes keep going up and up. 2022-06-13 10:18:51	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Fuel prices must be cut back to the mimimum by removing ALL taxes and even the fuel levy fund which is corrupt. Every cent added onto the fuel prices will at the end of the day spike increase in food prices and general inflation. SA'n are already on theirs knees with financial struggles to survive. This will kill the country and its economy(and its People) When people can no longer afford to go to work and pay for the increased food prices the chaos will truly begin!!!	Jytte	business owner
2022-06-13 10:11:02	Free State		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Ek volg elke dag die Rand Doller prys asook die Brent Ru Olie as n mens van elke maand n grafiek moet trek sien n mens dat die Olie beweeg tussen sekere lyne en die Rand Do;;er Prys maar waar die verhogings kom verstaan ek glad nie nie. Dan lees ek in die nuus dat Iran bv sit met skepe vol 44000 000 liter olie wat hulle nie kan aflaai nie want van die ander lande het nou by rusland gekoop maar die bedrag bly buitenspoirg hoog. Net n voorbeeld ons is Makelaars ons het verlede April soos altyd 500l ingegooi teem R13.80 per liter maw R6900.00 pm nou is dit ongeveer R24.00 n liter dit kos ons nou R12000pm . 2022-06-11 07:43:28	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	this government is hell bent on destroying what is left of our Economy by increasing the petrol which will affect inflation to food, transport etc. it's a mockery of justice and a draconian to an already expensive life they impacted on the poor. this has got nothing to do with Russia/Ukraine War but it's an effort to destroy the economies of the world by the WHO, WEF, And these New World Order Maniacs who want to see the economies crushed and total starvation of their people across the earth so as they can introduce Universal Basic income grant for a Totalitarian rule and control by 2030. there is nothing the people can say on it as they are hell bent on getting what they want. people must fight these madmen and not submit to their tyranny. God will be on our side against this evil scumbags.	Sam	business owner

2022-06-10 22:45:28	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The concern is the affect on the people of SA. The man on the street is struggling to pay for transportation and food as it is. This will plummet more people into poverty. If the government was able to spend the money they have on the basics and the people could see how their tax money actually help ALL citizens and not just politicians then paying these high taxes could be justified. BUT we see NOTHING but decline, destruction and bloated politicians. All these items are of concern.	Jytte	business owner
2022-06-10 21:22:03	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The fuel increases are extreme and unwarranted. It's a plot to topple society and destroy the middle class. The theft by government in the form of fuel levies will continue as long as civil society remains compliant. The Ukraine/ Russia war is a very convenient excuse and the only reason why citizens accept this theft directly from their pockets. The truth must be exposed and the rot in government must be extricated. God bless South Africa and it's people.	TAREN	business owner
2022-06-10 20:43:08	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	It is unacceptable that fuel cost sky rocket. Affordable fuel is no 1 key to our economy and it should get No 1 priority.	Stefan	business owner

2022-09-04 07:56:51	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Government taxes on fuel should be capped and ideally reduced. Cheaper fuel means cheaper food. Cheaper fuel allows more money in our pockets for other items such as home maintenance, this allows for more public spending and more job creation. The government wants more money quickly, but by reducing living costs, more jobs are created, leading to better living standards for all and in this way the government will still get their tax revenue. They loose nothing but the public gain	Anthony	unemployed individual

2022-08-31 08:41:25	Mpumalanga		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Sasol was build with a "tax loan from SA citizen" early 1980's to fabricate fuel for SA during war and sanction periods against SA. After stabilization, Sasol share price were the best and also rated best company in SA during economic stabilization in SA 1994- 2020. The tax loan was never returned to SA citizens. Sasol could contribute more to stabilize fuel prices in SA instead of exporting their products. Fuel gate price is general knowledge if Sasol's yearly Financial Report is read. The SA government is currently taxing fuel to fund and subsidize their own failures out of over taxes eg. Taxi associations, coal truck industry, Eskom, SAL, Transnet, Denel, PETROSA!!, Post office, etc - all dysfunctional state departments and institutions funded by SARS and over taxed levies. SA citizens will starve of hunger due to fuel prices, not because we do not have grains.	M	unemployed individual

This method can be introduced again to counter fuel price fluctuation. The independent review of the fuel prices can assist to confirm and reduce the levies and taxes added to the basic fuel price and inflate the price to the current unacceptable fuel price. They need to confirm what is happening with the money from taxes and levies added to the fuel price. Toll gates are all over the country but we pay taxes and levies to upgrade and maintain the roads. I believe the ANC has figured out how much money they can steal from fuel since no one can avoid it and are milking it for everything. An independent reviewer is needed that has NO ties to any government and is transparent. The consumer would like to know exactly where their money is going and why. Increasing fuel has also seen food prices soar and more people fall under the poverty line. Where are all the independent reviewers? 2022-06-27 20:55:06	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The formula used to determine the fuel price hasn't been reviewed for very long. The GFL according to the AASA brings R5bn per year to the fiscus but our roads are not being maintained regularly. Where does all that money go to? The rest of the levies in the formula should have been reviewed regularly. The price of fuel at the moment is MADNESS and not a true reflection of current affairs. Then there is the matter of tens of thousands of barrels crude oil that was sold by a minister for next to nothing. The manner in which government is handling the fuel price is testimony of what they feel for us citizens. We have SASOL our own fuel manufactured in SA!!! Government can assist SASOL in expanding. We are being robbed big time under the ANC government. An independent review of the fuel price is long overdue.	Susana	unemployed individual

2022-06-16 18:11:12	Limpopo		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Die ANC het die kostes vir petrol diesel vir jare nie afgebring toe die rand sterk gestaan het en die olie pryse laag was. Hulle moet n verduideliking gee aan Suid Afrikaanse Burgers. En wat van die R4.00 per liter wat aan Standard Bank oorbetal word. En die verhoogde pryse word beheer die die 300 asook World Economic Forum (New World Order) om die reset te doen. Ek gee nie my toestemming nie. Ek is n vry mens aarde behoort aan ons Almagtige Vader. EK SE NEE NEE VIR DIE RESET WAT HULLE WIL DOEN. Bring al die trillions terug wat uit die land uitgevat is geld en goud asook diamante. 2022-06-16 12:01:40	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Petrol prices have escalated from around R12.50 to around R21.50 in an extremely short space of time. That increases taxi fares for ordinary workers substantially, increases the cost of food and everything else too, and drains ones pocket. I used to pay R400 to fill my tank, it now costs just over R650. That is a huge increase coupled with all other increases. Add hefty toll fees to that and South African are getting "taxed to death"? I think so. Its time to remove unnecessary levies and taxes from the fuel price, asap. If the JSE were performing well for retirees that would be one good thing, but its not, and nor are offshore markets performing, so how do pensioners keep pace with inflation? Its impossible. Then look at rates, sewer and all other taxes....andwell... I think I made my point. Sewer charges are the most damming of these charges as they will now sit in the region of R600 for usage of around 6 to 7kl a month, in a townhouse, and I believe far more than an average house. So the taxes and levies need to be analysed without bias to determine what taxes and levies may be absolutely necessary and which can be abolished, and perhaps to include e-tolls as well. 2022-06-14 09:23:55	North West		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	When fuel prices increase everything else increases in price EXCEPT income! Grants, wages, salaries stay the same during the year for most people and due to COVID, many people have not had a decent increase in income, if any, over the last 3 years. Many people need to travel long distances to work or for personal reasons and a large portion of their income is used to cover transport costs. As a result other essential needs become secondary, such as food/nutrition, clothing, house maintenance, etc. and the general well being of people deteriorates. You are unable to buy fuel on credit but you can buy food on credit & many people do and end up further in debt. In a country with less affordability and an unemployment rate of 34,5% meaning that 7.9 million people are unemployed already and you, as the government of these people, still want to increase fuel prices only in south Africa and yet countries that are buying their fuel from South Africa are selling it way cheaper than South Africa. Namely Botswana = R18.17 per litre India =R20. 51 per litre These are some of the countries that are importing fuel from South Africa R30 per litre is going to create chaos and put pressure on all south Africans, this is going to cause a revolt, people are going to go on strike. 2022-06-11 22:34:54	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	If there is one thing we have learned over the past 2 years then it is that we have been lied to about virtually everything by the very people we were supposed to trust. This issue is no different. The evidence is proliferantly clear now that we are being taxed on the basis of untruths. For example, Petroleum fuel-oil is not a fossil fuel and is naturally replenishing itself in most instances. South Africa sits with an estimated 80% of known coal in the world and we have the cheapest, most effective process to produce petroleum from it at Sasol. That means, the current fuel-prices are based on massive fraud and international racketeering. It also came to light that our atmosphere has too little co2 and that plant-life are actually being suffocated by reducing it. The more co2 the more oxygen plants generate. It is self-balancing. Who is it that wants to kill plant-life on this planet? None of the current globalist-pushed green-energies satisfy the energy-balance formula ... it takes more energy to manufacture, operate and dispose/recycle them than they generate in their entire lifetimes. We also learned that "global warming" is a complete lie and that the planet is actually in a cooling phase ... so the globalists change it to "climate change" which is also based on utter falsehoods. Save from detonating the entire stockpile of nuclear armaments, nothing we do has an effect on the climate ... the Sun and nature self-balance and negate anything we do. We should be focusing on non-biodegradable plastics and remove/prevent that and other pollutants getting into our oceans. Over 70% of our oxygen is generated by organisms in the oceans and not land-based plants. Biodegradable plastics pollute and infest everything and should be abolished. France is considered to have the cleanest and "greenest" environment in the entire EU. The gross majority of their power generation is nuclear. It is quite within current knowledge and technology to use nuclear safely, efficiently and with minimal waste generated. Finally, as part of BRICS, there is no reason for our fuel prices to follow the trend in other parts of the world. Our economy has been utterly sabotaged, especially over the past 2 years and we simply cannot afford this abuse, negligence, incompetence, deception and greed any more.	Michiel	unemployed individual

2022-07-05 11:32:25	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	I would firstly like to comment that the ANC government are acting contrary to their own demands made against the National Party in 1993. On 16 September 1993 in a statement titled "ANC demands suspension of petrol price increase" said the following: "The ill-considered and uncaring decision to increase the petrol price only confirms the NP government does not have the interests of the majority of South Africans, who are poor and struggling desperately to make ends meet, at heart. If the government persists in pressing ahead with these indefensible price hikes, they will be inviting a similar reaction to that when VAT was increased. Now is the time for them to establish the tradition of a government that cares for and consults with its citizens". The ANC should do what they demanded of the NP. 2022-06-29 13:29:52	Western Cape		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	The recent price hike that took fuel in South Africa to above R25 was already ludicrous and to start increasing it even higher is blatant corruption and an example of the total greed of the ruling party without any thought or care for the citizens of South Africa. Every time fuel prices rise, the price of everything, including basic foodstuffs, rises too. 2022-06-29 10:19:55	Gauteng		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	t only makes perfect sense for the fuel price structure and fuel taxes to be openly discussed and even widely publicised. The government has an obligation to be open about the fuel price structure and has an obligation to keep the cost of fuel down to a realistic level, that will enable people to actually live. With the rife corruption and looting of tax payers money most South Africans know that they are supporting criminal activities when filling up at the pump. The fuel price is totally unpatriotic and instead of the government taxing the fuel and then stealing the money and failing to provide anything of value to the people, they could simply make a difference to the people of the country by slashing the fuel taxes. This form of positivity towards the lives of South Africans doesn't even require much know how - which we all know the government lacks on levels that are all encompassing. Bottom line - give back to the people, slash fuel taxes instead of raping and pillaging tax payers at the pump.	Michael	retired

If the nation becomes a hungry, cold nation with time on it's hands there will be violent action to improve the situation. The fuel price is critical to inflation and job creation People with jobs can care for their families they have no need to loot The RTF needs serious investigation to find lost funds The loss to the fiscus could easily be reduced by reduction in number of minsters deputy minister and their pay packets. We have more ministers and deputies than other countries and they still manger to ruin the country. ALL government organizations require investigation I believe anywhere money could have gone missing, been mal used or wasted it has been All government organizations are guilty until investigated	Jennifer	retired

2022-06-27 06:56:15	North West		Yes I do	Unaffordable fuel costs	Due to the collapse of infrastructure (and we know why) every item that u require is delivered by road and that implies that any increase in the feul price increases the delivery price of that item. When that fuel price is loaded with taxes that are meant to benefit those contributing to the cause but then clearly these funds are mismanaged and end up in the pockets of the corrupt , the roads due to the high volume of delivery trucks are in a state of disrepair,why because monies are been inappropriately managed by corrupt officials. For 45 years I have worked and payed taxes to a government that I believed intended to use those monies to improve the conditions of my countries infrastructure and grow this economy for the better of all, but instead I see the taxes ending up in the pockets of the corrupt and now I must out of the remaining monies not taken by the state at privately to have roads fixed , dams cleaned, infrastructure repaired. Take those taxes away , control the fuel price give me an private institution that I can see utilizes the monies effectively to the benefit of all.	Etienne	retired

The WEF summit in Doha is a classic example of an annual paid trip for representing countries talk show. They have the "muscle" to cap prices But No- they see past the World being held to ransom. I'd like a clear breakdown of exactly where this money is spent, as at present it appears to be swallowed up by the bottomless pit of corruption and government self enrichment for funding elections, lifestyle etc. We need an independent review of where the money actually goes. This should span at least the last decade and follow the money attained and where it had been utilised. Until this has been done all taxes should be removed and petrol priced accordingly. Fuel prices also have an extreme effect on the food price, which makes living even more unaffordable, and if people can only barely survive that affects the economy as well because almost nobody is spending money on anything else. We should also look into refineries in SA so that we do not have to import so much fuel etc.	Amanda

True richness in SA is derived from a healthy and strong economy, that benefits all. The rich benefits, and in turn, creates more job opportunities for the poor in a win-win relationship. If the fuel levies (price) is pushed up, temporary funding is attained for certain government programs presently, but this will not be sustainable. If the economy goes down, so will even those government programs being supported by this price hike, including future government programs funded by fuel levies, and inevitably, society will be negatively affected. Remove all levies and taxes except such levies who contribute to the salaries of the petrol attendants. The road accident fund levies can be incorporated into vehicle comprehensive insurances as the vehicle licensed/unlicensed owner should be held accountable for such contributions and thereby forcing all who drive / own or use any form of motorized vehicle at complying to such cover. The taxes can also be removed as a small percentage of tax payers contribute to more than 90% of the countries needs. Farmers also need a reprieve in fuel prices as they absorb the greatest burden. The ZAR/ USD is supposed to be R6... not R16... so we are already paying WAAAAAY too much for ALL imports. Not just oil. This is because of bad governance. We need proper political renewal and that needs a voting public to wake the hell up! If you bring down the fuel cost now, everyone will just go back to complacency. And the reduction in the fuel tariff will require an increase in taxes elsewhere. Probably the already over-extended minority paying all the taxes in the first place! AVOID that!!! The Fuel Levy like VAT is CRUCIAL as it lets EVERYONE make a contribution to the fiscus which VITALLY will wake EVERYBODY up the moment things get out of hand. Drop the fuel levy, and you will just create more political complacency, further concentration on a minority depleted tax base and probably escalate the emigration of more of our genius talent! How the hell must we make progress with such a plan? KEEP the fuel levy as it is so fuel prices don't come down too hard and let the bloody politicians off the hook AGAIN!!! 2022-06-27 14:05:06	Limpopo		Yes I do	The review in entirety	I for one think that this government with their excuses needs to be reviewed when it comes to the inflation of everything not just fuel prices, just read yesterday that the levies we pay is for the admin, the petrol attendants and then the other levies that accompany the fuel prices. It's hectic. I driver 50km everyday and spend nearly R3000 on fuel with an a small car just to get to work and back, not just this, with everything else inflating on a monthly basis that goes hand in hand with the fuel prices it's hard to look after family, it's hard just to take a break and rest a little, since covid I haven't gone on vacation and now with fuel and everything else going up its even harder just to go and relax after everything we went through this past almost 2 years and a half. Cost of living getting higher, companies closing down because of fuel prices including the idea that the company I work for could also decide to close down because of fuel prices. Haven't we suffer enough with higher prices during covid now we still have to suffer because they want to link everything to the Russia-Ukraine war? Is this fair towards us when we have so much levies on just one important item because government feels that taxpayers must just pay? Is it fair towards us that our government makes it so hard just to find a job because they cannot do their jobs right and only when seeing opportunities to fill their pockets they let us suffer while they don't pay for anything, they can do what they want and rule out us who pays their everything everyday for as long as we work and yet we cannot pay for anything but we bust our asses off to give them luxury while we sit without money for food? All this just because of them not looking after South Africans.	Rozchaan	employed individual

The fuel price must only consist of fuel costs & no taxes added to it. Fuel costs affect everything we buy, when it goes up, food, clothes & every thing else goes up & it never comes down. Sasol has to be mandated to sell fuel @ their cost plus 33.3% & not at international oil prices, it's theft! Sasol is making buckets full of money while the SA consumers are starving. Instead of paying R30,00/l for fuel, it can only be R10,00/l & Sasol will still show a hefty profit. I refuse to buy Sasol as they are stealing from us, it's a disgrace!	jan	employed individual

The additional burden on taxpayers is unfair as these individuals are essentially taxed more than double for the 'privilege' of being able to travel by car, bus or taxi. The government is abusing the different levies and taxes to cover costs that should have been covered by the taxes people pay (not to mention the taxes on goods and materials that are already paid). 2022-06-14 09:11:53	Gauteng		Yes I do	The review in entirety	The regulation of fuel prices cannot stay solely in the hands of the Government. Although some levels of fuel taxation are necessary, given that the majority of SA citizens don't pay any taxes, it is vital that expert independent reviews of all aspects that contribute to the fuel prices be done on an ongoing basis. The fuel levies are seen as easy target to fill the state coffers as fuel is an evil necessity in our country due to the non-existence of reliable and safe public transport for all citizens. Simple solution is to focus on creating a safe and secure environment in which the economy can grow which creates more jobs which in turn increases the tax base which in turn generates more income for the state and therefor negates the constant search by government for additional revenue sources. 2022-06-13 08:19:41	Eastern Cape		Yes I do	The review in entirety	Petrol has increase about 25% since the beginning of the year. This has a knock-on effect on EVERYTHING in this country as everything (food, clothing, etc.) is transported by road. The increase in fuel costs will be transferred to the end consumer (i.e. taxpayers and general public) who cannot afford anymore increases in their monthly expenses or, in some cases, will end not be able to balance out their transport costs with their monthly pay (they will spend more on their transport than what they earn). We are being taxed beyond reason which we cannot afford anymore. Government claims that inflation is only 5.5% this year but when considering the increase in food prices, inflation is closer to 10%, if not more, and the increase in fuel costs is not helping this at all. Additionally, there are far too many unnecessary taxes and levies built into the fuel cost (i.e. RAF which has been looted to the bones). The price structure is LONG overdue for a review. 2022-06-12 08:30:13	Gauteng		Yes I do	The review in entirety	It is time for an independent review of fuel levies. The current fuel taxes and levies of more than 30% are unjustifiable and unsustainable for the economy. Countries that buy their fuel from South Africa pay less than South Africans do. To make matters worse the staggering amount of money taxed is not visibly being used for what it is supposed to be used for, as seen in the degrading road infrastructure. Fuel levies must be done away with, bringing fuel prices down, and by extension, all living costs such as groceries etc. By lowering fuel prices, the economy will grow; businesses will increase their income and grow. This will mean more job opportunities and a broader base of taxpayers to support the country. The fuel levies are damaging the economy and endangering the livelihood of millions of already struggling South Africans. Doing away with the fuel levies/ taxes be a great step toward a stronger, more vibrant and faster-growing South Africa.	Renier	employed individual

					Neighbouring countries get their fuel from South Africa, yet in SA we pay far more than those neighbouring countries. In SA there is the corrupt RAF, and the fuel levy is not ring fenced for road maintenance, it just goes to the black hole of national budget. Not only do we need a full independent review of fuel prices, until SA prices at least reflect the lowest neighbouring country price that we supply, there is clear corruption in the SA fuel price. RAF should be scrapped - paying over R2 per litre on a standard car 50L tank twice a month is more costly than getting all road users to simply get a second license disc of 3rd party, fire and theft insurance on their vehicle. TPFT cover typically costs less than R100 per month and covers people way better than RAF in the case of accidents and injuries. Furthermore, fuel garages should be able to charge less than a maximum recommended retail price, to improve competition, just like diesel. Finally, the basic fuel price shouldn't be based on the oil price. Rather, it should be based on true production costs from Sasol and imports, floating depending on the ratios used per month. Sasol is a government company, so it has to do things in the public interest and serve the public, so a lower fuel price would dramatically help the economy and reduce inflation, since goods and everything needs fuel to get done. Fuel is the basis of an economy. High fuel prices means low growth.

Garages should be allowed to charge even a 1c margin per litre, not just mandate a fixed R2.29/L. This will open up competition like diesel currently, and consumers will pay better prices. If a garage manages their expenses properly, they will still be able to cater for wages of all staff despite the lower margins. Lower margins on a greater volume can net greater profit. Secondly, until the base petrol price at least mirrors the cheapest retail price of neighbouring countries that SA actually supplies, the fuel price in SA is purely corrupt. There are no funds recovered from State Capture. People are paying via the fuel price excessively, and one day the government will say they "recovered" all of the corruption funds, meanwhile it was just clever accounting from fuel sales and strategic reserves. The fuel price should at least match Namibia which is supplied by SA and their retail price is far lower than SA. Furthermore, corrupt RAF should be scrapped in favour of compulsory 3rd party insurance when renewing license discs, then everybody goes to the properly regulated private sector insurance for TPFT cover which is dirt cheap anyways - far less than the RAF taxes per tank. For example, one tank of fuel on an average 50L car has enough RAF tax to pay for more than a month worth of TPFT cover on that same car. Scrapping RAF will stop clear corruption and reduce the fuel price significantly. Just implement the law by copying a neighbouring country existing law for now, and within 2 years legislation suiting the SA environment can be finalised. Low fuel prices are key for combating inflation. If fuel is cheap, a person can travel everywhere and still have disposable income to spend in the economy, with knock on economic benefits. Increased spending = GDP growth. With high fuel costs, people have to drive minimally and a full tank means non disposable income to spend; so the economy will contract. With money being burned to the black hole of fuel, we will get nowhere.	Jyoshil	business owner

2022-07-05 11:00:51	Western Cape	Yes I do	The review in entirety	Tax on fuel drives inflation. Anybody with half a brain knows that lowering input costs in the form of transport (petrol/diesel), fights inflation and helps drive/stimulate the economy. Not to mention that it relieves pressure off consumers. Again allowing them to spend money and grow the economy. And yes, that is particular to SA where there is no proper function public transport system like in first world countries. South Africa where we like it or not is highly dependent on road transport, for products and to get to work. The ANC must stop trying to destroy this economy by their unwise decisions	Mark	business owner

2022-06-29 10:18:09	Western Cape		Yes I do	The review in entirety	A review must be done on the fuel price structure and petroleum industry in total. Fuel price is unaffordable and has a knock-on effect on all food and consumer goods. ALL TAX's must be removed from the fuel price. The fuel price must also be unregulated, this will bring some healthy competition that is needed. We currently import about 80% of refined fuel, where we have refineries in SA that is not working. The transport of fuel via Transnet pipelines must be privatized so that that levy can be removed. People must be allowed to put their fuel into their cars themselves. Service stations must be allowed to complete on price. Bee requirements on owning service stations must be removed. This will allow for the correct allocation of capital and will lower fuel prices. Fuel levies introduced for road maintenance must be paid into a trust for road maintenance. One trust per province. 2022-06-26 14:23:46	Gauteng	Yes I do	The review in entirety	The tax burden should be eliminated permanently. Why should we pay tax on fuel? It is a ridiculous notion to simply fleece the vehicle owning taxpayer, and is not in any way even spread over the entire population. If it cannot be entirely eliminated, then the recent R1.50 reduction in the tax levy must become permanent. Yes, the price of oil has increased substantially in recent months, and the exchange rate ZAR to USD doesn't help, but we need to see exactly what exchange rate is being used in calculating the petrol price, as it is entirely feasible that government is making use of this element of the calculation to, once again, collect more tax to be imbezzled. The population is already struggling with rising food and other costs, and simply cannot afford any further increases in transport costs, as these impact every single element of our lives. Government claims to have an inflation rate of +/- 6% but the last petrol increase of about R2/litre on a previous price of R20/litre is not 6% per annum but 10% per month!!!! and now they want a further 10% again. This is just highway robbery, or in simple terms theft!!! The term used is "under-recovery" but I question how this is determined. Surely we import fuel or oil in large quantities. This means that in a worsening exchange rate environment, earlier purchases are more favourable. The same applies in a rising oil price environment. Just another smokescreen for govt. to fleece the public!!! Please please please get this independent review done by an expert in the private sector who has the knowledge and experience to get the truth out and the petrol price amended downwards to help us all.	Evelyn	business owner

					South Africa's fuel tax levies and overall pricing needs to be assessed/reviewed to ensure that the consumer is not "savaged" by astronomical prices in personal fuel use. Further, high cost fuel inputs into the supply chain causes higher inflation in consumer goods; services and food. If the price of fuel is reduced, it is unlikely that producers will drop their prices at the same time and in proportion, as the producers become accustomed to higher turnover and profits and inflation creep sets in as a permanent mechanism. With the collective West imposing sanctions on Russian; Venezuelan and Iranian oil, which actions severely increase the oil price, the rest of the world suffers. South Africa should be talking to Russia - as India is - about oil supply and delivery, and we should be trying our best to obtain discounted oil from the Russians. Not only should we be looking for better oil deals, but we should be looking at Sasol and our refineries to see if they are optimised and assess whether there is any systemic or other "price gouging" where, as is happening in the USA to a major extent, corporations are hurting citizens of the country in the pursuit of profits which increased due to the Covid19 situation as well as sanctions. The following article makes for interesting reading in this regard: https://www.theguardian.com/business/2022/apr/27/inflation-corporate-america-increased-prices-profits All governments should realise that history often repeats itself and when the population becomes distressed and disenfranchised, civil unrest follows. The damage caused by civil unrest causes the situation to worsen due to the impact on the government and institutions to make good the repairs, and so the spiral tightens. This is NOT where we want to go. Joe Biden is in trouble due to his ineptitude and policies. Boris Johnson is likely soon to be forced to step down due to the impact in the UK of decreased living standards and his lack of concern about this issue. Scott Morrison is no longer the PM of Australia due to his negative effect on the Australian population. Bolsonaro may lose to Lula. Macron has lost his parliamentary power. Karl Nehammer of Austria is in trouble. Look at what is happening in Sri Lanka and Pakistan. If a party or leader wants to remain in power, he/she needs to take care of their citizens.... this is a cast iron fact.

2022-06-25 14:28:27	Western Cape		Yes I do	The review in entirety	The biggest increases by far in the fuel prices have not been caused so much by foreign costs (R/$ exchange and oil cost; note that oil price per barrel in the early 90s was considerably higher than in 2022!) BUT by excessive year-on-year SA govt increases in taxes (in respect of the mismanaged RAF and other govt levies) that far exceed annual CPI. These are mostly as a result of poor fiscal policies and unchecked corruption. The government is using levies and taxes on fuel as an ever-increasing source of its income. As has been suggested by government itself, fuel levies could also be used to fund the very expensive NHI and BIG and these would cause dramatic increases in those levies in the near future, laying the way for hyperinflation that obviously affects the poorest of the poor the most. So, fuel price composition should be carefully and independently reviewed by a sizeable and varied cross-section of society, including the private sector, and once this is agreed by that cross-section, the pricing methodology should be locked (ring-fenced) in law. Immediately though, the pump price of fuel could be reduced to around R16/l if the fuel levies and taxes were seriously reviewed or withdrawn.	Brian	retired

2022-06-25 01:39:54	Eastern Cape		Yes I do	The review in entirety	The fuel prices in South Africa are too high and everytime they go up are impacting on transportation costs and high foodstuff prices which impacts negatively on citizens of this country especially the destitute families which account for a substantial percentage of the country's citizens. The country has no adequate public transport system especially in rural area. It is way too much in the Eastern Cape rural areas where people are solely dependent on unroadworthy vans which are dilapidated but conveying people and substances like paraffin at the back of a van and pay exhaustive fares. Worse in a country that has uncontrollable taxi owners and drivers' attitude which impacts negatively on any attempt by government to provide subsidized public transport which may lower transport costs/fares. Social Security Grants and middle class salaries are rendered ineffective by the high costs of everything which are pushed up by high fuel prices. It pains when you see neighboring countries of which some buy fuel from our country but sell it very cheap in their countries. That reflects very negatively on our government. Any levies that are attached to fuel could be removed and the Department of Finance look at creative ways to put such taxes/levies and possibly generate the same revenue or more.	Thobela	retired

The income from fuel should be ring fenced and this money should be used to ensure our road networks and bridges are maintained and not go into the pockets of greedy politicians who do not have a clue what they are doing. Consideration should also be given to providing fuel at a reduced price to food producers.	Michael	retired

It has become a grudge tax, as the motorists are not seeing any of the benefits it is supposed to be used for. Our roads are falling apart. Most driving is done to get to and from places of business, or the delivery of goods. Businesses that generate the bulk of income for the country. Why penalize the workers that generate the economy? With the end result that the cost of living escalates dramatically with the poorest being affect most drastically. petrol and diesel are burdened with far too many add-ons so these have to be reduced. One item that could be removed is the road accident fund which could return to the old Third party insurance provided by the insurance industry as was the case in the distant past. The retail price all types of fuel must be deregulated to stimulate competition amongst sellers. The basic fuel levy should be much reduced or eliminated as the delivery piping infrastructure is well established and the costs of construction must have been recoved a long time ago. The national rail network must be utilied to eliver fuel to areas not on the pipe line infrastructure, this will not only reduce the delivery costs but also contribute to significant reduction of heavy vehicles on the roads as well as mitigating the risks of road colisions with their attendant dangers. Motor vehicle manufacturers must be encouraged to produce more electrically powered vehicles and the charging facilities for these vehicles must be upgraded. Othe souirces of fuel eg. hydrogen cells must be investigated and developed. Inner city motor traffic must be limited as much as possible consequently public transport must be radically improved particularly rail.	Noel

Where is the money?? And a further investigation is required regarding the corrupt MVA Fund or whatever it is called today. Then any 'tax' that is alleged to cover toll fee of any kind must be brought to light. Those who commissioned etoll and enabled the building of the infrastructure for it should be made accountable for making these decisions on behalf the people who were never consulted, and make good on the contracts, that entered without our permission. This was a huge step in destroying the SA economy. There were simultaneous road works on all the major routes!! It took hours to travel small distances in Gauteng. Costing the people dearly in fuel and time. All under the guise of prepping for Soccer World Cup 2010 where it was alleged the funding would cover the prep. Worst of all the two signatories to that fund viz Jacob Zuma and Sepp Blatter should account in full regarding where that money was applied and why!	Lucille

This is not right! They should make do with taxing things once and because they are PUBLIC SERVANTS, they should earn minimum wage like the rest of us poor folk. But they don't FEEL our suffering for themselves and that is why they continue to rape us and our resources. They don't feel what we feel and they have therefore no incentive to change anything for the better for us as citizens. They are the only ones who benefit from OUR hard earned money! THEY HAVE MADE OIL AVAILABLE TO INDIA AT VERY FAVORABLE RATES - AND INDIA IS THRIVING. 3 IF SA CAN AT THIS POINT SELL FUEL TO NEIGHBOURING STATES - WHY IS THIS GOVERNMENT TREATING SOUTH AFRICANS - LIKE THIRD CLASS CITIZENS IN THEIR LAND OF BIRTH???

					1. The fuel price affects everything else in the economy from food production, transport of goods, daily commute, used in generators during loadshedding etc. It needs to be as "cheap" as possible to help keep inflation in check. 2. Many things contribute towards the price of fuel, eg rand / dollar exchange, disasters, climate change, conflict etc. Fuel should be zero-rated - no levies. 3. Other avenues should be found to raise taxes for RAF, roads etc 4. Massive corruption & state capture has led to the collapse of SA rail so goods are being transported by truck. Our rail system MUST be re-established asap. Our roads were not built for the punishment and are being destroyed as a result. 5. Due to the climate crisis, the world is moving away from fossil fuels in the long term. It serves SA if alternate forms of transport & ueban mobility is implemented. 6. Our poverty level is over 50% and unemployment is around 35%. If these stats worsen it could put SA into a downward spiral we cannot stop. 7. The poor are affected most keenly by price shocks, especially when the cost of basic survival imperatives sky rocket, eg food, utilities, clothing, energy, housing etc etc etc. All around the world violent protests occur when such price shocks puts basic services out of reach. 8. Where possible, alternatives must be provided eg expand public transport (cities globally are drastically reducing fares or making public transport free), renewable energy to power homes etc, expand rail transport to move goods etc. 9. Energy independence reduces price shocks as a result of globalisation. Modern tech is available to facilitate & enable this - and it's affordable. 10. Protecting the welfare of a country's most vulnerable cirizens should be a high priority for the government at all levels of gov.

2022-08-04 13:17:36	Western Cape		Yes I do	Other	It is apparent that the taxes and levies included in the fuel price are not directed to the appropriate / correct expenditure areas by government or are not well managed to achieve best outcome for citizens. While the price build-up on an import parity basis seems a sensible approach it is the multiplicity of unrelated costs that is problematic. Price control probably needs to remain in place however a Maximum price may provide a more competitive environment. The are related regulations that cause higher costs and pricing that need review - for example regulation that requires "dispenser attendant" to perform refueling task. The technical specifications by way not restricting certain components put our scarce water resources at more risk than necessary. Manufacturing regulations and import regulations do not not induce local manufacturers to upgrade their plant (Three major coastal refineries are no longer operating and have not been forced to remediate their heavily polluted refining sites). Biofuels and Biofuels blending regulations should simply be deleted because they are so flawed in the context of an efficient fuel industry.	Neil	retired

2022-07-22 23:41:09	Gauteng		Yes I do	Inflation	Due to the failures of the ANC government to maintain rail infrastructure South Africa is reliant on the use of roads for the transport of goods. This means that any increase in fuel prices often quickly translates into increases for the prices of all goods, even many basic foodstuffs. With the addition of potential global shortages and international trade disruptions severely impacting the ability to import food on short notice if needed, the impact on the vast majority of South Africans could be catastrophic. In addition, transport and communication routinely makes up over 20% of most household's expenditure. 2022-06-28 13:49:15	Gauteng		Yes I do	Inflation	in my humble opinion This government is purposely stunting and destroying the economy because a rubbish economy establishes a society without basic freedoms, and not enough economy to take them to task for mismanagement. the poorer we are the less we can take them on in court. They make more money through corrupt practices and skimming profits off ever increasing fuels and land taxes etc, than if they would make if they where regular politicians who worked for a term for the people of the nation. in short, they do not care and have no "nation building" long term plans.	rollo	business owner

2022-06-28 08:27:34	Gauteng		Yes I do	Inflation	Government has been using fuel to subsidize the fiscal income to the detriment of the economy. All in South Africa should tighten their belts, and so should government too. There is huge amount of fruitless and wasteful expenditure, corruption and a burden of government officials that is not worth the seat they sit on. 2022-06-26 11:59:47	Gauteng		Yes I do	Inflation	It needs to be reviewed in it's entirety, and not only for the current fuel price crisis, but forever. Government is taking a huge chunk of many with every litre, and we have no choice, because we need to get to work so we can generate income tax, and employ people who have to travel to work in order to pay more tax, yet again. People on minimum wage cannot afford food, yet this crisis is in no way being addressed, the middle are becoming paupers, and pretty soon we'll also be jobless. This is insanity, the government is in place to protect their citizens, not bleed them dry. 2022-06-23 09:02:22	Gauteng		Yes I do	Inflation	Government has had a free reign for too long to decide what the fuel prices must be at the pump. As a small business where travelling is an essential part of doing business the fuel costs and associated taxes on fuel is a huge problem as it is making it unaffordable to my clients which means I am losing business. In order to bring down my costs I have had to employ less people which again contributes to the unemployment rate in this country.	Fred	business owner
2022-06-20 10:43:58	Gauteng		Yes I do	Inflation	The already over-inflated fuel prices are strangling the little of what's left of the stressed economy after the effects of Covid and lockdown, decades of government mismanagement, corruption and wholesale theft of the coffers of the fiscus. Any further increase/s will have deleterious effects on: 1. Corporates which will pass the increases onto the consumer who is already under severe pressure; 2. Small businesses which are a necessary component of job creation and will be forced to close their doors; 3. The end user, the consumer, who simply cannot afford basic needs and is living below the breadline; and 4. Unemployment, already at unacceptable levels, will, of necessity, grow. The government, which has empirically proved historically that it is incapable of providing basic needs to the country's millions of unemployed and those living below the breadline, will be widening the gap of the unemployed and poverty-stricken, a state that the country simply can no longer afford.	Michelle	business owner
2022-06-16 15:05:04	Gauteng		Yes I do	Inflation	Fuel prices effect everything -- price of food to the consumer, price of producing food, price of getting to places of work, price of keeping warm in winter etc. etc. This is making life ever harder for an already struggling population. Sasol produces a lot of our fuel. Why are our fuel costs tied to international oil prices when so much of the fuel is produced inside our country? Neighbouring countries get their fuel from South Africa and charge their population less than South African pay. This is largely due to the additional taxes and levies of the SA government. Any additional tax the government levies need to be looked at for possible corruption.	Heath	business owner
2022-06-16 14:59:44	Gauteng		Yes I do	Inflation	The price of fuel impacts everything in the country. I am particularly concerned about the cost of food (and its production) and how much it costs individuals to get to their places of work. There are many other knock on effects that make life harder for an already struggling population. The government taxes on the top of the basic fuel cost open the door for corrupt use thereof. I question why we are so serious impacted by the international price of oil when we have Sasol which produces a lot of South Africa's fuel inside this country. Further, neighbouring countries that get their fuel from South Africa are paying less than we are, and a lot of that is attributable to the lower levies and taxes involved.	Heath	business owner

2022-06-11 11:29:04	Eastern Cape		Yes I do	Inflation	The rate of increase in the fuel price is going to destroy the Country's economy as it is increasing inflation of every product in the country. The increases being experienced do not correspond to the increase in crude oil or processed fuel. The Government is again using this as an excuse to increase their own revenue as the other taxes and levies attached to the fuel price simply go up at the same rate as the oil increases. This is nothing less than theft by the Government from its people. Again the ANC is mismanaging the situation to the detriment to the people it is supposed to assist. Another piece of proof that the ANC does not give a damn about the people of this wonderful country. The Government disgusts me every day.	Chris	retired

Their goal is economic collapse so that the people (whom are called useless eaters and are laughed at by all the elites who are exempted from rules and regulations enforced on us) can die of hunger. Please explain how the same fuel that is sold in SA, costs almost half the price in neighbouring countries, especially since they get their fuel from SA? And they still manage to make a profit? Maybe this government should get rid of all the taxes added onto the base cost of fuel; taxes that in any case aren't being used for its so called purposes; taxes that somehow manage to find up in the pockets of those same government whose members are already overpaid. Maybe this government should wake up and realise that their time is running out - as corrupt and dishonest rulers, but also as human beings who will soon have to give answers to the Almighty God. A warning. I am inclined to believe the social media hype that all these taxes are intentional to create poverty so that citizens are so hungry that they would say yes to anything the government forces on them. Many people need to travel long distances to work or for personal reasons and a large portion of their income is used to cover transport costs. As a result other essential needs become secondary, such as food/nutrition, clothing, house maintenance, etc. and the general well being of people deteriorates. Dit het 'n uitkrangeffek op ALLES in hierdie land aangesien alles (kos, klere, ens.) per pad vervoer word. Die toename in brandstofkoste sal oorgedra word aan die eindverbruiker (dws belastingbetalers en algemene publiek) wat nie meer verhogings in hul maandelikse uitgawes kan bekostig nie of, in sommige gevalle, uiteindelik nie in staat sal wees om hul vervoerkoste met hul maandelikse betaling te balanseer nie (hulle sal meer op hul vervoer spandeer as wat hulle verdien). Ons word bo redelike belasting belas wat ons nie meer kan bekostig nie. Die regering beweert dat inflasie vanjaar slegs 5,5% is, maar as die styging in voedselpryse in ag geneem word, is inflasie nader aan 10%, indien nie meer nie, en die styging in brandstofkoste help dit glad nie. Daarbenewens, daar is heeltmaal te veel onnodige belasting en heffings in die brandstofkoste ingebou (dit wil sê POF wat tot op die been geplunder is). 2022-06-17 09:47:19	Western Cape		No I do not	The review in entirety	The first is that the SADC countries benefit mostly because they helped the ANC in their "struggle". Therefore they pay much less for fuel because they get some of their fuel from SA. We, who have to make ends meet and try and boost the economy that the ANC has failed to do during their 30 yrs in office, are suffering, including the "underprivileged" that they always like to refer to when they make laws that affect the man in the street that is working his heart out to make ends meet. I have nothing but disgust for the ANC regime. They want to harvest where they have not planted. Every institution is on their knees, thanks to the liberated ANC. I HOPE THAT THE PEOPLE WHO VOTED FOR THE ANC HAS NOW, AFTER 30 YEARS, COME TO THEIR SENSES. We were building contractors in the 90's. We built a house for one of the previous government's top brass. He took my husband out of hearing distance in the road and told him that we should get our children out of the country because every institution is going to fail and there will be no work for them within the next 30 years. THAT IS WHERE WE ARE NOW LEFT STANDING.	Antoinette	business owner

					The reasons for the fuel hike are unfounded, inconclusive and of poor context. The fuel hike is happening due to debt run up by parliament and ministers. Because they cannot budget. Now the people have to be punished for greed and state capture. If contingency budgets are and were set in place and adhered to and the actuality of the wastage of millions if not billions on expired vaccinations were recouped from the health Minister...instead of allowing her to stay incompetent. I don't think we would have had this issue. You see people we are paying for oil and vaccinations that they are importing as well as the power Karships that need to be run at our ports....instead of them putting up turbines, in the oceans; solar towers and so forth. 2022-07-06 12:02:49	Limpopo		No I do not	Unaffordable fuel costs	Half the fuel price is tax and rates. Botswana buys fuel from SA and still supplies fuel at the pump for between R14 & R15. Our government is milking SA dry. The ANC should step aside and let those who can, fix what they broke. Solutions: Get rid of criminal syndicates. Fix public transport so people have alternatives to trucks and cars. Create infrastructure that supports cleaner alternatives to break our dependency on fossil fuels. This will also create jobs. And stop raising taxes to fund the ANC corrupt cader. The current taxing is unsustainable.	Janetta	employed individual

If and when petrol goes down the price of commodities stay the same and there is no decrease. Hence the people suffer for that. Most companies cant afford to give pay increases due what country gone through Covid, State looting etc. Feeling is going round that the levies and Road Accident funds and carbon taxes are not being used in correct places. Look at the state of our roads and nothing being done. So the exorbitant increase on fuel needs to be looked into. Us poor South African's have to bear the brunt of incompetency. 2022-06-28 09:45:16	Gauteng		No I do not	Burden on taxpayers	We as South Africans are already living on a shoe-string budget as it is. How do we bridge the gap between poverty and middle-class? The gap keeps getting wider and far separated. Our high fuel prices are caused by unnecessary levies that only benefit a handful of citizens but negatively impacts the whole working class. Government ministers and MPs do not feel the pinch because they do not pay for for it therefore its another burden for taxpayers. It will only be fair tgat MPs & ministers also pay for fuel and we also reevaluate the RAF payout as they're unnecessarily high. Eg a person that is earning less than R100k p.a gets injured in an accident but gets a payout of 3 million Zar. It doesn't make financial sense. Already the RAF takes R6,30 from the fuel price per litre. Can the government take that to R1,50 rather? Its been proven that 85% of RAF recipients exhaust their payouts within 18 months and sadly they dont have assets or investment to show. This has become a frequent occurrence that a reality show airing on MNet Mzansi Magic has had 4 seasons documenting these "previously rich" people. In closing this ruthless and unfair behavior is damaging and affecting the working class and it needs to change	Lebo	employed individual

2022-06-14 18:33:07	Gauteng	No I do not	Burden on taxpayers	If they should be any review on the fuel prices which are currently exorbitant and unjustifiably unfordable, then such review should be for the benefit of working class and the poor however increasing fuel levies and taxes which further burden the tax payers is absurd . The total overhaul review should be done on the composition of cabinets and high unwarranted wage structure of the President, Deputy President , Mayor's, MP's and Ministers as well as high ranking office bearers some of which such posts are obsolete and not making any impactful contribution to the economy but on the contrary destroying it in the name of cadre deployment which further exarcebate the economic instability of the South Africa. The only review should be to cut down on irregular and fruitless expenditure and such review should cost effective to all tax payers and based on the current state of the economy of SA which is currently unstable due to political incoherence. There should also be punitive measure on those implicated in corruption and recovery of any monies illegally spend ton corrupt activities through the justice system but we cannot allow the tax payers to carry the financial burden due incompetence of the presiding government under the ANC leadership which is incorrigibly corrupt. There should be review of fuel prices to reduce the cost of fuel prices not to increase it to the demise of the tax payers. Also businesses which are not paying tax should be investigated to ensure that they also pay tax especially those businesses not registered or evading tax because having such an ungovernable SA is what is resulting in these kinds of unwarranted price hikes of everything. All the money stolen from government should be recovered through a systematic model that does not punish the law abiding hardworking citizens who are paying their dues as South African are hardly making ends meet . An overhaul review of the economic state of SA will be Paramount to bringing financial relief and such can be used as a a case study to endeavor to pinpoint the historical systematic root cause which is directly linked to corruption in SA and mismanagement of public funds which lead to inflation rate Spike and equally resulting in high rate of unemployment, food prices and poor basic services. Fuel prices should be subsidized from the tax already received by SARS without necessarily increasing the tax percentage to the burden of poor South Africans. If other countries such as Botswana are buying fuel from SA but paying less then it means someone is pocketing the money that should subsidising the South Africans in as far as fuel prices are concerned. SA should benchmark with other countries to establish which model such countries are using to stay afloat but first prosecute every corrupt official in the presiding government lead by the ANC so we can as nation start from a clean slate.	Cornerstone	employed individual

2022-06-14 13:44:59	Western Cape		No I do not	Other	There is so much income generated by Fuel taxes and it is needed to maintain social grants/ Road accident insurance/ infrastructure for fuel delivery, ect. This is an easy way to collect taxes, especially from the huge Taxi industry who is paid in cash and a lot of revenue is not declared, thus although painful and unaffordable fuel prices at present and very bad for the poorest of the poor- The taxes cannot be taken away- it can be adjusted for longer to support sustainable transport. in the long run it will have worse effects if these taxes are not collected. This is a cycle and a consequence of the Russian/ Ukrainian war, that must be managed by invention and plans . Fix the broken down rail system for cheaper city transport(If R22 million can be wasted on a flag pole - that means there is funds that can be re-prioritised)- Start with cheaper options like City busses to cut cost. Implement , reward and motivate bicycle traveling - this is used with huge success in Cities like the UK and Europe . I know this is long term solutions, but it can be implemented faster as there a crisis and innovation is at best when in crisis. Exclude more basic foods from VAT to support a poor nation in hunger - now is the time to scrap VAT on cooking oils, Chicken/ Beef and Pork. 2022-06-18 22:43:44	KwaZulu -Natal		Not fully	Unaffordable fuel costs	Firstly fuel price is put of reach for thousands of South Africans and still increasing drastically, we understand the war between Russia and Ukraine has a direct impact on our fuel cost but also taking into consideration the fact that our ANC government is adding high taxes to our fuel cost, the RAF also comes out of our fuels cost and it shouldn't be that way, why should the people of South Africa be held ransom for the failures of the ANC, the government needs to reduce the taxes on our fuels cost ASAP or soon we could find thousands of South Africans left stranded and jobless, we supply other countries with fuel but their fuel cost cheaper than us and that's not fair to us, once again the rising fuel costs point directly to the corruption and failures of the ANC government who in my opinion don't care about the people in South Africa. Also to be more precise I don't think an independent review system on the fuel prices will be favorable as we got to consider we are procuring our fuel at a reasonable rate just the government taxes imposed on fuel is to high so yes the taxes on fuel should be cut by atleast R6 on a litre, if the government failed how will an independent review system work as everything must be passed through government as per constitution, it's just pity once again the poor man has to suffer. 2022-06-13 13:37:57	Gauteng		Not fully	Unaffordable fuel costs	The government has become dependent of the taxes it receives from the fuel and would have to load the taxes elsewhere if the fuel levy was removed. People in SA are too heavily taxed already and this destroys capital accumulation for improving their lives or developing businesses. What lies in the dark for the moment is the potential for a rates and tax boycott/rebellion. The reason for such a violent (?) rebellion is that the taxes seem to go to cadres who produce nothing. We get nothing from the state and have to get private security, healthcare, etc. All the money goes to management and nothing is created in return. Our roads are not car worthy yet we need to be roadworthy to use the road. IF neighbouring countries like Mozambique and Botswana can have their petrol/diesel STILL under the R20 mark it PROVES it is being taxed too heavily. This is rising food costs and the poor are getting even poorer, the middle-class are starting to spread their wealth less because they also need to look out for their families first. 2022-06-12 03:48:54	Gauteng		Not fully	The review in entirety	The review panel, like the Zondo commission, will probably drain the economy, be another massive burden on taxpayers and go absolutely nowhere or improve anything. Cut down on the taxation of fuel by 75%. Cancel the Road Accident Fund as more than 90% of the money disappears into a deep, bottomless pit of salaries, attorney fees and into some well lined pockets. Export fuel to our neighbours at the prices we pay including the taxes. Tax and regulate the taxi industry as they consume a massive amount of fuel. Increase the coastal price and reduce the inland price by 50% each. Encourage national investment by South Africans. R100 of your SASSA money makes you a shareholder. Encourage more home industries and more localised production. Buy and produce local to where you live.	Amanda	retired

2022-07-05 20:29:11	Gauteng		Not fully	The review in entirety	People are already living way below their living costs. Fuel prices are the main instigators. People has to get to work, with the rate of employment and lack of increases to cover all the basic necessities it is becoming more difficult to survive and support their families never mind repaying their debt. The whole costing structure should be reviewed and all are unnecessary screwing taxs should be take a out. Why should we let them screw us with our own money beyond my comprehension. 2022-06-25 12:20:28	Gauteng		Not fully	Burden on taxpayers	It has to be recognised that the SA fuel price is about mid-level in international comparisons, The risk of any reduction in taxation would be a simple transfer of the taxation amount to some other form of tax, with no actual savings. The main element for close examination should be the "Basic" price of imported fuel, which seems artificial, and does not seem to allow for the partial local sourcing from SASOL. The remaining elements of the retail pricing (Wholesale/retail business operating margins) seem essentially reasonable. The issue of the RAF levy creates confusion in the comparisons, but it is highly likely that separating this out in favour of a separate compulsory Third Party insurance would simply increase total costs in the mistaken view of benefitting the consumer. An overhaul in the operations of the RAF organisation is a separate issue entirely.	AJ	retired

2022-06-13 23:04:36	Gauteng		Not fully	Burden on taxpayers	Mr Minister why are the South African Motorists being taxed to infinity by your government. We the public are the milking cow for the governments expense account. Taxes are simply added on top each and every year. And very little goes to show for it. Look at the situation of our roads except for the western cape. Road marking is virtually something of the past and where it is done it is done amateurly, pot holes are in places filled with sand or mud. Cement is used in places to fill black top pot holes. This is absolutely ridiculous. Sir where is our taxed money going? I think it is time for you to take a very serious look at the regulation of the feul price. Things cannot continue like it is at the moment. I earlier wrote to you about a third Sasol even a fourth. To make RSA independant to the USD. We have done it with Sasol one and two. We have enough coal reserves. Sir then the taxing will be used correctly and not exorbantly. I know that an agreement was done to regulate feul prices with the USD when Sasol came into existance. We are an independant country, why still hang onto that agreement. Make our own fuel and forget the ancient agreement. John public will not continue to cry out because of the escalation of so called taxes. When it is used to produce a product made in RSA. Job creation is another important factor in Sasol three and four. A no brainer don't you think?????	Anthony	retired
2022-06-28 11:24:55	Gauteng		Not fully	Burden on taxpayers	Firstly who will pay for this independent review? I say increase fuel taxes all you want, but provide tax relief thereafter for all citizens and businesses etc. that pay their tax dues every month. This is also one of the easiest ways to increase the tax paying base. Do away with the Road Accident Fund for the corrupt institution that it is, and don't set up a successor as it will most likely follow the same fate with the current government regime. Rather spend that money on safety in the first place to prevent accidents. There are of course high risk possible consequences involved with the choices that will be made. I.e possible rioting, looting, black market and monopoly empowerment etc. However, these outcomes are almost inevitable at this stage. As there is not enough policing, prosecutions and consequences for such crimes. Also the market conditions don't exist for good competition anyway as the state and local government cannot even provide a sound business environment to drive economic activity forward that would lower the base cost of fuel in the long run.	JG	employed individual

2022-06-13 12:57:22	KwaZulu -Natal		Not fully	Other	The government has become dependent of the taxes it receives from the fuel and would have to load the taxes elsewhere if the fuel levy was removed. People in SA are too heavily taxed already and this destroys capital accumulation for improving their lives or developing businesses. What lies in the dark for the moment is the potential for a rates and tax boycott/rebellion. The reason for such a violent (?) rebellion is that the taxes seem to go to cadres who produce nothing. We get nothing from the state and have to get private security, healthcare, etc. All the money goes to management and nothing is created in return. The most important reason to leave the tax on the fuel is because when fuel becomes expensive, people will minimize its use to save money, which reflects resources. This saves us the foreign currency used to import fuel. Our falling exchange rate will create untold problems for our economy if we wastefully use fuel because it is cheap! So rather let fuel be expensive to conserve our foreign currency earnings for more productive uses.	Allan	retired
2022-06-21 06:04:45	Western Cape		Not fully	Other	If the fuel price is deregulated oil companies and petrol stations will be able to charge whatever they want, knowing that people will NEED petrol and will pay what they have to to get it... Thereby exploiting us as citizens. With a regulated fuel price these companies are limited as to what they can charge for petrol I suggest government officials have their petrol allowances taken away and stop stealing so that our treasury wouldn't need the funds generated from overtaxing fuel. Our government officials aren't doing the country a favour by showing up to work so they shouldn't get the petrol they consume to get to work and anywhere else free of charge. 2022-07-06 08:04:46	Gauteng		Not fully	Other	Fuel prices are ridiculously high, impacting the cost of everything. I would support an independent review as long as there is no link to corrupt government officials. Until this can be accomplished, we can only expect further increases, more corruption and higher prices. The burden on taxpayers is out of control and government is flying around in private jets. Their salaries are adjusted to include increasing costs, but that of the average taxpayer is not.	Carrie	unemploy ed individual

2022-06-27 05:21:05	Gauteng		Not fully	Other	A review sounds like a wonderful idea. So much money is wasted on levies, which quickly disappear into corrupt pockets. If the state would actually employ an independent person, with no affiliation, we might make some headway. Unfortunately I feel that any review would be tainted by corruption and end up costing taxpayers even more. There is most certainly not even a bigger for this as the money has already disappeared.
