	2025-12-13 11:14:16	No I do not	Weaponising laws	These proposed laws steer towards criminalizing any person not thinking, talking, or acting like the state dictates. This is counter to the constitution and counter to God-given free will. Today you declare Israel as an apartheid state and any Christian even praying to God who sent His Son through the nation of Israel to save the world is now a criminal; these are Christians who generally love the world with God's love and become salt and light to South Africa. Tomorrow you declare farmers as apartheid supporters, and anyone who speaks up or helps a farmer is a criminal? What's next? Perhaps all people with white skin will be declared as symbols of apartheid. Or anyone speaking Afrikaans? South Africa already struggles to police actual crimes of theft, hijacking, murder, rape, etc., but now, like in England, you propose the policing of thought and speech while allowing true crimes to run rampant. Worse, you empower the average citizen with laws through which to report and persecute their fellow South Africans. Instead of love and unity, these laws will sow further division and hatred. 	2025-12-13 11:03:59	No I do not	Weaponising laws	Our criminal government is an intimate friend of pro-Iran, pro-Hamas, pro-Hesbollah, pro-Islam, anti-Christ, anti-Israel, anti-America, anti-Western civilization, anti-common sense and anti-everything that is good and wholesome for the human race on planet earth. If Islam gets its way and could have its say, Christianity would be banned, churches would get burned, and Christians would be persecuted, fined, jailed and (in our lifetime) be publically beheaded and slaughtered in the streets of South Africa - as it is already happening as we speak: perfectly “normal” behaviour in countries where Islam rules. Islam should be banned. It is not a religion. It is a terrorist orginization, posing as a so called “religion” of “peace.” Remember: their so-called “prophet” was a murderer, a war lord, a rapist and a paedophile; and their so-called “god” (Allah) is Satan / Lucifer himself - the father of lies. Islam has proven itself over and over to be a demonic death cult. Read their Qur’an and take seriously what it stands for and what it promotes: the death and public slaughter of all people (of the entire human race) who refuse to submit to Islam. That obviously implies: death to America, death to Israel, death to all Christians and death to Western civilization as a whole!	Philip	Western Cape		business owner

	2025-12-13 10:57:27	No I do not	Weaponising laws	1. Entrenchment of Race Rather Than National Unity Apartheid’s greatest injustice was the elevation of race as the primary determinant of opportunity and dignity. We fear that the proposed bill re-entrenches racial classification in law, perpetuating divisions rather than moving South Africa toward the non-racial society envisioned in our Constitution. Redress must be temporary, targeted, and reconciliatory, not permanent or punitive. _____ 2. Threat to Economic Growth and Employment South Africa faces record unemployment, declining investment, and fragile economic confidence. We are concerned that: • Increased regulatory uncertainty will discourage local and foreign investment • Businesses will be burdened with compliance rather than growth • Job creation will slow, harming the poorest South Africans most Economic contraction cannot be the foundation of justice. _____ 3. Disproportionate Benefit to Political and Economic Elites Past experience shows that broad race-based policies often benefit a small, connected elite, while the majority of poor South Africans — especially unemployed youth and rural communities — see little improvement in their lived realities. True transformation must address poverty and opportunity, not merely demographics. _____ 4. Constitutional and Rule-of-Law Concerns We are deeply concerned that the bill may: • Conflict with Section 9 (Equality) of the Constitution • Grant excessive discretionary power to the executive • Erode legal certainty and judicial independence South Africa’s Constitution must remain the supreme and stable foundation of our democracy. _____ 5. Risk of Social Polarisation and Instability At a time when unity is essential, this bill risks: • Heightening racial tension • Reinforcing “us versus them” narratives • Undermining social trust and reconciliation South Africa’s future depends on cohesion, not division. _____ 6. 	2025-12-13 10:53:16	No I do not	Weaponising laws	I write as a concerned citizen and Chief Operations Officer committed to South Africa's growth, reconciliation, and shared prosperity to submit my opposition to the proposed Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025, introduced by Hon. Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP. While I fully acknowledge the profound evil of apartheid and South Africa's moral duty to stand against racial oppression in all forms, I believe this Bill, as currently envisaged, risks undermining the hard-won foundations of our constitutional democracy rather than strengthening them. My key concerns are: 1. Redundancy with Existing Law Apartheid is already criminalised as a crime against humanity under the Implementation of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court Act, 2002 (Act No. 27 of 2002). Introducing a stand-alone offence with broader definitions and extraterritorial application creates unnecessary duplication and potential legal confusion, without meaningfully enhancing accountability. 2. Risk of Vague and Selective Application The broad definitions in the 1973 Apartheid Convention – including criminal responsibility for those who "abet, encourage or co-operate" in alleged apartheid practices – could be interpreted subjectively. This raises serious risks of politicised or selective prosecution, potentially chilling freedom of expression, association, and legitimate political engagement protected under sections 16, 18, and 19 of our Constitution. 3. Threat to National Unity and Reconciliation South Africa's transition from apartheid to democracy was built on truth, forgiveness, and deliberate bridge-building rather than perpetual retribution. Reopening expansive criminal liability for "apartheid-like" practices elsewhere risks deepening divisions at home, rather than fostering the inclusive, non-racial society envisioned in our Constitution's founding provisions. 4. 				This bill does more than target foreign policy, it targets the Church directly. - There is no Christianity without Israel. - There is no Bible without Israel. - There is no Messiah without Israel. - There is no salvation story without Israel. To criminalise support for Israel is to criminalise Christian belief, because the foundation of our faith is rooted in Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, the Covenants, the Prophets, the Apostles, and the land from which our Lord Jesus Christ came. This is not merely political overreach, this is the attempted erasure of Christian identity in South Africa. This Is a Direct Attack on the Church The Church cannot be silent. While we fight the CRL's attempt to regulate religion, another front has opened, a frontal legislative assault designed to weaken, silence, and eventually criminalise the Christian voice. If the Church does not stand now: Your pastor could be criminalised for praying for Israel. You could be criminalised for visiting Israel or taking tour groups to Israel. Your church could be prosecuted for hosting an Israel solidarity event.Believers could face charges for posting Scripture about Israel on social media. Christian organisations could face legal consequences for supporting humanitarian work in Israel. This is NOT a small matter. This is NOT a foreign issue. This is NOT a debate for academics. This is an attack on the Body of Christ.

	2025-12-13 09:13:44	No I do not	Weaponising laws	We are Christian democratic country that protects religion, free speech, who and what to support or vote for (be it a political party, individual or country), to eat whatever I want, go wherever I want, do whatever I want (within the law), but now this ANC government bought by Iran has thrown open our borders to alleged Muslim refugees/asylum seekers, etc, especially those two planes full of Palestinians, without vetting them, causing Islamic extremists to come into our country with their radical ideology, which they are trying to enforce through our constructional laws. Europe is already in turmoil due to all the Muslim immigrants legal/illegal being forced down their throats by the International Human Rughts Commission. Are we next? Why are the Muslims arming themselves in South Africa? Men and woman, 21 yrs and older are all applying for firearm licences, I know because I used the be in the SAPS , before I retired, but not even the big shots in the SAPS or Crime Intelligence picked it up. The member from my Station who brought it to the attention of the Station Management and Provincial Office was quickly transferred to another Station and different deparment. We are facing a big problem, like Europe and America, where radical Islamist's are trying to take over, some countries they already have, enforcing their ideology and Sharia laws. Stop this and bring it to the attention of every South African, because those that pick the side of the Islamist radicals, by taking part in protests, etc, don't know that they are being used and will at the end be treated the same as the people that take a stand and oppose this. They should not, just as Israeli's with the aim to kill innocent Palestinian civilians should be regarded as terrorist. Any person, does not matter what Colour, race or religion, should be respected. This bill does not make distinction between innocent civilians and terrorists. I support Palestinian civilians. I won't support any person that is trying to take life or quality of life from an innocent person, neither will I support any authority that promotes that. 	2025-12-13 08:26:54	No I do not	Weaponising laws	+8 What is Al-Taqiya? : r/indianmuslims Taqiyya (or taqiyah, taqiyeh) in Islam is the religious allowance for a Muslim to conceal their faith or identity when facing severe persecution, threat to life, property, or honor, allowing them to deny their beliefs or pretend to hold others to avoid harm, a concept particularly emphasized in Shi'a Islam due to historical minority status but also recognized in Sunni traditions. It's rooted in Quranic verses and permits dissimulation (hiding one's true feelings) only under compulsion or imminent danger, not as a general license to lie, with strict conditions to protect the core faith, notes. Key Aspects of Taqiyya Purpose: To safeguard life, property, or reputation from severe religious persecution, not for worldly gain. Origin: Stems from Quranic injunctions about protecting oneself, as seen in verses like “except when taking precaution”. Shi'a Emphasis: Developed significantly within Shi'a Islam, where Shi'as, often a minority, used it to survive pressure from Sunni majorities. Sunni View: Also present in Sunni jurisprudence (Fiqh), discussed by scholars, though the term is less common, notes. Conditions: It's a dispensation for dire circumstances (danger to life/property), not a blanket permission for deceit, stressing that Allah knows the truth. Misuse: Some misuse the concept for general dishonesty, which is condemned by Islamic teachings, say sources like Quora and New Age Islam.	Rashaad	Western Cape		employed individual

	2025-12-13 07:39:11	No I do not	Weaponising laws	Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025 I have followed the development of this proposed Bill with growing concern and wish to formally place my objection on record. While I unequivocally reject apartheid as a historical system of racial oppression and injustice, I am deeply concerned that the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025 poses a serious threat to constitutionally protected freedoms — particularly freedom of religion, belief, expression, conscience, and association. 1. Infringement on Freedom of Religion and Belief Section 15 of the Constitution guarantees everyone the right to freedom of religion, belief, and opinion. Many religious traditions — including Christianity, Judaism, Islam, and others — contain theological teachings, moral frameworks, and doctrinal beliefs that speak to identity, community boundaries, covenantal relationships, and moral distinctions. The Bill, as proposed, risks criminalising sincerely held religious beliefs or theological expressions where such beliefs are interpreted — subjectively or politically — as "segregation," "separation," or "preference," even when they are non-racial, non-coercive, and purely doctrinal. The State has no constitutional mandate to police theology. 2. Chilling Effect on Freedom of Expression Section 16 protects freedom of expression, including the right to hold and express opinions that may be unpopular, controversial, or offensive to others — provided they do not incite violence or constitute hate speech as already defined in law. The Bill's broad and undefined scope creates a chilling effect, where citizens may self-censor religious teaching, academic debate, historical commentary, or moral discourse for fear of criminal liability. This undermines the open and democratic society envisaged by the Constitution. 3. Violation of the Principle of Legal	Dean	Gauteng		business owner

This is not an Islamic state neither is it. a Christian state. No religion has the right to have ownership of our country! As we seek unity in our nation, legislation is not the answer, talking to each other is. People and their greed will NOT have South Africa! SA is not for sale to the highest bidder! Hands that seek to divide us even more must be taken off our Nation and NOt be given the opportunity to have even this much say! What will be legislated next, how we dress, where we eat, how we practice out beliefs? I sympathise with those in the heart of this conflict but SA is a Nation all on its own with a diverse group of citizens. I am FOR South Africa as a whole.	Charnelle			employed individual

	2025-12-13 07:29:44	No I do not	Weaponising laws	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. Lies and truth is used and twisted because of a failing , dishonest Government (South African) who cares very little for the very people they say they care about and their reasoning is only about political gain and using their power to achieve what their flesh wants. As a follower of the Only True Living God and Jesus Christ we are commanded to pray for our Government even when they attack our faith and the living God we serve. We pray for those who are truly innocent as well as the quilty in Gaza but we do not and will not stand for those who are using the situation to gain wealth through these situations. We pray for the families who's loved ones were brutally murdered on October 7 . We pray for the children and adults in Gaza who is facing the consequences of the brutality of their elected leaders (Hamas). Many of these Gazens did not understand what they were doing when they hid hostages and many still don't understand what they have done. It's been 2 years and Hamas who is there elected leaders will keep on lying to them and using them to gain more and unfortunately they will not be satisfied so will keep it up as long as they can . Some countries are in tern using this for their own political game and gain . We will continue to pray for you South African Government because time is running out. God is not mocked ,and that I fully understand from the books in the old testement in how God dealt with Isreal and nations who kept on and is still turning against Him who is the creator of Heaven and Earth and all in it. 	2025-12-13 14:17:04	No I do not	Weaponising laws	Jy kan hierdie comment gebruik. Copy dit as jou motivering I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-13 14:15:07	No I do not	Weaponising laws	An outrageous and hateful bill capitulating to islamist factions within the government who do not have South African interests at heart but instead are determined to polarize the society and introduce an unrelated religious war into South Africa. This bill would do nothing to further the interests, safety, or justice system within this society. It is designed to terrorize a marginalized minority and weaponize the legal system to silence and prosecute people who have committed no real crime. It aims to drive Jews and their supporters out of society and out of the country.	Tamar

	2025-12-13 14:01:44	No I do not	Weaponising laws	Implementing laws that can potentially be used to enforce government policies - even if citizens disagree with it - can fundamentally go against our country's constitution. It can be used to control free speech and freedom of religion. For instance, many believers of Judeo-Chritian believes may support that the country of Israel are correctly situated, based on historic and religious text. However, these same believers may not agree with how the country of Israel are handling the affairs and creating an "Apartheid state". In such a scenario, believers of Judeo-Christian believes can be prosecuted indiscriminately for "supporting Apartheid". On the other side, South Africa is against terrorism. Would we then prosecute people based on the Islamic faith indiscriminately because of the numerous well-known Islamic-based organizations that commit acts of terror? No we would not! Hopefully the example given shows how such a law - especially when member of parties state how it can be weaponised - can be used to prosecuted certain groups of people. We as a country, are still healing from the wounds of the past. Would we be any better to create new wound based on our current wound?	Nico	Western Cape		employed individual

	2025-12-13 13:57:00	No I do not	Weaponising laws	Are we now a country residing in the Middle East? Are Arabs/Muslims going to enforce their laws in this so called democratic country? I would like to ask the political leaders of South Africa to go read up about Islam, the so called Mohammed that they praise, and see what type of individual he was what he did in his lifetime, how he treated people, and then take stock of all these accounts. Oh and by the way, Israel is the most democratic country in all the Middle East. I am totally baffled about how it's called an Apartheid state, when many Jews are people of colour, and have tribal ancestry linked to Africa, particularly Ethiopia, Jews that lived in Morocco before Arabs infested it, large parts of the Middle East and India. The leaders of this country, brainwashed by propaganda, this needs to be stopped very quickly. Quick question to our government on the Free Palestine movement. Why don't Arab countries step in and help these so called "Victims". Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia all backing off, WHY????? Something South Africa is not aware of? 	2025-12-13 13:56:03	No I do not	Weaponising laws	Parliament could propose an amendment that might limit or redefine rights, but In practice: any such amendment must still pass the high thresholds and be tested against constitutional principles. If an amendment clearly undermines entrenched rights (like equality or freedom of religion), it could be challenged and struck down by the Constitutional Court. This means you are protected from arbitrary removal of rights simply because a Bill is passed — South Africa's constitutional system has multiple safeguards: Public participation in the amendment process, Super-majority voting requirements, Provincial involvement, Judicial review by the Constitutional Court. Our rights are reserved as per the Constitution therefore you cannot infringe those rights. Period.	Bettie	KwaZulu-Natal		retired

	2025-12-13 13:39:29	No I do not	Weaponising laws	Hi as a young woman I have enough reason to believe that this bill does not intend to do any good. In fact I have reason to believe that it just there to bring destruction and chaos and fear. I believe that it would directly take away from the Freedom of speech and freedom to own ones religion. I do believe that apartheid was wrong. However this does not reflect a transparent bill. Apartheid by law has already been stopped. This seems like a trojan horse to implement destruction on anyone who does not side with particular views. I do believe that on the contrary this is advocate for a new form of apartheid that could cause even greater destruction. As a woman of God I believe that Jesus Christ is the way the truth and the Life. I would however never force something that I am passionate about on people to limit their freedom. To address the matter at hand should always remain the primary concern. And in South Africa today the primary concern is absence of good principles and a moral compass. Perhaps that should be the parties primary focus.	Tamara	KwaZulu-Natal		business owner

	2025-12-13 13:36:27	No I do not	Weaponising laws	This bill is the continuation of Islamic State's influence on the ANC's taking Israel to ICJ, which was erroneously labelled as South Africa's action. Passing this bill as law will will advance Islamic State activities in South Africa. Islam has much more influence in the grassroots life in South Africa, and this bill will allow them to execute people under the guise of apartheid against Palestinians if they do or say anything that that Muslims think is a support to Israel. This is has much more in it than what they are saying. The church of Jesus Christ is the direct target of this bill and the future of South Africa looks very dark if this bill ends up passing as law. It remains a mystery that Muslims are the minority is South Africa yet they have so much control such that every South African fund their worldwide terrorist activities through Hallal Trusts that collect money every time we buy groceries in South Africa. 	2025-12-13 13:34:11	No I do not	Weaponising laws	The Apartheid Bill is being presented as a neutral human rights instrument. In reality, the way it is structured makes it a direct legal pathway to target Zionists, Jewish community members, pro-Israel South Africans, and Israelis living in or visiting South Africa. This is not an accidental side effect. It is built into the design. The Bill Is Built on a Definition Already Applied to Israel and Zionism The Bill adopts the broad and highly political definitions of "apartheid state," "apartheid policies," and "the crime of apartheid" from the 1973 UN Convention. South African politicians driving the Bill have repeatedly declared that Israel is an apartheid state and that Zionism is an apartheid ideology. Once those definitions are written into domestic law, the state is positioned to treat support for Israel as participation in or assistance to an apartheid regime. That shifts Zionist identity, Jewish communal ties to Israel, and ordinary pro-Israel views into potential legal exposure. 2. Supporting Israel Can Be Framed as Participation in Apartheid The Bill criminalises collaboration, assistance, endorsement, or promotion of an apartheid state. If Parliament classifies Israel as such, then any of the following can be interpreted as assisting an apartheid regime: • Attending a Zionist youth movement • Donating to Israeli hospitals, charities, or humanitarian organisations • Volunteering or studying in Israel • Posting pro-Israel views online • Working for companies that have Israeli partnerships • Using Israeli technology or software • Travelling to Israel for religious, cultural, or business rea	Alicia	KwaZulu-Natal		employed individual

				The “Apartheid Bill” is a Threat to Every Christian, Pastor, Leader and Believer and anyone who stands with Israel. This is then a direct threat on and on our democratic history. This Bill Actually Seeks to criminalise any South African, including pastors, churches, Christian organisations, intercessors, and individual believers, who support Israel in ANY form. The bill enables South African courts to prosecute anyone accused of: - supporting Israel - assisting Israel - promoting Israel - defending Israel - even speaking in favour of Israel … by classifying such support as an act connected to “apartheid.” This includes citizens, dual citizens, organisations, churches, and individuals, even if the alleged “act” happened outside South Africa. This bill does more than target foreign policy, it targets the Church directly. - There is no Christianity without Israel. - There is no Bible without Israel. - There is no Messiah without Israel. - There is no salvation story without Israel. To criminalise support for Israel is to criminalise Christian belief, because the foundation of our faith is rooted in Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, the Covenants, the Prophets, the Apostles, and the land from which our Lord Jesus Christ came. This is not merely political overreach, this is the attempted erasure of Christian identity in South Africa. It is a Direct Attack on the Church to silence the Christian witness, isolate the Church, sever our biblical roots, and punish believers for aligning with Scripture.

	2025-12-13 20:00:15	No I do not	Weaponising laws	The ICJ case against Israel is only supported by a small percentage of the South African population and NOT the population at large. The ANC government started the ICJ court case when they were in full control of the government, but have since lost a large percentage of their traditional support base, as evident by the last general election voting results and consequential GNU formation. I have serious doubt that the GNU would have initiated an ICJ court case against Israel. The argument that Israel is an apartheid state is false as there are many non-white people (Israeli citizens) living and working in Israel, who enjoy any and all benefits that the white people are enjoying. There is NO discrimination between different races, as is falsely implied. People making these claims have most likely never been to Israel to see firsthand what the state of affairs is, but base their understanding on hear-say and false propaganda. The SA constitution allows for freedom of association and free speech and this law proposal is directly against this. It seems as if this is a religious vendetta against Israel, as the bill is being proposed by a person of Islamic faith and it is public knowledge that even leaders in the Islamic faith regularly states on public forums that they want to kill all Jews and Christians. It should not be allowed that religious or cultural groups in South Africa prescribe to citizens how to live their lives and dictate to them who they may or may not support, like or associate with, bar criminal activities of cause. 	2025-12-13 19:14:57	No I do not	Weaponising laws	South Africa is a democratic country founded on the principles of ubuntu and equality. There is no place in our country for one race or religious group or culture to dictate how citizens should conduct themselves in any sphere of life. Such thinking is wholeheartedly against everything that our forefathers fought for during the actual apartheid era. It is grossly against every section of our Constitution, or rule of law and our African principle of ubuntu. 	2025-12-13 19:08:18	No I do not	Weaponising laws	I oppose the new Apartheid bill. Not because I deny South Africa's history, but because this bill is dangerous in how it can be used. The definition is too broad and vague, which opens the door to selective enforcement. Laws like this are easily weaponised against political opponents, dissenters, or unpopular views. It risks criminalising opinion, association, or speech, rather than addressing concrete criminal acts. That undermines freedom of expression and democratic debate. South Africa already has laws to address discrimination, hate crimes, and human rights abuses. Creating an expansive new offence is redundant and shifts focus away from enforcement of existing law. In a country with deep political divisions, such a bill is likely to be applied unevenly, eroding trust in the justice system. Laws should unite and protect citizens — not become tools for political pressure or ideological policing. History must be remembered and taught — not redefined in a way that risks repeating authoritarian patterns under a different name.	Louise	Western Cape		employed individual

This bill's express purpose is to weaponise SA law against Israel in its war with Hamas and is not of any benefit to South Africa's citizens. Our laws should not attack our own citizens for their beliefs and political affiliations, but should rather protect us. The vagueness of the proposed bill means that the law can be weaponised against our own citizens, which is a sad state if it ever happens. This has sufficiently removed Apartheid from the life of South Africans. The proposed draft Apartheid Bill therefore has an alternative agenda than national welfare. It neither raises prospects of improved international welfare. It seems to seek weaponising laws to prosecute South Africans that support Israel. This serves a side agenda to retract the freedom of South Africans and manipulate them to conform to certain political viewpoints. 	2025-12-14 05:58:23	No I do not	Weaponising laws	1) No definition of apartheid or crime of apartheid stated; it is not adequate to say it will be “based on the Apartheid Convention”. 2) This appears to be intended to antagonise, and harm the freedom of association of Jewish, Christian, and Israeli South Africans. This will likely have little to no impact on the State of Israel, but will impact South African minorities. 3) This is a politically and ideologically motivated extraterritorial engagement that is likely to result in costs to each South African (tax funds used for development and prosecutions, which come from but aren’t spent on aiding South Africans), with no positive impact in RSA and little to no impact outside RSA; all while incurring considerable foreign relations risks 4)Israel is the only democracy in the Middle East - it fights evil terror regimes like Iran and it is the only safe haven for Jews around the world, facing renewed antisemitism. This law would be a grave mistake and a double standard as no other dictatorship or terror regime is held to similar standards. 5)It s a direct breach against people's human rights, freedom of choice and it is oppressive. 	2025-12-14 04:02:41	No I do not	Weaponising laws	A DIRECT ATTACK ON THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST IN SOUTH AFRICA The “Apartheid Bill” Driven by Al Jama-ah Is a Threat to Every Christian, Pastor, Leader and Believer South Africa is facing one of the most dangerous legislative attacks on religious freedom in our democratic history. The political party Al Jama-ah, an explicitly Islamic party represented in Parliament, is pushing the so-called “Apartheid Bill”, a proposed law that poses a direct threat to Christians, churches, pastors, and anyone who stands with Israel. This is not simply a political matter, it is a spiritual matter, a biblical matter, and a matter of Christian survival. 1. What This Bill Actually Seeks to Do If passed, the bill will criminalise any South African, including pastors, churches, Christian organisations, intercessors, and individual believers, who support Israel in ANY form. The bill enables South African courts to prosecute anyone accused of: - supporting Israel - assisting Israel - promoting Israel - defending Israel - even speaking in favour of Israel … by classifying such support as an act connected to “apartheid.” This includes citizens, dual citizens, organisations, churches, and individuals, even if the alleged “act” happened outside South Africa.	Annie	Mpumalanga		self-employed
	2025-12-14 04:01:43	No I do not	Weaponising laws	You cannot criminalise people's personal religious and political opinions. This may be cloaked as politics, but it is weaponising religious convictions. The Israel/ Palestine debate is a sensitive issue, and people's political opinions are largely based on their religious beliefs. The Muslim population of South Africa zealously support Palestine and loathe Israel. It is what their religion teaches them to do. The Christian population of South Africa to a large extent love and support Israel and are appalled by the violent terrorist attack on October 7. This is what our religion teaches us to do. We have freedom of religion in South Africa. Christians have a right to love and support another country, as do Muslims. You cannot criminalise either side. We already have anti-apartheid laws in South Africa that protect our own people. There is no need to add anything to it, particularly if it is intended to influence what is happening in another country. Why is the Israel and Palestinian conflict being singled out to legislate our personal beliefs? What about what is happening in other countries? Are we going to criminalise one side of the Ukraine/ Russia conflict? And which side are we going to choose? The South African constitution does not give the government the right to decide our personal opinions and religious convictions for us. This is purely a partisan political attack on the nation of Israel and anyone who supports them, like the ICJ court case. It does not by any means reflect the will of the South African people. I respectfully remind those in parliament that our rainbow nation includes large numbers of Christians and Jews, as well as Muslims. If we are to live together peacefully and democratically, then those in parliament cannot criminalise people's religious convictions and favour one side in attacking the other, especially for the purpose of influencing what is happening thousands of miles away and has no bearing on our own country. 	2025-12-14 00:04:16	No I do not	Weaponising laws	If South Africa really wants to show, then start at home and get your own affairs in order FIRST. This EXPLICITLY means means removing permanently and criminalizing and and all legislation, policies, practices, etc. which give PREFERENCE and/or ADVANTAGE to one group over another based on race, ethnicity, religion, etc. Stop these ideologically, racially, religiously driven attempts. Anyone who argues is a LIAR and has no respect for facts or a good faith look at the the Israel-Palestine situation. Blind support (and effectively FORCING ANY OTHER OPINIONS REGARDLES OF HOW VALID OUT BY LEGISLTATING EXTREME CONSEQUENCES) has nothing to do with values of a democratic, open, free and tolerant society and everything to do with authoritarian and tolatiatarian which this entire initiative makes it clear that there are many parties in South Africa wish to implement. The eradication of the state of Israel is NOT an option and any group that proposes or supports or advocates for that is the real threat to human rights. All of slogans from "kill the boer" to "from the river to the sea ..." are not consistent with any so-called "anti-apartheid" legislation. Any group unable to appreciate the atrocity committed by Hamas on Oct 7th is not on the side of human rights. The gross misuse of language wand wanton disregard for historical accuracy when referring to so-called "genocides" (while IGNORING real and unconvertible cases happening RIGHT NOW because it does not fit a specific narrative or involves perpetrators from an real or imagined marginalized group) is totally unacceptable. This bill seeks to weaponize law for the sole purpose of a power grab with absolutely NO intention to solve any real problem. This is thinly veiled attempt to mark the Palestinians as saints being oppressed by an evil regime in Israel but it will almost certainly morph into a more widely used provision to go after ANYONE who can be be incorrectly and unjustly accused of "Apartheid". 	2025-12-13 22:54:59	No I do not	Weaponising laws	This once again is a direct attack on and a means to shut down the Jews and Christians, the Jewish and Christian faiths in this country. This is a means of destroying our democracy and diversity. If we let these extreme individuals, because they are extremists, control just one aspect of the constitution, it will shortly be completely changed to kill and brutally punish all those who do not abide by their measly standards. This is definitely a form of terrorism. This is what happens when you overlook highly important issues and disregard them as insignificant, it will eventually kill you! It's very ironic that these extremists want to effect an "Apartheid" bill to further their belief systems and selfish gains when they themselves are enforcing a type of heinous apartheid on other people and religions in this country by controlling what people think and believe and forcing them to obey lies and immoral practices, it's an unashamed resurrection of a different type of apartheid and the abuse of our current freedom and democratic constitution. The name al- jama- ah carries a worldwide connotation of terrorism and negative changes to where ever they are located. If this "Apartheid" bill is allowed, essentially terrorism is being allowed. "Apartheid" bill equals terrorism! South Africa will not support apartheid on any level at all, none! We are not allowed to support Israel and yet must support the apartheid that these terrorists are enforcing on us? Never! We do not want their heinous apartheid! Also this country has many, many issues and problems within itself that is not being resolved and yet there is bravery to stir up more problems, especially on an international scale! Foolish! 2 Chronicles 7:14 NIV [14] if my people, who are called by my name, will humble themselves and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, and I will forgive their sin and will heal their land. Thirty years after the end of apartheid, this legislation has almost nothing to do with addressing apartheid as a historical crime and everything to do with deflecting responsibility for the failure of the current political order. South Africa already has comprehensive constitutional, criminal, and international legal frameworks to address racism, discrimination, and crimes against humanity. Those frameworks have not failed due to current Political leadership. This Bill attempts to revive apartheid as a permanent political weapon in order to shift blame away from three decades of corruption, cadre deployment, institutional collapse, and large scale looting of public funds. Instead of enforcing existing laws and prosecuting real offenders within South Africa, the state seeks to manufacture new, vaguely defined crimes with broad ideological framing and extraterritorial reach instead of taking responsibility for crimes in their own network. Using criminal law to moralise politics is dangerous. It replaces accountability with scapegoating and justice with narrative control. South Africa's history proves what happens when law is used to serve political agendas rather than clearly defined criminal conduct. This Bill risks repeating that mistake under a different moral banner and should be rejected.	Jean Pierre	Western Cape		business owner

	2025-12-13 20:56:37	No I do not	Weaponising laws	The Bible passages that state, "Whoever blesses Israel will be blessed, and whoever curses Israel or stand against, will be cursed," are primarily found in Genesis 12:3, where God promises Abraham, and in Numbers 24:9, where the prophet Balaam declares this principle regarding Israel. These verses establish a foundational promise from God: blessing those who bless Israel brings blessing, while cursing those who curse Israel brings a curse. Key Verses: Genesis 12:3 (NIV): "I will bless those who bless you, and whoever curses you I will curse; and all peoples on earth will be blessed through you." Numbers 24:9 (NIV): "Blessed is he who blesses you, and cursed is he who curses you." (This is from a prophecy by Balaam about Israel). These verses are central to understanding the biblical concept of God's covenant with Abraham and his descendants, extending to the nation of Israel, notes	Jacques	Western Cape		self-employed

If an amendment clearly undermines entrenched rights (like equality or freedom of religion), it could be challenged and struck down by the Constitutional Court. This means you are protected from arbitrary removal of rights simply because a Bill is passed — South Africa's constitutional system has multiple safeguards: Public participation in the amendment process, Super-majority voting requirements, Provincial involvement, Judicial review by the Constitutional Court. Our rights are reserved as per the Constitution therefore you cannot infringe those rights. Period.	Elizabeth	KwaZulu-Natal		retired
	2025-12-13 20:14:32	No I do not	Weaponising laws	I oppose the proposed Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025, because it risks weaponizing South Africa's legal system and its painful apartheid history for narrow political agendas. 	2025-12-14 10:50:53	No I do not	Weaponising laws	You cannot and should not use human law to try and prevent people from believing in the Christian faith and its fundamentals even when recent actions by Israel might being questioned. To criminalize any association to Israel and/or any of its history is to criminalize all that is also good about it or which originated from it. The bases of Christianity is unconditional love for God Almighty (trinity, including Jesus), then love, respect, fairness, tolerance, integrity, compassion etc. No human law on earth can even come close to the Law presented by God and through Jesus. Living by these fundamentals creates a society of peace and prosperity for all. Human laws are flawed and often misused for personal/group gain to the detrimental of others. 	2025-12-14 09:45:32	No I do not	Weaponising laws	I strongly oppose the proposed Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. South Africa already possesses a comprehensive constitutional and legislative framework to address discrimination, inequality, and human rights abuses. This Bill is therefore unnecessary, duplicative, and risks creating legal uncertainty and selective enforcement. The crime of apartheid was a uniquely historical system in South Africa that has been dismantled. Reintroducing apartheid as a broad criminal category in current legislation risks politicising the term, undermining legal clarity, and trivialising the real suffering endured under the former regime. I am further concerned that the Bill may threaten constitutional principles such as the rule of law, equality before the law, and freedom of expression, while diverting parliamentary attention from urgent national crises including unemployment, crime, and service delivery failures. For these reasons, the Bill should be rejected in its entirety.	Rina			unemployed individual

We have the God given right to believe in Jesus Christ and to follow Him. Unless Muslims lose their rights to speak of allah, Mecca and all other rights equal to what is planned for the Christians in this bill, along with every other religion in South Africa, then that means that it is merely a means to gag and control Christians. 	2025-12-14 09:38:25	No I do not	Weaponising laws	I am deeply concerned by the proposed “apartheid bill” because it undermines the very foundations of our democracy: equality, freedom and the protection of minority rights. South Africa’s history should make us especially vigilant against any legislation that categorises people, restricts freedoms, or disproportionately impacts a particular community. This bill is deeply troubling in how it sidelines the rights, safety and freedom of Jewish people — a community with a long and painful history of being marginalised through discriminatory laws. Freedom of religion, expression and identity are fundamental rights, not privileges to be selectively applied. Any law that compromises these freedoms for one group weakens them for all. To support legislation that echoes exclusionary thinking is a disgrace to the constitutional values we claim to uphold. Justice cannot exist where freedom is selective, and equality cannot survive where minority rights are treated as expendable.	Natalie	Gauteng		employed individual

	2025-12-14 11:48:32	No I do not	Weaponising laws	The South African government is exposing more and more of itself, more openly and shamelessly, of what we have known for long to be communist and supporting terrorism. All that is true and good, every wholesome virtue, is deliberately being supressed and oppressed, now being weaponised even more aggressively, out of greed for power and money. The government is a dictatorship; now proving itself as fascist. The aim is clear and based on a raw, gross apartheid system currently in existence and growing into a monstrous beast seeking to devour and kill, attenpting to silence truth and to persecute freedom. This shows that there is a lot, lot more the government is trying to hide, and they are selecting utterly destructive allies that thrive on sheer terror. There are shouts of "ubuntu" and "power to the people", but it does not exist. The voice of the nation is ignored, trampled and spat upon. These laws are criminal in itself: devaluing some citizens, making a mockery of some groups' human rights, and directly contributing to hatred amongst nations and cultures. This truly IS an Apartheid Bill; it IS Apartheid in its worst form (saying this carefully because the depths into which the current government sinks, keep surprising the South African nation; just when we think the government can't stoop any lower). Instead of promoting respect and dignity for every culture and every person's free opinion in South Africa, a more appalling polarisation has never been seen before in this country, than as proposed in this bill. 	2025-12-14 11:46:18	No I do not	Weaponising laws	Everyone has freedom of speech. It is a law in south Africa. Many of us Christians do not agree with Isreal killing innocent people. But we are in South Africa and not Isreal. This should not have any dealings with us. Killing any human is wrong but attacking a whole religious group in a country not directly involved in the killing is absolutely wrong! Acting as such makes you no different from Isreal. Rather stand together and fight the real issue rather than fighting each other. There is so much more bigger issues our county on its own is facing now we are being attacked for what another country is doing. Please move to Gaza and put up laws there. ? This is tantamount to Tyranny being meted out on every single citizen in South Africa and shockingly even on every foreigner that visits South Africa!!!!!????.Seriously????This also goes against the absolute tenants of Christianity and the foundation of Christian truth based on the Bible which was not only inspired by God and put into written word by Jewish people but has its Biblical birth place in Israel.... from where it went forth into the then Gentile Roman and Greek Empire.... Israel is considered not only the Holy land of Jews but of Christian as well, to deny South African Christians to visit or even go on pilgrimage to the Holy Land of Israel is a form of Persecution... in fact this whole Bill is a Bill to inflict injustice and persecution on all Christians throughout South Africa and even foreign visitors to SA who are believers in Jesus Christ and the Holy Land of Israel where Jesus was born taught and lived is absolute persecution of the worst order, it also takes away our absolute right to freedom of speech and our right to Judaeo/Christian belief in God!!!! Our individual Sovereign right to believe in Jesus Christ as our Lord and Saviour is given to us as Christians by God Himself.... no human on earth has the right to interfere so egregiously with it... 	2025-12-14 16:27:11	No I do not	Weaponising laws	The proposed Bill is A DIRECT COUNTER TO THE ESSENCE OF OUR CONSTITUTION, in that it negatively impacts various of the Rights of THE MAJORITY OF THE POPULATION, with regard to FREEDOM of Religion, -ASSOCIATION, and FREEDOM of SPEECH. The majority religious grouping in the country is CHRISTIAN, based on the Stats SA Census information (±86% of the population). This makes the Judeo-Christian Right to the Various Freedoms the OVERRIDING CONCENSUS. By introducing this draft Bill, to set “Apartheid” as a stand-alone crime, Al Jama-ah IS AGAIN FOSTERING RACIAL FRICTION. THIS WILL GIVE RISE TO MORE ACTS OF XENOPHOBIA. These will LIKELY BE DIRECTED AT ANYONE that supports/visits ISRAEL IN PARTICULAR, and THE JEWISH PEOPLES. It may even go as far as being applied to anyone challenging Islam! REAL SOUTH AFRICANS, Black, Coloured, Indian and White, DO NOT NEED THIS KIND OF ISLAMIC ACTIVISM – A PRELUDE TO PROPOSING SHARIA LAW? As a people, we need to ensure that the RADICAL ISLAMIC ELEMENTS do not take over our dear country. They are ALREADY MAKING HEADWAY in this regard. BEWARE!!! On a daily basis, we, the South African public, get along well together, without interference from the political spectrum. This bill is being PUSHED BY THE SIGNIFICANTLY “PROGRESSIVE LEFT” PARLIAMENTARY GROUPING, that DOES NOT CONSIDER HOW THIS WILL AFFECT THE WHOLE OF SOUTH AFRICAN SOCIETY. This bill is misguided, in that it is attempting to create a piece of legislation for enforcement beyond the boundaries of South Africa – ABSOLUTELY LUDICROUS. There are MORE THAN ENOUGH INTERNATIONAL / GLOBAL INITIATIVES THAT ADDRESS THIS VERY ISSUE. WILL IT BE APPLIED TO THE ANC’S “REVERSED APARTHEID” LEGISLATION, known as BBBEE? All of that legislation, (SOME 142 OF SOME 157 ACTS PASSED SINCE 1994) that is EFFECTIVELY A FORM OF RACIAL SEGREGATION / DISCRIMINATION (or “Apartheid”)? We have enough criminality in the country, without having to criminalise every other person in our society. Yet ALMOST NOTHING IS BEING DONE TO CORRECT OUR IN-HOUSE CRIMINALITY.While the Bill may act as the “enabling legislation”, as required to make the UN Apartheid Convention of 1973 enforceable in domestic courts, IT IS BEING WIELDED SPECIFICALLY AS A WEAPON in support of, and exceeding, the reach of the ANC’s ICJ case AGAINST ISRAEL and THE JEWISH PEOPLES. This proposed Bill has the POTENTIAL OF LOWERING THE THRESHOLD FOR PROSECUTION by FOCUSING SPECIFICALLY ON “INSTITUTIONALISED REGIMES OF SYSTEMATIC OPPRESSION”. The Bill proposes to grant South African courts wider jurisdiction over “the crime”, EVEN IF IT IS COMMITTED OUTSIDE THE COUNTRY. It will be difficult to enforce, so, why waste our time. Government is UNABLE, or UNWILLING, TO EVEN ENFORCE what is already on the statute books!!! STOP WASTING OUR TIME!!! Help us GROW THE ECONOMY, so that ALL OF THE POPULATION may benefit, NOT JUST THE ANC ELITE.	Fred	Western Cape		retired

	2025-12-14 16:21:29	No I do not	Weaponising laws	The support for Palestine against Israel does not reflect the view of the majority of South African citizens. It is the government and few political parties that supports Palestine, and for political reasons such as the ANC getting money from them for making a case at the ICJ against Israel. As such, this law is simply not democratic, as it does not reflect the view of the PEOPLE of South Africa. Further-more, South Africa itself is by definition literally guilty of apartheid because of their race based laws, expropriation of land without compensation, singing of songs like "Kill the Boer", farm murders, refusal of state-owned/state-influenced main stream media to report on farm murders, refusal of police and courts to do anything about farm murders etc. South Africa is in no position to concern itself over apartheid, it should look inwards at it's own state of apartheid. 	2025-12-14 16:08:28	No I do not	Weaponising laws	The proposed Apartheid Bill being driven by Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP of Al Jama-ah is so widely and broadly written that it could be used to criminalize any dissent of the Government or to crack down on opinions voiced in opposition to the views and/or propaganda emanating from internationally recognized terrorist groups or other Islamic regimes. The proposed Bill could be used to breech constitutional and human rights and might serve to limit, restrict or punish the freedom of expression and freedom of religion of certain groups, in particular of Jews, Christians and other Bible believers. It might be used to punish, limit or restrict opinion, dissent of, or criticism of the political views of the ANC. The “Apartheid Bill” might be used to criminalize support of Israel and punish those who do not conspire to the belief that Israel is an Apartheid State. The Apartheid Bill might be used to punish and suppress freedom of expression and opinions on Islam and/ or criticism of the political views of any Muslim, conversely it might be used to suppress, stamp out and punish Biblicaly held beliefs. 	2025-12-14 16:02:30	No I do not	Weaponising laws	This law is anti-Christian, in a predominantly Christian country and goes against our rights to freedom of belief and speech. Also Christianity and Judaism is connected Biblically to each other as we believe in the same God... and Christians believe in Jesus Christ as their Lord and Saviour... that He is the Messiah... Israel is considered the Holy Land for all Christians and the land of the Bible. The Bible to all Christians and Jews alike is considered the divine Word of God, inspired by God through the work of the Holy Spirit who inspired Jewish Believers to put His word, The Bible into writing.... How dare this leader of this Islamic party seek to force his beliefs on South African Citizens who are predominantly Christian and stand with Israel and the Jewish people... this action that this leader wants to enforce on the citizens of SA is against the Bill of Rights which is upheld in our Constitution giving us the freedom of belief and choice and movement... allowing us to even visit Israel and support Israel if we so desire and wish to do so... he has no right to infringe on our beliefs or our desires to stand with Israel... that is our inherent right as citizens of SA and it is also our sovereign human right as given to us by God Himself as His Children... He who is God has given us the freedom of our own will, to choose what we wish to believe or not to believe, no government on earth has the right to dictate to us the people what we may or may not believe or stand for.... this right is also enshrined in our constitution. 	2025-12-14 15:49:01	No I do not	Weaponising laws	The term 'Apartheid' has a specific definition and context. If a state of affairs does not match what occurred in South Africa between 1948 and 1994, it does not constitute Apartheid. The term 'Apartheid' and the crime of implementing such a system has been bastardised, by individuals, religious groups and Arab colonial movements, as well as so-called human rights groups, to suit political agendas and has specifically been weaponised against the democratic State of Israel, which this bill targets. What is farcical about the entire proposal is that the preamble to the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid states that "the process of liberation is irresistible and irreversible and that, in the interests of human dignity, progress and justice, an end must be put to colonialism and all practices of segregation and discrimination associated therewith". The Arabs present in Israel, who are referred to as Palestinians, are only present on Jewish land as a result of Arab colonialism, which spread across the Middle East and North Africa from the Arabian Peninsula. Instead of introducing bills which seek to perpetuate Arab colonialism and forms of ongoing Arab discrimination against non-Arabs and dispossession by Arabs of indigenous land and rights, Parliament would be better-advised to introduce bills which seek to put an end to this phenomenon. Palestine is the colonial name for Israel, like Rhodesia was the colonial name for Zimbabwe. It is time for Parliament to open its eyes, wake up to the reality of historic and ongoing Islamic conquest and Arab colonialism in the Middle East, and seek ways to redress it rather than continually target Israel because it perceives it to be "Western" and "White". In addition, the bill itself, which does not appear to have been published and with the Al-Jama'ah website being conveniently offline for "maintenance", appears to go much further than the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid by introducing concepts and definitions which were never conceived of in the convention and which bear no relation to it or to the definition of ‘Apartheid’ (which term, by the way, relates to discrimination on the basis of race – and Arabs/Palestinians are not a racial group). Rather focus on fixing this country which, in the absence of our success on the rugby pitch, is becoming an international laughingstock.	Yehuda	Gauteng

What are the parameters for the use of this law? Would it be used against Christians, Jews, persons who are affiliated with countries, such as the USA, Hungary or Israel (to name three countries that are allied to a state, Israel, which the current ruling party of South Africa has designated as “Apartheid”) and would it be used to recruit voters for political parties in order to influence forthcoming elections? This Proposed law poses a threat to the citizens of South Africa, who wish to live in peace with one another, without being labelled as a Pro-Apartheid racist, which causes further division amongst the people. Apartheid no longer exists in South Africa, thankfully, thus why do law makers want to resurrect it? It was a beastly regime and South Africans want to move on and live without fear of political ostracizing based on an opinion of a state that is far from South Africa. Law makers need to concern themselves with serving the people who have put them in power, in order to unify the country and its people. I voted for a government that would concern itself with our country and our affairs, not create lawfare as a result of foreign policy - which is a waste of resources. Let us live, let us be free and let us have the freedom to make a living alongside our fellow countrymen and women. Will this law be used as a means to denaturalise citizens who were born here, whose parents and grandparents were born here? We are heavily classified into racial groups as it is, why further classify persons by religion or their private views? Are we, the people, the enemies? This proposed law is a pro-Apartheid law in that it seeks to separate people along religious, ethinic & ideological lines.This is a means to propagate harm.	Samantha			unemployed individual

This Proposed law poses a threat to the citizens of South Africa, who wish to live in peace with one another, without being labelled as a Pro-Apartheid racist, which causes further division amongst the people. Apartheid no longer exists in South Africa, thankfully, thus why do law makers want to resurrect it? It was a beastly regime and South Africans want to move on and live without fear of political ostracizing based on an opinion of a state that is far from South Africa. Law makers need to concern themselves with serving the people who have put them in power, in order to unify the country and its people. I voted for a government that would concern itself with our country and our affairs, not create lawfare as a result of foreign policy - which is a waste of resources. Let us live, let us be free and let us have the freedom to make a living alongside our fellow countrymen and women. Will this law be used as a means to denaturalise citizens who were born here, whose parents and grandparents were born here? We are heavily classified into racial groups as it is, why further classify persons by religion or their private views? Are we, the people, the enemies? This proposed law is a pro-Apartheid law in that it seeks to separate people along religious, ethinic & ideological lines.This is a means to propagate harm.	Samantha			unemployed individual

	2025-12-14 14:25:07	No I do not	Weaponising laws	There is no apartheid in Israel. The Arab people are represented in the Knesset, military , vote, and reside where they wish etc. it is the only true democracy in the Middle East. They have a history of 3000 years proved by ecological firings. The Palestinian people were originally the Jews , called so by the Roman Emperor Hadrian in 135 ce to wipe the name of the Israeli name from the face of the earth.	Albie

	2025-12-14 19:16:28	No I do not	Weaponising laws	I am against the bill It is vague, seems a fishing expedition to find apartheid under any stone -especially for issues occurring between Palestine and Israel. The parties in SA for this, keep talking about sovereign test. The constant statements of we are as a “sovereign state” should not then be used to support organisations the seem to have links to organisations like Hamas.T his will invite a lot of political pressure from other countries. The strange thing is that nothing I being done to stop the conflicts and crimes of oppression in Middle Easter countries by all these same organisations, opening up a line of questioning “why not?”. There are so many reports of human rights abuses in Middle Easy, and look at the abuses in Africa , b being ignored. This just highlights the aim to destroy Western Countries, bottom line. And will lead to conflict. South Africa has enough crime, murders, GBV government involvement in corruption, and it seem even hit squads , theft nepotism, and racial discrimination by the government .The same government who supports the murder of women, and opponents’ of Regimes , like Iran They are complicit in crime against Humanity it seems . The south African government cant even bring criminals to book in our own country , pushing our own citizens into the ground while they try to look good with despotic regimes.How will they Fast track this????..A there is already the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid (1973, entered into force 1976): This seems to be a smoke screen to further other hidden agendas, and could lead to more violence in South Africa. • Apartheid is recognized as a crime against humanity, placing it in the same category as genocide, enslavement, and torture. • It is considered a jus cogens norm violation (a peremptory norm of international law), meaning no state can lawfully justify or excuse it. • The prohibition of apartheid is universal, and perpetrators can be prosecuted internationally, even outside their own country. Now what is the reason for this other than wanting to enforce the hidden agendas mentioned above?? • There are documented cases of oppression and inhumane acts in Middle Eastern countries. • But from reports, not all forms of discrimination or oppression apparently qualify as “apartheid” under international law. The term is reserved for systematic, institutionalized racial domination with the intent to maintain that regime.Is that not what is happening in those countries???conveniently…….??? What is good for the goose is good for the gander….Selectively using the term “Arpartheid” as a propaganda tool. • The most prominent and debated example in the Middle East is the Israeli–Palestinian situation, which is contested internationally. 	2025-12-14 19:06:25	No I do not	Weaponising laws	They are using corrupt systems and politicians in SA to further their own exclusive anti-Israel agenda!! Israel is not an apartheid state!!! They are constantly threatened with annihilation, on 7 fronts, and have the right to self-defence!! Radical Muslims seek majority rule to enforce their jihadist / islamic agendas + enforce sharia law; it is an evil barbaric system that worships death above life, and EVERYWHERE they have infiltrated, there is death and destruction!! There is no tolerance for any other faith, but their own - it is not a religion of peace!!! They are the haters and racialists! People need to do their own due diligence and fact checking as their propaganda machine is relentless; there is no honour or integrity in their reporting; they willingly sacrifice their own women + children, and their sheer savagery + merciless barbarism is being evidenced daily in Africa, Middle East, Europe, America and Australia.
	2025-12-14 18:54:42	No I do not	Weaponising laws	This draft Apartheid Criminalization Bill which has been pushed through under the radar by the leader of Al Jama-ahl has the support of the ANC and every far-left party in Parliament. If adopted the legal and constitutional consequences will be severe. Although the explicit intent of the Bill is to declare Israel an “apartheid state” it goes further by declaring that those South Africans who support Israel are therefore complicit and will be criminally charged. While South Africa already recognizes apartheid as a crime against humanity under the Rome Statute Act (2002), the aim of the Bill is to establish it as a stand-alone crime with broader, specific definitions and extraterritorial reach. It will negatively affect South Africa internationally leading to isolation from the West diplomatically and especially economically and puts at risk our international memberships. What is even more concerning is that this Bill will effectively override the Constitution, put an end to due process, and criminalize anything the government labels as “apartheid activity” – this can include journalists and media, free speech, any criticism of the ANC, the defending of minority rights, or even making YouTube videos. It is clearly a desperate attempt by the ANC to cling to power at all costs as the party loses support and has to defend itself against issues of poor governance and continued rampant corruption. The ANC can and probably will use this Bill as a political weapon to take away our freedom and hard-earned rights under the Constitution in order to retain its strangle-hold on the country and to stamp out any opposition. It is the most authoritarian law proposed in democratic South Africa.	Zandré	Western Cape		student

	2025-12-15 08:37:52	No I do not	Weaponising laws	I respectfully decline to support this petition. I am concerned that the use of legal frameworks to declare Israel an “apartheid state” oversimplifies a deeply complex and long-standing conflict and risks politicising international law rather than applying it impartially. The term “apartheid” has a specific legal and historical meaning rooted in South Africa’s past. Applying it to Israel ignores important distinctions, including the fact that Arab citizens of Israel have full citizenship, voting rights, representation in parliament, and access to the judiciary. While serious challenges and injustices undeniably exist in the region and deserve honest scrutiny, broad labels can hinder constructive dialogue rather than promote accountability or peace. I believe international law should be applied consistently and fairly, without selective targeting or ideological framing. Genuine concern for human rights should prioritise dialogue, coexistence, and negotiated solutions that recognise the rights and security of both Israelis and Palestinians. For these reasons, I cannot support initiatives that I believe contribute to polarisation rather than reconciliation, or that risk weaponising the law in ways that undermine its credibility. 	2025-12-15 08:13:50	No I do not	Weaponising laws	The fact that our government supports Muslim islamists, who's leader Muhammed calls for murder of anyone who isn't muslim, is already very concerning. In light of the above, this bill isn't constitutional, it's a personal attack on anyone who isn't Muslim and this is one way to demonize a large number of the population who support Israel due to our Christian beliefs. Passing this bill only shows favoritism to the Muslim religion, who are called to murder all infidels according to the Quran.	Andrea	Gauteng		employed individual

	2025-12-15 08:00:15	No I do not	Weaponising laws	I cannot support this proposed bill as it raises serious concerns about the weaponization of legislation and the potential for unintended consequences that undermine fundamental freedoms. While I understand the intentions behind addressing international issues, creating domestic laws that target specific groups or nations sets a dangerous precedent that could be expanded beyond its original scope. History has shown that laws designed to restrict one group can eventually be applied more broadly, potentially limiting freedom of expression, religious liberty, and the right to hold diverse political viewpoints. South Africa's hard-won constitutional freedoms—including freedom of religion, speech, and association—must be protected for all citizens, regardless of their personal beliefs or international sympathies. I fear this legislation could create an environment where South Africans face discrimination or persecution based on their faith perspectives, political views, or support for particular causes. Rather than fostering unity and reconciliation, such laws risk deepening divisions and creating mechanisms that could be misused against minority viewpoints, including the ability of Christians and other faith communities to freely practice and share their beliefs. Our nation's strength lies in protecting diverse perspectives within a constitutional framework, not in creating legal instruments that can be wielded against those who hold differing views. 	2025-12-15 07:12:44	No I do not	Weaponising laws	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-15 07:05:16	No I do not	Weaponising laws	First and foremost, South Africa is a democracy — a nation built on freedom of choice, freedom of speech, and freedom of religion. No man, and certainly no government, has the right to dictate to me which faith I may or may not belong to. I am a Christian, unapologetically and proudly. I believe in God, I believe in the Word of God that comes from the Bible, and I will never be silenced in declaring my faith. This is my Christianity, my belief, my identity — and no legislation, no political agenda, and no individual will strip that away from me. This so-called “Apartheid Bill” is not only dangerous, it is a direct attack on the Church of Jesus Christ in South Africa. To criminalise support for Israel is to criminalise the very foundation of Christianity itself. It is an assault on our faith, our heritage, and our right to worship freely. It is deeply upsetting that such stadistic, hateful, and dictatorial actions are being pushed in a country that claims to uphold democracy. This is not leadership — this is persecution. And persecution of the Church is persecution against mankind’s belief in God. I pray that our government will see through this man’s destructive agenda and reject this bill for what it truly is: a weapon against freedom, against faith, and against the Body of Christ. We must stand united, we must speak boldly, and we must defend our right to worship the Lord without fear.	Teressa	Gauteng		employed individual

	2025-12-15 00:47:44	No I do not	Weaponising laws	The Promise: God vows to bless people who bless Abraham and curse those who curse him. The Recipient: This promise was initially made to Abraham, then extended through his descendants (Isaac, Jacob), and ultimately fulfilled in Jesus Christ, the "Seed". The Scope: The blessing isn't just for Abraham's physical descendants; it extends to all nations through faith in Christ (the "true" children of Abraham). Modern Application: In Christian tradition, "blessing those who bless you" often means supporting the Jewish people, the Church, or acts of righteousness, as an act of faith. In summary This powerful biblical statement is a foundational promise of divine favor and protection, linking the well-being of those who support God's chosen people (Abraham and his spiritual descendants) with God's own blessing. As a strong believer in Jesus Christ I will rather do what our Heavenly Father order us to do rather doing what evil men tells us who's ultimate plan is to destroy Christianity	Dina			retired

As a Christian I stand firm on my biblical values and belief that God (Jesus) has given us the freedom to choose, and that is the authority/power given to every individual on this planet. I am strongly against this false, unconstitutional satanic bill that Al jamaah, ANC, EFF, MK, GOOD are pushing for. This clearly shows the agenda to ultimately bring South Africans under sharia law, and provoke countries like America and Israel. We need businesses from the West to invest in our country, and USA is one of the key investors. South Africans need to stand up against this useless government with its hamas affiliated organizations like gift of the givers, Al jamah-ha and every Islamic party with their pro Palestinian agenda. 	2025-12-14 22:30:22	No I do not	Weaponising laws	What apartheid does this bill refer to in South Africa? Palestine is a result of ancient Roman empire occupation of Israel, oppressing the jewish nation and attempt to suppress rebellion against Roman rule. Originally the land was know as Israel and Roman ruler renamed it to palestine! There are no palestinian artifacts, coinage, ancient structures, pure DNA. The UN made a clear decison to re-establish a jewish homeland which is inhabited by arabs, gazan's, jews, etc. Israel is not an apartheid state as there are multipal nationalities living, working, participating economically and represented in the Israeli parliament(kneset). No arab state, muslim country has the same dispensation which includes all citizens, no matter ethnicity as in Israel! This law weaponises opinions and certain religions and does not promote freedom of speech, religion according to the constitution. The political party and it's leaders are not acting in the interest of all South African citizens, promoting unity, increased employment, economy but religous restrictions and particular belief convictions, intolerant. 	2025-12-14 22:10:44	No I do not	Weaponising laws	Firstly, this proposed Bill cannot align South African law to South Africa's ICJ Case as it has not been established or ruled by the ICJ that Israel has indeed committed genocide in Gaza; furthermore the ICJ case does not relate to questions around suppression of minority rights in Israel. Secondly, all Israeli citizens share common rights under Israeli law whether Jewish or Muslim. Finally, Palestinian's living in Gaza and the West Bank who refuse to recognise the state of Israel, agree to any of the proposed two state solutions (1938 Peel Commission; 1948 UN Plan; 2000 Camp David; 2008 Olmert Plan) or become Israeli citizens cannot be regarded as victims of discrimination. To bind into South Africa domestic law what has not been clarified in international diplomacy would not only offend the South African Jewish community and its supporters, but more importantly rob South Africa of ever making an unbiased contribution to resolving the Palestinian issue on the International stage. 	2025-12-14 21:20:00	No I do not	Weaponising laws	This proposed bill is an attempt to criminalise and prosecute those who defend and fight for Israel literally or in words. In effect it seeks to criminalise Zionists, ie people who believe in the right of the Jews to their ancient homeland. Those who seek to attack Zionists are the actual racists! To accuse Israel of being guilty of practicing apartheid is duplicity of the highest level. Israel's laws endorse the protection of all who live in the State of Israel. The human rights abuses in many nations world-wide should be the focus of SA and the international community"s "condemnation resolutions". Israel is an example, which our nation should emulate in many areas, instead of singling her out for condemnation.	Anne	Western Cape		retired

	2025-12-14 21:17:21	No I do not	Weaponising laws	It is very simple, Abba father, God Almighty said in Gen 12:3 that He will bless those who bless Israel, and curse those who curse Israel. Now you as the ANC government stand before two doors, one of blessing and one of curse. Ofcourse we already know which one you would enter threw by pasing this bill, you WILL get that what is coming to you and that is not the blessing. What is going on in Israel has nothing to do with apartheid, but all to do with terrorists who invaded their land and murdered innocent civilians and children. The political situation in the Middle east is complex and you ANC hipocrates should take the plank out of your own eyes, before you try to remove a splinter from another's eay. I reject this proposed Bill in it's entirety, ludecriss, and tabled by people who walk around with hate in their hearts, trying to weponize our constitution and drawing our country into a battle that is not theirs to fight!!!!!!!!! 	2025-12-14 20:54:02	No I do not	Weaponising laws	This bill is nothing but a political sham to criminalise the faith / belief of thousands of citizens who oppose a lying, murderous religious group. Using the term “Apartheid Bill” is nothing but a sly emotive ploy to hide an Islamic take-over - to criminalise citizens who refuse to support their faith. Does this stupid Government (yes, all parties in agreement with this bill) not realise that this is part of the Islamisation of the World ie. the UK, Ireland, France, Germany etc. ? Putting their religious stamp on every country / government they can bully into submission. This Government is nothing but useful idiots in a worldwide agenda - whose throats can be slit in an instant should they be enlightened and change their minds! We the citizens of South Africa are already being held hostage by having Halaal foods forced down our throats. As a Muslim she has offered cash incentives to individuals via the "Nelson Mandela fund" to come up with ideas of how to destroy Christian Zionism but everyone with a brain knows that it's actually an attack on Christianity itself. This is a way of bringing Sharia law into South Africa. We know that South Africa is flooded with Isis cells, so much so that they wanted to register as a political party. This bill is antisemitic and unconstitutional. This bill has a religious agenda attached to it. 	2025-12-03 09:05:04	No I do not	Constitutional issues	As a once Christian nation it is our duty to stand with the children of Israel against the tyranny of Islam. Every Islamic law stands whole heartedly against democracy, against our constitution and against freedom of religion. Those who bless Israel will be blessed, those who curse Israel will be cursed. Just look at Islam (Middle East especially) and tell me they're not cursed. This bill has absolutely nothing to do with apartheid and everything to do with anti semitism. We're already the US's public enemy no 1. Do you really want to send that one notch up with a new bill? Do we want a bill that prosecutes Christian because they know by God's own decree they have to bless Israel, contrary to Islamic belief and it's puppeteers? That's what's going to happen. If Israel is doing anything wrong, God will deal with them. Not our duty to interfere no matter what we claim we believe.	David	Western Cape		employed individual
	2025-12-03 09:03:04	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This legislation not only chills religious expression but violates core constitutional protections, risking a slide into state-sanctioned thought policing that echoes the very oppression our Constitution was designed to end. Legal Reasons Why This Bill Violates the South African Constitution: 1. Infringes Freedom of Conscience, Religion, Thought, Belief, and Opinion (Section 15) 2. Chills Freedom of Expression and Political Speech (Section 16) 3. Undermines Equality and Non-Racialism (Section 9) and Human Dignity (Section 10) Broader Harms: From Personal Faith to National Division: This bill isn't justice; it's performative politics, as Al Jama-ah admits, aimed at Palestine solidarity but at the cost of our freedoms. It risks fracturing the GNU, intimidating MPs (e.g., recent charges against pro-Israel parliamentarians), and emboldening antisemitism, as seen in post-October 7 rallies equating Israelis to Nazis. For Christians like me, who see Israel's resilience as a testament to God's faithfulness, this is an assault on soul and scripture. It diverts from real threats: our 27,000+ annual murders, not imagined foreign crimes.	Christiane

This can be weaponised against South Africans for supporting countries deemed arbitrarily by broad definitions as “apartheid “ states. This includes Israel and I’m sure several others that broadly separate populations. Since it’s likely also target Israel it’ll pose issues for the practice of Judaism and cause the silencing of free speech and opinion by Israel. South Africa by definition would be classified as an apartheid state based of BEE and its desire to regulate everything economically based on race and any implementation of EWC (Hartebeespoort expropriation currently contemplated) for the purpose of shaping population demographics. 	2025-12-03 17:59:09	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I wish to register my concern that the Bill's definitions and scope are overly broad and may enable unintended limitations on constitutional rights, particularly freedom of expression. The Bill appears to expand the concept of "apartheid" far beyond accepted international definitions. This creates the risk that policy disagreements, political opinions, or support for positions that differ from those of the State may be interpreted as "supporting apartheid." Such a framework could be used to silence criticism, restrict public debate, or unfairly target individuals whose views diverge from government narratives. This would be inconsistent with the principles of a democratic society. My submission is that the Bill requires significant narrowing and clearer safeguards to ensure it cannot be misapplied to legitimate dissent, international policy views, or ordinary civic discourse. Protecting citizens' constitutional rights must remain paramount. A further concern is the potential for this Bill to be weaponised. When legal definitions are vague or overly expansive, they create openings for the State to use the law not as a neutral instrument of justice, but as a tool to target political opponents, suppress public criticism, or intimidate citizens who hold alternative views. History shows that once a law allows subjective interpretation, it can be selectively enforced. A statute framed around broad ideological categories—rather than concrete, provable acts—risks becoming a mechanism to silence dissent instead of protecting human rights. Safeguards must prevent the law from becoming a punitive instrument against legitimate democratic expression.	Liz	Western Cape		self-employed

	2025-12-04 06:54:44	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I highlighted constitutional issues as this reflects on Christianity and religion and the teachings of the Bible. The country of Israel (or that peace of land at least) plays a vital role in Christianity and the comming events as explained by the book of revelation where the anti christ will build his 1 world government on and eventually Jesus will rule from there as well during his 1000 year raign as highlighted in the book of revelation. We Christians are called upon to bless and support Israel and its people (not really its government as they are also part of the same pot of corruption as the rest of the world...) but the whole point is that Israel's people will eventually believe in Jesus and will turn to Him, they are now in "Unbelief", so we support Israel for what it is going to become and the role its going to play eventually, not its current state as they are in unbelief as we call it. The Bible also states that Israel must be called Israel for what is to come and that the Jews are still by default God's chosen people even though they don't believe in the new testament yet. Secondly, there are many people and South Africans from ALL races who went to Israel to see for themselves and eventually ended up debunking the apartheid state claim. Thirdly, this battle between Israel and Gaza etc has been going on for thousands of years... its well documented in the Bible as well way before Islam even came to existence. Finally, I think this bill is designed to attack Christians and their beliefs by a party who are majority Muslim and people who believe the "Apartheid State" propaganda which has been debunked many times. I am not speaking for the old "apartheid lovers", I am speaking strictly from a Christianity and biblical point of view which is my constitutional right with freedom of religion and freedom of speach. 	2025-12-04 06:52:46	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Apartheid is a word used in South Africa by tge old regime that basically means separated. It's not a swear word, it's not something new in the world. It is common practice. It was just a word used and the world jumped and grabbed the word and made it out to be bad. The actions in the era wasn't correct, but if one looks at the current situation in South Africa, one can call it reversed Apartheid. White men are excluded from jobs, etc. It is now called fixing injustices of the past, but it is the same thing according to the law they want to introduce. It will also be in contradiction with the current SA law which states we have the freedom of choice and speech as long as it doesn't entice violence or hatred towards another ethnic group. But yet they want to allow people like Mr Malema to sing hate songs and encourage people to kill a minority group, and call it a struggle song. Why are people still calling for a revolution and struggle in South Africa when Apartheid ended 30+ years ago. It seems that Apartheid, the word and not the action has become a household name to throw the blame or to further a cause that isn't correct. Isreal has the right to defend themselves against terror attacks, SA would do the same if any country invade our borders and take innocent women and children hostage. We would also retaliate demanding release of those hostages. Why call it Apartheid? People have the right to choose their friends, where they want to live, etc. Why if one want to live separately from people with different ethnic believes and backgrounds, then you are labeled as enforcing or supporting Apartheid? Our government must start to understand. The white people they hate and punish with racial based laws are the ones that voted against Apartheid. Majority of today's people don't even know what Apartheid is. Apartheid was never a bad thing it was just the separation of ethnic groups. Crimes and oppression of other ethnic groups has been ongoing world wide for many years.	Will	Free State		business owner

	2025-12-03 21:02:13	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I have a few concerns. The main ones are: Extraterritorial Jurisdiction (The “Long Arm”): Enforceability: Legal experts raise concerns about the practicality of South African courts prosecuting crimes committed entirely on foreign soil. Investigating a crime in a hostile foreign jurisdiction (e.g., gathering evidence in Gaza or the West Bank without Israeli cooperation) is practically impossible. Trial in Absentia: If the accused does not enter South Africa, the law may be toothless, serving only as a symbolic gesture rather than an effective legal tool. The NDPP “Gatekeeper” Clause: The Bill requires the written consent of the National Director of Public Prosecutions (NDPP) before any prosecution can start. Concern: This could lead to political interference where the state blocks prosecutions to avoid diplomatic embarrassment. Conversely, opponents fear a “rogue” NDPP could authorise politically motivated prosecutions.	Paul	Western Cape		employed individual

My conviction is rooted in the belief that Biblical Scripture calls believers to stand with the nation of Israel, recognising its historic and spiritual significance in God’s covenant (Genesis 12:1-3; Romans 11:28-29). While the Bill’s intent to combat injustice is commendable, equating any state’s policies with the systemic oppression of apartheid risks conflating distinct contexts and may inadvertently undermine Israel’s right to self-defence and sovereignty—a right that many Christians view as aligned with Biblical promises. I trust that Parliament will carefully weigh the theological, historical, and diplomatic nuances before advancing legislation that could affect South Africa’s foreign relations and its own constitutional values of justice and equality. May wisdom and discernment guide our leaders.	Zelda			self-employed

	2025-12-04 07:34:07	No I do not	Constitutional issues	In principle I agree with the passing of the bill. However, it does not support the overt use of, so-called, protest songs, as openly used by extreme leftists and its resultant use of violence and bullying tactics. How does one then justify the destruction of public buildings and the violence of such protest songs, when its perpetrators has to answer for such crimes in the future? This would set a precedent that, in my opinion, is ill conceived. With post-World War Two well in the past we should have learnt our lesson from the Nuremberg trials, that commenced in its wake. Many war criminals were punished for their crimes against humanity and rightfully so. In its aftermath the public became increasingly tired of this tiresome process, whilst the emphasis was on rebuilding their countries and lives. History will repeat itself, 30 years post-Apartheid. With the climate of mismanagement, corruption, high end criminality and misuse of resources on the majority of public's minds, this would solely become an exorbitant and time consuming process which would unnecessarily strain South Africa's economy. The financial resources is better spent on job creation, repairing infrastructure, improving education, investing in secured judicial systems, improvising skills development and entrepreneurship, et al. Digging up the past is scratching at a scab that has taken time to heal and the pain to subside. Most of the perpetrators of the Apartheid regime is either dead or much too old to even stand trial. Let them live with their own conscience. Now is the time to repair 80 years of injustice, with an additional 30 years of further mistakes.	Etienne	Eastern Cape		self-employed

These are complex matters, and most people do not have the theological or political expertise to adequately express themselves on these matters. It makes one think of the case from the Book of Acts (New Testament) where the as of yet unconverted Paul of Tarsus whould 'force followers of Jesus to "blaspheme" during their hearings in the Synagogues.' It will effectively imply that 85% of the South African population, those that regard the Bible as the inspired Word of God, will become automatic transgressors of the Bill, as they are called to support Israel, which is not an Apartheid state, as claimed by Al Jamah. 	2025-12-04 10:16:12	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I oppose the proposed Apartheid Bill because it weaponizes our legal system for political purposes rather than strengthening genuine human-rights protections. By granting South Africa extraterritorial jurisdiction, the Bill turns our courts into tools for intervening in foreign political conflicts — a form of lawfare that risks overreach and misuse. Its reliance on approval from the National Director of Public Prosecutions also creates clear potential for selective, politically motivated enforcement. It's evident that the Bill is being driven largely by foreign-policy activism, particularly in relation to the Israel–Palestine issue, rather than by a neutral legal principle. In practice, the Bill will be extremely difficult to implement, as prosecuting alleged crimes committed abroad requires cooperation from states that will not provide it. This makes the legislation more symbolic than effective, raising questions about its real purpose. Finally, the Bill risks serious diplomatic fallout, potentially undermining South Africa's international relationships and credibility. For these reasons, I respectfully object to the Bill and urge a reconsideration of its far-reaching and politically charged implications.	John			retired

While apartheid is morally abhorrent and should be criminalised, it doesn't mean we citizens need to give up our freedom of expression to speak our minds, and then be prosecuted for having an unpopular opinion. 	2025-12-04 12:20:55	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I oppose the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025, in its current form. South Africa already struggles with division, corruption, and race-based policy. Passing a law framed around "apartheid" risks reigniting old wounds and could easily be misused to criminalise domestic policy disagreement. This bill cannot be implemented while Black Economic Empowerment (BEE) legislation remains in force. BEE is, by design, a race-based framework, and its continued existence would create a direct contradiction within South African law if the new bill criminalises race-based discrimination. Parliament must first review or repeal all race-based laws to ensure equal treatment before adopting any additional apartheid-related statutes. Our Parliament should focus on uniting citizens through equal enforcement of the Constitution, not on symbolic international fights that deepen mistrust at home. Any law of this kind must: define "apartheid" strictly as a state-sponsored system of domination, not as social or political disagreement; include clear constitutional review and sunset clauses; and explicitly protect freedom of opinion on local policies such as BEE or affirmative action. South Africans need stability, jobs, and service delivery—not another polarising law that can be turned against ordinary citizens	Rohan			self-employed

	2025-12-04 14:25:22	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Thank you for sharing the information on the proposed “Apartheid Bill.” After reviewing it, I cannot support the Bill for several key reasons. Firstly, the Bill’s definitions are broad and vague, which risks undermining constitutional certainty and could allow for political or selective prosecutions. South Africa’s criminal laws must be precise, fair, and consistent with our democratic principles. Secondly, the Bill attempts to give South African courts sweeping extraterritorial powers that are unrealistic and practically unenforceable. This weakens the credibility of our justice system. Thirdly, criminalising people for their political beliefs or international affiliations threatens freedom of expression and association, and risks deepening divisions within our diverse society. Lastly, apartheid is already recognised as a crime under existing legislation, making this Bill largely redundant at a time when Parliament’s focus should remain on urgent domestic priorities. For these reasons, I cannot support the Bill.	Julian	Gauteng		unemployed individual

It seeks to criminalise free political expression. O=Israel is the only democracy in the Middle East where religios freedom is upheld, which does not support the Apartheid of the other countries. In all the muslim countries around the Middle East, members of other religions are considered second class citizens which owe taxes to the state for not being muslim (according to Sharia Law) in Actual fact such an Apartheid law if implemented correctly would prevent South Africans from supporting the Muslim States. The actual purpose f such a law would be t silence the vocal support Israel has in South Africa especially on Social Media. This law as proposed is a very evil law indeed.	Patrick	Eastern Cape

So the 'truth' is hard to find. We see Trumps accusations of white genocide - when actually it is a problem with farm attacks specifically. And the numbers do show they are a targeted group outside of 'normal' crime stats. But white genocide - is not happening and actually takes away from the actual issue and makes it a laughing stock. If anything Farm murders will be taken less seriously now that it has been inflated as such. But we can see how international media inflates things, and distorts reality. My 'opinion' of the overseas conflict should not hold me liable for any crimes. Because to be honest what do I really know about the truth of it all? Probably not much. This harms freedom of speech and debate and the search for 'truth'. Because people will be afraid to question anything related to the conflict. Final thought: Stupid.	Lara			employed individual

We have democratic and constitutional rights which have to be honoured, and no one can tell you whom you need to hate or love. in my mind this is an Islamic move to try and dominate individual behaviour not pro-Islam. In the same breath as mentioning that no SA citizen may openly state they support Israel, then we should openly oppose BEE, as this is an explicit racial attack on others than black South Africans. So what is right and what is wrong? If both Ganief Hendricks and Imraan Ismail-Moosa feel so strongly for the Palestinians and against Israel then they should go and live in Palestine. 	2025-12-04 16:27:50	No I do not	Constitutional issues	There were good reasons for South Africa to disband it nuclear arsenal, and to become a neutral state in international affairs, which we would be wise to remember. Our government's international politicking is hurting our ability to engage in a globalized world and a free country. This is a civil liberties issue. Individuals within the government are as free as any citizen to argue and make their case for why Israel should not be supported, as are free citizens to make their own arguments and decisions. This should remain. To presume that any money going to Israel is in support of its operations in Gaza is ludicrous. It was unlawful to belong to the ANC some decades ago. Now? A government cannot dictate a person's sentiments. Secondly, the concept of "support" is too vague. what if someone visits Israel? For many faith groups, there are holy sights. Then the law can say you support them through tourism. It is not feasible or reasonable. Third, one country alone cannot be made to be criminalized. Who decides that other countries are in the same boat? Will the government now begin to dictate its citizens' opinions on many nations? Governments, as a collective, may sanction other nations, but cannot enforce its own citizens on an individual basis to do so. You are criminalizing ideology, which is against a democratic fabric. Adopting this law will result in at least 80% of Bible believing Christians being prosecuted for their belief even when they don't agree on how the State of Isreal is conducting business. This law will erode the country's Christian foundation and leads us down a path to sharia law and an Islamic state.	Deon

	2025-12-04 17:39:13	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The entire idea that this bill is based on is fundamentally flawed - constructed exclusively to discriminate against the majority of Christians, which in itself is a racist act. Once you start punishing one end of the population, you will get resistance and pressure to punish all for every little thing people disagree on. Also, instead of solving racism (which is not a one-way-only crime, as proportionally more whites, coloureds, and indians are now being discriminated against than blacks), this will fuel the fire exponentially, which could lead to a full-blown civil war. Furthermore, this will end whatever little democracy South Africa has left completely. The organisations that support this bill are the ones responsible for the overwhelming destruction and decay of South Africa since 1994. While disguising themselves as activists for human rights, they are the ones set on destroying the human rights, the constitution, and free speech of the majority of South Africans. 	2025-12-04 17:18:13	No I do not	Constitutional issues	My concerns are as follows: 1. Lack of Clarity and Violation of the Principle of Legality (Section 1(c)) The Bill introduces expanded and politically contextualised definitions of “apartheid” that are vague and not aligned with the precision required for criminal offences. This undermines the Rule of Law and creates unconstitutional uncertainty. 2. Duplication and Conflict with Existing Law Apartheid is already recognised and prosecutable in South Africa under the ICC Act 27 of 2002. Creating a second, parallel apartheid offence creates legal inconsistency, unnecessary duplication, and fails the constitutional requirement of rationality under section 1(c). 3. Unconstitutional Extraterritorial Reach The Bill attempts to give South African courts global jurisdiction over conduct occurring outside the Republic. This raises constitutional concerns regarding separation of powers, foreign relations, and proper treaty-based authority under section 231. 4. Risk of Arbitrary or Selective Enforcement (Section 9) Given the Bill’s stated geopolitical focus, its broad definitions risk being applied unevenly or politically, undermining equality before the law. Criminal legislation must be neutral, general, and non-discriminatory. 5. Potential Infringement of Section 16 Rights The Bill’s wording could unintentionally criminalise legitimate political positions, academic work, advocacy, or humanitarian engagement. Any limitation of rights must meet the Section 36 test, which the Bill does not satisfy as existing law already addresses the conduct. The Bill is constitutionally vague, jurisdictionally overbroad, duplicative of existing legislation, and vulnerable to selective enforcement. I respectfully request that Parliament reject the Bill or substantially amend it to ensure compliance with constitutional and legal requirements.	Sera	KwaZulu-Natal		employed individual

Our Faith stems from the Jews, who some are still in Israel, but it will be weaponized and seen as a criminal offense just to practice our Faith in this country, as there are religions whose sole purpose is to destroy the Christian Faith, as well as the Jews. Having a country that is already at the brink of collapse because of corruption and crime within the government itself, we can not allow this bill to pass. 	2025-12-05 07:30:03	No I do not	Constitutional issues	We have a Jewish community in South Africa who shouldn't feel oppressed to say that they have family in Isreal and that they love them and so forth. It feels like people will be forced to denounce their identity or be found guilty of a crime. I myself am not religious or in support of Isreal's politics. However, I believe that South Africa should be a free society where people shouldn't have to hide their heritage in fear. This bill feels a bit unclear about what "support" means. If a Jewish person says on Facebook: "Bless Isreal". Would that mean that they could potentially be prosecuted? If so, then you guys have lost the plot, and you're trying to portray yourselves as people who care about human rights, but yet only care about the rights of certain groups. All people should feel okay to live out their heritage. Isreal is not just about an Apartheid state driven by politics, but also the home of a group of people with their own culture, religion, traditions, memories, families etc. There are many people in Isreal and outside Isreal who have nothing to do with politics and cannot control what is happening. Politicizing someone's home and heritage takes away the rest of their identity that has nothing to do with Apartheid. People should be able to openly say, "I love the place of my birth, Isreal". Or "Bless Isreal".	Paula	Western Cape		employed individual

	2025-12-05 01:05:07	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I don’t agree that South Africa should force its citizens to support or oppose any country based on the reigning government’s foreign-policy opinions. A constitutional democracy cannot punish its own people for their personal views, moral convictions, political positions, or associations relating to another state. Criminal liability must be based on unlawful conduct — not on whether an individual aligns with the government’s stance of the day. If this Bill enables prosecution simply for holding or expressing a different viewpoint about Israel (or any other nation), then it crosses a fundamental constitutional line. It replaces freedom of conscience, expression, and political belief with enforced ideological compliance. That is not how a free society operates. Governments may set foreign policy, but they may not criminalise their citizens for disagreeing with it	Ettienne	Gauteng		employed individual

	2025-12-05 09:03:05	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This is a racist anti Jewish hate law that targets Jews. It is an attack not only on Jewish citizens of South Africa but on the South African constitution. This is dangerous - how far will this go? Will this law be used to justify attacks on any SA group or organisation that the Islamist Al Jamah party feels is pushing back against their goal of Islamizing SA? Will the Christian Zionist church be attacked under this law? Will secular Muslims who do not want to live under sharia law and oppose the Al Jama party's agenda be smeared and attacked? This law is a slippery slope and extremely dangerous. Also - what evidence is being used to justify the Al Jama party's accusation that Israel is an apartheid state? All citizens of Israel, whatever their religion, have equal rights. Arab Israelis work and live amongst Jewish Israelis. Arab Israelis serve alongside Jewish Israelis in the IDF, risking their lives to fight for Israel's survival. Why would they do that (Arab Israelis are not conscripted into the IDF, they volunteer to serve) if Israel was an apartheid state? There is no "occupation" or "occupied territories" - Israel is fully entitled under international law to assert sovereignty over Judea and Samaria. Islamists like Al Jama are being dishonest - their objection to Israel is a religious one, that it is a Jewish not an Islamic state. This proposed law is nothing but religious based hatred of Jews and other infidels by the Islamist Al Jama party.	Kate

	2025-12-05 08:46:28	No I do not	Constitutional issues	My issue with what is being proposed with this bill, is something that the government has tried before. This is a bill to silence people who disagree with government and who they would like to punish, legally. This is a gag order on anyone who wants to have an opinion or stance that government deems unconstitutional. Does our constitution not allow people to think or disagree with government? If this was the case in our country's past, then the revolution that freed our country from apartheid would never have happened. When we want to polarise our country and force everyone to agree or conform to the political thinking of the government, then what makes it different from a dictatorship? I have said this many times before, but our government does not know how to lead people. They are like parents who do not know how to guide their children and instead impose impossible laws to curb any behaviour that they deem to be dangerous or not aligned to their way. When a government constricts its people rights to think for themselves, then it will inevitably lead to revolt. Guidance is needed, not stricter legislation. Legalism is just another form of control and controlling what constituents feel or think is what this bill is attempting to achieve. and as a South African who was marginalised under apartheid, I cannot agree to it. We fought a government that tried to silence the voices of the people who were against apartheid and who tried to control the non-white masses through it's laws. We cannot allow this to happen again. Any legislation must comply with these principles and the Bill of Rights. The proposed Apartheid Bill, which seeks to domesticate the 1973 UN Apartheid Convention, introduces provisions that: Expand the definition of “apartheid” beyond systemic racial oppression to include broad ideological or political conduct. This creates vagueness and violates the principle of legality (nullum crimen sine lege), which requires laws to be clear and precise Centralises prosecutorial discretion by requiring written consent from the National Director of Public Prosecutions (NDPP). This selective gatekeeping undermines equality before the law and opens the door to arbitrary enforcement Threat to Freedom of Expression The Bill’s broad language could criminalise speech or advocacy perceived as supporting or opposing certain foreign governments or ideologies. This infringes Section 16 of the Constitution, which protects freedom of expression, except in cases of incitement to imminent violence or hate speech narrowly defined. The proposed Apartheid Bill: Violates constitutional guarantees of legality, equality, and freedom of expression. Overreaches jurisdictionally, conflicting with international comity. 	2025-12-05 11:17:30	No I do not	Constitutional issues	continue from previous email: Freedom of Religion (Section 15): The Constitution protects freedom of conscience, religion, thought, belief, and opinion. Many South African Christians have deeply held theological beliefs and religious practices involving support for or pilgrimage to Israel. Opponents fear that religious activities, such as making donations to faith-based charities operating in Israel, could be targeted under the new law, thereby limiting the free exercise of religion. Extraterritorial Jurisdiction: The attempt to prosecute individuals for actions taken in other countries raises complex jurisdictional issues and concerns about the enforceability and fairness of such trials, which could be challenged in the Constitutional Court. These legal challenges underscore the argument that the bill, as currently formulated, risks being found unconstitutional because it may unduly limit fundamental human rights guaranteed by South Africa's post-apartheid legal framework.	petra	Western Cape		business owner
	2025-12-05 11:15:47	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Opponents of the proposed "Apartheid Bill" raise significant legal arguments centered on the South African Constitution's Bill of Rights, arguing the bill's provisions are vague and potentially overreach into protected freedoms of expression, association, and religion. The primary constitutional arguments against the bill's validity are: Vagueness and the Rule of Law: Critics argue that the bill's definitions are excessively broad and vague, particularly regarding what constitutes "support" or "aiding" apartheid acts. The South African Constitution is the supreme law, and all legislation must be consistent with it. Vague laws are a violation of the rule of law because they do not provide clear guidance on what conduct is prohibited, potentially leading to arbitrary and selective prosecution. Freedom of Expression (Section 16): The Constitution guarantees freedom of expression, which includes the right to express controversial or unpopular opinions, provided they do not constitute hate speech, incitement to cause harm, or advocacy of hatred based on race, ethnicity, gender, or religion. Opponents fear that the bill's language could be used to criminalise political commentary, advocacy, or academic debate concerning the situation in Israel, thereby stifling legitimate public discourse that is otherwise constitutionally protected. Freedom of Association (Section 18): The right to freedom of association is a cornerstone of the Bill of Rights, allowing individuals to form and join associations, including religious and cultural groups. The extraterritorial reach and broad definitions in the bill could potentially criminalise affiliation with organisations that have ties to Israel, infringing upon the freedom to associate with religious and cultural communities of choice. Freedom of Religion (Section 15): continue in the next email	petra	Western Cape		business owner

	2025-12-05 11:11:13	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I strongly object to the proposed “Apartheid Bill” on the grounds that it is constitutionally unsound, legally incoherent, and functionally impossible to implement. The Bill’s sweeping definitions and extraterritorial claims violate the principle of legality — specifically the requirements of clarity, precision, and foreseeability demanded by section 35(3)(a) of the Constitution. Criminal law cannot be constructed around political interpretations or ideological positions, yet this Bill explicitly seeks to do so. By declaring that support for a foreign state constitutes automatic criminal complicity, the Bill breaches fundamental rights to freedom of expression, belief, and political choice (sections 15, 16, 18, and 19). It also unlawfully presumes guilt by association, contradicting the presumption of innocence and the requirement for demonstrable intent in criminal liability. The Bill further overreaches by attempting to impose South African jurisdiction on acts occurring entirely outside the Republic, without meeting the established international-law standards for extraterritorial prosecution. South Africa already incorporates the crime of apartheid under the Rome Statute Act, which provides a clear, internationally recognised legal framework. Creating a parallel offence with vague, politically charged criteria will fragment our legal system, invite constitutional challenge, and expose Parliament to accusations of legislating for partisan foreign-policy objectives rather than for justice. For these reasons, the Bill should be withdrawn in its entirety as an unconstitutional and legally indefensible instrument.	Carol			business owner

	2025-12-05 10:04:07	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I do not support the proposed Apartheid Bill. While it presents itself as a moral step toward strengthening human rights, the Bill reaches far beyond what is practical, constitutional, or responsible. It risks turning political views about foreign conflicts into potential criminal liability, something no democratic society should allow. A central concern is the Bill's broad and uncertain definitions. These create the very real possibility that ordinary South Africans could be investigated or prosecuted not for committing crimes, but for expressing opinions, supporting a foreign state, sharing online content, or engaging in political advocacy. Criminal law cannot be allowed to drift into policing thought or belief. The Bill also seeks sweeping extraterritorial powers that South Africa does not have the capacity to enforce. Our justice system already struggles with domestic crime, corruption, and limited resources. It is neither realistic nor appropriate to burden it with global jurisdiction over political and ideological disputes taking place elsewhere in the world. Importantly, apartheid is already recognised as a crime under existing legislation, including the Rome Statute Act. If improvements are needed, they can be addressed through focused amendments. Creating an entirely new, politically charged legal framework serves little practical purpose and risks undermining the credibility of our legal institutions. Moreover, the Bill appears framed as a tool to pursue specific ideological aims rather than a neutral instrument of justice. This kind of politicisation of criminal law is dangerous, sets a harmful precedent, and weakens confidence in South Africa's commitment to fair and even-handed legal processes. For these reasons, I cannot support the Bill in its current form.	Carel	Western Cape		employed individual

	2025-12-05 09:49:20	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I am very worried about this Bill. In my opinion, it is not well-intentioned, and it can easily be used in a harmful, discriminatory, unconstitutional way against South African citizens. This Bill limits important freedoms: the freedom to think, the freedom to speak, and the freedom to believe. The wording is vague and unclear, so people can interpret it in many different ways. Because of this, the Bill can be used to punish people unfairly and to stop open discussion. This is similar to what the Apartheid government did when it tried to silence people who disagreed with it. South Africa already has strong human-rights laws. We also have a clear role in international courts, which are the correct place to deal with international problems. We do not need a new Bill for this. To me, this Bill is dangerous. It uses a real international issue as an excuse to start a "witch hunt" against South Africans whose opinions are different from those of Al-Jama-ah or the political leaders in power. This is frightening. This is how oppressive governments behave. South Africa has many serious problems right now. We should not waste money on trying to solve global issues when our own country needs urgent help. This takes money away from basic services and from improving the lives of South Africans. We cannot afford that. It is neglect, and it opens the door to more corruption. This Bill would send taxpayer money outside the country for something we cannot even enforce. This shows that the real aim may be to target South Africans who think differently, not to address international issues.	Shelley	Gauteng		employed individual

	2025-12-05 09:34:31	No I do not	Constitutional issues	In a democracy , a diversity of views and debates is encouraged to support rational choices. Constitutionally and nationally the diversity of our nation and many communities who migrate to South Africa for safety or a better life should never be threatened. Part of this is allowing the practice of multiple religions, cultures and viewpoints while allowing others to do differently without harming others. Additionally, this law appears to duplicate the human rights enshrined in our constitution and other agreements such as the Rome Statute. Any vagueness and lack of precise definitions would allow the human rights principles to be misused against people. Furthermore, South African laws should not be developed to address one case or situation, not used to weaponise law but uphold justice and the constitution in specific aspects not yet covered in exisiting laws. 	2025-12-05 17:14:04	No I do not	Constitutional issues	South Africa is presently an Apartheid State. It has over 140 anti-minority laws, which continue to prejudice a 7% minority through diminished participation in jobs, business ownership, the public sector, and tertiary education. After 3+ decades, these apartheid v2 laws are supposedly to protect a 82% majority, yet, political elites have starved SA of Trillions without accountability. Israel is a democratic country where all citizens, irrespective of their race and gender, have equal opportunity. Their region has a complex history, which is not helped by those who want them eliminated entirely. South Africa's high crime rate and GBV leaves it absolutely no room to be dictating to anyone on the international stage - let alone its own law-abiding citizens. The ANC and other beneficiaries of the same ideology have created a South Africa that has more unemployment, poverty, and inequality than ever before. It conveniently hides this truth behind racial lines, and now seemingly with a religious bias too. This gives SA zero credibility. Our politicians should forget about controls to prop-up their ideologies. Economic growth and job creation should be at the top of any agenda. It's time to eliminate corruption, excessive SME red-tape, foreign policy that reduces opportunity, and the bolstering of racial dividing lines. Who exactly is this benefitting? As a citizen, I can't accept any dictatorship as a moral compass such as those spearheaded in Russia, Iran, and its proxies. South Africa supposedly supports human rights, freedom & democracy, and equality for women. How does this Bill align with these values and the international image SA should project? This Bill is merely another oppression tool against those who don't comply with the narratives of polarizing political and religious extremism. This isn't befitting of a democracy, it's a dictatorship designed to calibrate certain citizens, or punish them. This isn't progress, it's regression.	Martin			business owner
	2025-12-05 17:06:22	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This proposed bill is an attempt to criminalise and prosecute those who defend and fight for Israel literally or in words. In effect it seeks to criminalise Zionists, ie people who believe in the right of the Jews to their ancient homeland. Those who seek to attack Zionists are the actual racists! To accuse Israel of being guilty of practicing apartheid is duplicity of the highest level. Israel's laws endorse the protection of all who live in the State of Israel. The human rights abuses in many nations world-wide should be the focus of SA and the international community"s "condemnation resolutions". Israel is an example, which our nation should emulate in many areas, instead of singling her out for condemnation.	A. J.	Western Cape		employed individual

This Bill is a blatant attempt to weaponize laws for political purposes, and I strongly object to its underlying premise. Israel is NOT an apartheid state. Labelling it as such is a gross distortion of history, law, and reality. This Bill risks perpetuating harmful misinformation and undermining legitimate discourse on complex geopolitical issues. I urge you to reconsider this Bill and refrain from advancing a narrative that serves only to divide and inflame. 	2025-12-05 13:44:53	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The proposed bill has no legitimate place in South African law. It is a politically motivated attempt to intimidate citizens into silence and to suppress those who support Israel—a support they have a God-given right to express. Scripture affirms that Israel holds a special place in God's plan: Genesis 12:3 – "I will bless those who bless you, and him who dishonors you I will curse; and in you all the families of the earth shall be blessed." Psalm 122:6 – "Pray for the peace of Jerusalem: they shall prosper that love thee." Isaiah 62:1 – "For Zion's sake I will not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest." To target citizens for expressing support for Israel is to act against God's word and against His covenant people. As South Africans, we have the constitutional right—and moral duty—to speak and act in accordance with our faith. This bill seeks to undermine those rights, suppress lawful dissent, and silence voices that uphold biblical principles regarding Israel.	Didintle	Free State		employed individual

	2025-12-06 08:53:38	No I do not	Constitutional issues	1. It violates moral freedom of conscience. To criminalise a person simply for believing, supporting, or speaking in favour of Israel, or any other nation the government disapproves of, is evil. Criminalising conscience is always morally dangerous. 2. It punishes people for opinions rather than actions. Punishing thought or opinion is unjust and violates the moral principle of proportionality. 3. It targets people selectively, therefore it is not impartial justice. True justice is blind, impartial, and applies equally to all people and all nations. Selective morality is not moral. It is political opportunism dressed up as justice. 4. It undermines moral truth by redefining complex conflicts simplistically. Declaring that anyone who supports Israel is automatically complicit in “apartheid” is morally simplistic, factually careless. Justice cannot be built on oversimplification or misrepresentation. 5. It risks criminalising compassion and humanitarian aid that serve BOTH Jews and Arabs. To punish compassion is a profound moral evil. 6. It treats political disagreement as moral evil. To criminalise disagreement is to reject moral reasoning itself. 7. It fosters hostility, not reconciliation. It also deepens tensions between local Jewish and Muslim communities. Moral leadership seeks peace, unity, and reconciliation, not legalised hostility. 8. It violates the moral principle of proportionality. Moral justice punishes actual perpetrators of violence or oppression, not peaceful citizens expressing support. 9. It gives the state godlike power over private moral judgement. Morally, this is the spirit of authoritarianism. 10. It undermines the dignity and equality of South Africans. By threatening to prosecute citizens based on political views about a foreign conflict, the Bill treats citizens like ideological subjects, not moral equals with God-given dignity. Moral law should elevate dignity, not suppress it.	Sonya	Eastern Cape		retired

In effect it seeks to criminalise Zionists, ie people who believe in the right of the Jews to their ancient homeland. Those who seek to attack Zionists are the actual racists! To accuse Israel of being guilty of practicing apartheid is duplicity of the highest level. Israel's laws endorse the protection of all who live in the State of Israel. The human rights abuses in many nations world-wide should be the focus of SA and the international community"s "condemnation resolutions". Israel is an example, which our nation should emulate in many areas, instead of singling her out for condemnation.	Elmarie	Gauteng		self-employed

The foundation of this motivation is non-democratic, anti-semitic and anti freedom of speech, and seeks to prevent South Africans from having faith in their innate, learned and/or chosen beliefs - an external body cannot dictate by law or any other state enforcement to how one should or should not feel, otherwise we are back to the immorality of an apartheid-based state - removing choices from our citizens by force. 	2025-12-06 13:46:07	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I do not support the proposed “Apartheid Bill.” While I firmly oppose terrorism and recognise Hamas as a terrorist organisation that endangers civilians and all other countries right to defend themselves and to have peace within their borders for all life . I believe this Bill overreaches and risks weaponising South Africa’s legal framework and constitution for political purposes and liberal lawless unrighteousness views to be enforced to all citizens of South Africa including Israel and those of Christian faith and the Jews. Its broad, extraterritorial definitions create constitutional and practical concerns, and it appears designed to target specific viewpoints rather than uphold justice impartially. South African law should not be used to criminalise legitimate disagreement or foreign policy opinions. In the broader sense this will bring unrighteousness to all people in South Africa and abroad , including Israel and all other countries . The SA Constitution is such a through, all-encompassing law guide that was approved for an all-inclusive new democratic Southern Africa for all citizens. The new Bill, as it is currently put forth, is an "apartheid" and discriminating law at its core. Imposing more crimes against humanity. 	2025-12-06 14:32:54	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Thank you for the opportunity to comment. I submit this response as a disciple of Yeshua (Jesus) and as one whose faith is rooted in the covenants Yahweh (God) made with Israel. My convictions flow from Scripture, which calls Israel Yahweh’s firstborn (Exodus 4:22), His treasured possession (Deuteronomy 7:6), and a people loved with an everlasting love (Jeremiah 31:3). I therefore hold an abiding, covenantal solidarity with the Jewish people and with the right of Israel to exist as the nation Yahweh has chosen (Genesis 17:7; Romans 11:28–29). While I affirm the pursuit of justice, accountability, and the protection of all human life, I cannot support legislation that defines theological, covenantal, or moral support for Israel as complicity in “apartheid.” Such a categorisation contradicts my Scriptural convictions and effectively criminalises a central part of my faith identity. My support for Israel is not political in origin; it is rooted in the witness of Scripture and the enduring covenants of Yahweh. “I will bless those who bless you (Israel), and him who dishonours you (Israel) I will curse, and in you all the families of the earth shall be blessed.” Genesis 12:3 (ESV) Justice in Scripture requires impartiality (Deuteronomy 16:19–20). A law drafted with explicit focus on one nation, in a way that predetermines guilt, does not reflect such impartiality. Nor can I accept a legal framework that redefines covenantal alignment with Israel, a core part of my religious confession, as a criminal act. The Constitution protects freedom of religion, belief, and conscience, and this Bill appears to infringe upon those protections by criminalising a Scripturally grounded expression of faith. I affirm the value and dignity of all peoples, including Palestinians and Israelis, and pray for peace grounded in truth, righteousness, and genuine justice. However, for the reasons above, I respectfully register that I do not support the Bill in its current form. Thank you!	Timothy	Mpumalanga		retired

	2025-12-07 01:22:26	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Al Jama-ah leader Ganief Hendricks has publicly stated the intent of the Bill, asserting that: “Israel is an apartheid state and those South Africans who support it are therefore complicit and must face the full might of the law. If you support Israel, then you are automatically supporting apartheid and will be criminally charged.” By this stated logic, any political party, organisation, or individual that supports or enforces policies that promote racial exclusion or race-based differentiation within South Africa, including policies implemented under Broad-Based Black Economic Empowerment, could be construed as supporting practices analogous to apartheid. Under the reasoning articulated by Hendricks, those who endorse or participate in such policies would, by extension, be considered complicit and subject to legal sanction. Accordingly, if Hendricks’ principle were applied consistently, support for any system or policy that excludes or discriminates against any racial group, including White South Africans would, in effect, fall within the scope of conduct he described as supporting “apartheid”, and would thus be exposed to potential criminal liability under his stated interpretation. 	2025-12-07 09:49:11	No I do not	Constitutional issues	My objection to this Bill is based solely on constitutional grounds. The Bill is vague, overbroad, and risks infringing fundamental rights including freedom of belief, expression, and association. Legislation that can be interpreted to criminalise personal convictions or label dissenting views as complicity in foreign disputes is inconsistent with the constitutional principle of legality. The Bill also reflects a partisan foreign political narrative, which raises concerns about ideological influence in South African law. Our legislation must remain neutral and protect citizens from political pressure or indoctrination. As a Christian South African, I have the right to hold and express my beliefs without being threatened or morally targeted by politically motivated wording. I strongly object to any implication that differing opinions amount to wrongdoing. This Bill undermines constitutional freedoms and offends the values on which our democracy is built. This in its whole entity takes away the freedom of speech and belief which is the centre point of democracy, therefore moving towards a dictatorship. Our government is using this platform as a political playground to gain back favour from the people, through using their emotional past to achieve their agenda of staying in power. South Africa has more pressing matters within our own country that need to be addressed, wasting money, time and effort on a international issue only further strengthening the point that the ANC does not have South Africa's best interest at heart and therefore should not be the ruling party. 	2025-12-07 11:34:53	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This draft is absurd. They are trying to weaponise laws against individuals who’s views differ from theirs. All people will not be held to the same standards. People who do not support their views will be prosecuted swiftly and harshly , whereas people who do support their views will be allowed to continue with hate speech, terrorise the innocent and enforce a type of apartheid towards those who’s views they do not support. It will be like Julius Malema and the EFF, who clearly is committing serious and heinous hate speech towards the boers, but somehow they get away with it and it gets ruled as hate speech. They do not prosecute their own, that is why this bill will be dangerous and damaging to South Africa. Our government has shown us again and again that they have double standards and that all will not be held to the same standards or brought to answer for their crimes. Stop this ridiculous bill before the rest of the world totally writes off and bans South Africa, because if you think South Africans are suffering now, you cannot imagine the implications, the impact, the suffering that will ensue from South Africa not being able to trade with the rest of the world. 	2025-12-07 11:34:18	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This bill will directly infringe on the constitutional rights of many South African citizens. The very statement that "If you support Israel then you are automatically supporting Apartheid and will be criminally charged" infringes on freedom of speech, cultural expression, religion, and association. Many South African citizens have Jewish heritage and participate in the Jewish religion. For these citizens, supporting Israel is a part of their identity. Allowing a Bill to exist that criminalises this for the thinnest of reasons is the first step towards legalising the persecution and eventual elimination of these people and their allies. We need to halt this bill immediately. Furthermore, calling the situation in Israel "apartheid" trivialises the actual apartheid that was endured by our South African citizens. This bill is vague and clearly seeks to persecute certain people. The protections in this bill will not be offered unilaterally to citizens in other oppressed countries with human rights violations being perpetrated by the very same people who are seeking to pass this bill. Additionally, this bill seeks to use constrained South African resources to further a political agenda in a realm in which South Africa has no business being involved, to the detriment of its own citizens who are already suffering under an overloaded judicial system. 	2025-12-08 10:56:07	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The Government is attacking our rights and freedom of speech, which is guaranteed by the Constitution of the country. By restricting citizens from discussing the problems of the country in an open way, they try to cover up their bad governing of the country, the abuse, the fraud that is taking place, and the corruption that is going on. By blaming every problem on Apartheid, they clearly show that they are unable and unwilling to admit their inability to govern the country in a good and profitable (for the people) way. The country is now much worse off after 30 years of the ANC governing the country than it was before 1994. Crime is escalating, murders are escalating, the jobless numbers are the highest in all history, Corruption is the worst ever, and is getting worse by the day. 	2025-12-08 10:41:14	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The SA Constitution signed into law in 1996 enshrines our freedom to free association, freedom to live without discrimination, be it from racial, ethnic, religious or sexual discrimination. The introduction of this bill is based on hatred of an ethnic, religious group of people, intended to deprive them of their constitutional rights. This is pure hatred and malice and infringed on my right to exist as a Jew. I cannot and will not support a bill that seeks to disenfranchise and demonise any person or people in this fashion. 	2025-12-08 10:34:35	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Proposed Objection / Comment Against the Bill I hereby submit this comment in firm opposition to the bill introduced by Al Jama-ah, which seeks to implement legislation that is fundamentally discriminatory in nature and stands in direct conflict with the constitutional values of equality, human dignity, and non-racialism. South Africa's legal framework is built on the rejection of apartheid and all forms of state-endorsed discrimination. Any law that proposes or enables differentiated treatment of citizens on the basis of race, religion, culture, or identity represents a dangerous regression toward the injustices of our past. This bill, in both intent and effect, threatens social cohesion, undermines equal protection under the law, and risks entrenching division rather than fostering unity. A democratic society cannot thrive where legislation legitimises exclusion or preferential treatment for one group over another. Our Constitution commits us to a non-racial, open, and pluralistic society in which every individual enjoys equal rights regardless of background. This proposed bill contradicts those founding principles and would set a precedent that weakens the rule of law and erodes public confidence in Parliament as an institution tasked with protecting—not segregating—its people. I therefore urge the Portfolio Committee and Members of Parliament to reject this bill in its entirety, to reaffirm South Africa's constitutional commitment to human rights and equality, and to focus legislative efforts on building a nation that unites rather than divides. 	2025-12-08 10:34:08	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The South African Constitution is probably the most fairest Constitution in the world. Derived from in-depth debate and investigation and study of proposals, to enable citizens of South African to live in a modern Democratic Country and specifically safe guarding Freedom of Speech. and Religion. The proposal by the Al Jama-ah Party is in my opinion , a breach of our Constitution, an attempt to reinstate a form of apartheid and an interference in the affairs of foreign countries and giving their citizen an undercover means of seeking sanctuary in South Africa. Al Jama-ah is at liberty to approach the UN or International Court of Justice. If this ridiculous proposal is accepted, who will finance the ENTIRE affair?	Derek			retired

	2025-12-08 08:52:18	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I prefer to remain non-partisan on the subject of the disagreement and war(s) between Israel and Palestine; it is my right to do so and I am offended that an individual or Party has the gall to attempt to take away my freedom of thought and speech by imposing its personal views on the matter on all South Africans, by way of trying to adapt our constitutional rights, and the laws of our country to support its personal cause and Vendetta. I don't believe that either side is innocent in this war, and don't necessarily agree with the South African Governments' seeming alliance with Israel and by implication, the USA; however it is my right to choose not to support either side. Of course, if and where oppression of a specific type and group of people is taking place I do not condone that. However my support or lack thereof should be freely given, and the right to choose where I stand on that, must remain my right. The war in question is not purely a racial one and we all know it, is a fight for land - built around religious and racial difference - that is centuries old. South Africa incriminating its own citizens in this battle, the right of which has not been decided by an international court or the world yet, would be fruitless and do nothing to end the anger, hatred and abominable acts perpetrated by both sides. Peace, and the change of behaviour required to find it, must come from within - from the core - of this ages old confluence of cultures and beliefs to prevent any unnecessary further loss of life and innocents. The world will only be at peace if we win and prevent wars with love, compassion, kindness and diplomacy. Getting more angry about the banality of evil of humankind and trying to force our way towards personal successes and victories with the might of yet more oppression, removal of rights, and hatred will never work. 	2025-12-08 08:30:10	No I do not	Constitutional issues	A difference in opinion is human nature, a human right and without it, we have an authoritarian state. We are not all meant to think alike, but we are all meant to think. There is a reason why we have neurotypical and neurodiverse people. We cannot function effectively without each other. Most of the biggest ideas in the world were invented/discovered by neurodiverse peoples and it is for that reason that we now have flight, electricity, the modern democracy and are making a shift to a new era in sustainability. Without the differing opinions, we are sheep and can be easily controlled. We will be blacklisted on the global market and our Rand will plummet. This will drive away foreign investment and drive away professionals. Most of the wealth in the world is controlled by Jewish people, if you lose their backing, you lose the majority of foreign investments and if you support this bill then many tourists will turn away from South Africa and not purchase homes here that significantly boost our economy. We should be looking to find solutions to our own problems, stop forcing everyone to think the same and focus on a better way forward. There is a reason certain marginalised groups have survived since Bible times, like left-handedness. We need each other and if we allow this bill to pass, we take away the rights of humans to think for ourselves, we take away creative thinking and we stall our progress technologically, economically and politically. There is a reason why the American Declaration of Independence is one of the greatest pieces of paper in history and has survived so long. It is because their founding fathers knew that they were not perfect and that no one is, but that we cannot in good conscience take away free speech from those we may or may not disagree with, they knew that about 250 years ago and respected it. Are you saying that in the last 250 years we have not made significant progress when compared to the previous thousand years because of them.	Tegan	Western Cape		business owner

	2025-12-08 20:24:58	No I do not	Constitutional issues	It is a direct attack on a persons freedom of choice and freedom of speech. Trying to criminalize people who disagree with your point of view is morally and constitutionally wrong. You want to hunt people based on their beliefs because their beliefs are not aligned with yours. That is manipulation of society. It is the same as saying that having Christian beliefs is a crime, while having Muslim beliefs is not. Maybe parliament and the government should sort out the problems within our borders before taking the moral high ground on another countries policies and actions. In other words: take the log out of your own eye before you try to take the splinter out of someone else's. The politicians of South Africa have robbed the country blind and created huge amounts of poverty and suffering of South Africans. so maybe they should try to find solutions to the local suffering and be held accountable to the people of South Africa, instead of acting like they are high and mighty and the citizens of South Africa need to be grateful to them for creating all of the suffering and unemployment. 	2025-12-09 08:35:52	No I do not	Constitutional issues	• South Africans who study, work, volunteer, or serve in programmes in Israel • Diaspora South Africans who hold dual citizenship • Israeli nationals living in or visiting South Africa • Businesspeople who collaborate with Israeli companies • Journalists, academics, NGOs, and faith groups with ties to Israel A person's ordinary life abroad suddenly becomes prosecutable the moment they step into South Africa. 4. Zionism Becomes Grounds for Investigation The Bill's definitions and thresholds are wide enough to treat Zionism as ideological evidence of complicity. This means the following groups become primary targets for inquiries, accusations, complaints, and politically motivated legal action: • Jewish communal organisations • Zionist youth movements • Churches that teach Christian Zionism • NGOs facilitating trips to Israel • Schools running Israel educational programmes • Academics collaborating with Israeli universities • Journalists reporting favourably on Israel A complaint by an activist organization could be enough to trigger an investigation. That creates a chilling effect on free expression, religious identity, cultural activity, and community life. 5. Israelis in South Africa Become Immediate Legal Targets Because the Bill applies to anyone present in South Africa after allegedly committing an apartheid-related act abroad, Israelis are among the most vulnerable groups. This includes: • Israeli tourists • Israeli business owners • Visiting academics • Diplomats or cultural representatives • Athletes and performers • Israeli volunteers and humanitarian workers Given Israel's compulsory military service and tax system, nearly every Israeli adult can be accused of "contributing to" or "supporting" the structures the Bill intends to criminalise. This opens the door for politically motivated arrest attempts and manufactured charges. 6. The Bill disproportionately affects Jewish South Africans because they have deep cultural, familial, religious ties to Israel	Shira

	2025-12-09 08:21:53	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I understand the ambition: ensuring that apartheid — in any shape or form — is not normalised, tolerated or allowed to reemerge. But the constitutional stakes are high. If Parliament proceeds with this Bill, it should be accompanied by robust safeguards: a narrow, precise definition of what constitutes an “apartheid crime,” anchored in historical, internationally recognised criteria; clear procedural protections and rights for accused persons (due process, presumption of innocence, fair trial, ability to challenge evidence, etc.); transparent guidelines for extraterritorial application; safeguards against politicised prosecutions (e.g., oversight mechanisms, mandatory review by independent bodies); and periodic review to assess whether the law is being used as intended, or misused for political or ideological purposes. A law of this gravity should not be rushed. It warrants broad public participation — not only civil society and legal experts, but all citizens — and must reflect our constitutional commitment to justice, human rights, and the rule of law. 	2025-12-09 07:24:29	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Dear Paiament This proposed Apartheid Bill has some fundamental and logical errors that rush roughshod over our country's own abilities to stamp out injustice, gender-based violence religious and cultural inequalities and corruption. It seems to intend to rectify issues of one of the furthest neighbors from Africa has - in the Middle East, and intends to punish and persecute into the future, based on past intentions, support (vocalizations, online affiliations and association with supporting organizations and people) and makes it all a crime that is punishable by law, creating a backlog of administration and criminal cases our frail justice and criminal prosecuting system is by no means equipped to handle. We cannot even get a handle on gangster violence qnd suppression in our own communities. Now, we are up in arms to protect a people group who has agressively attacked people on a day of rest(they had no intentions of fighting back), during a Music Festival (symbolizing peace, acceptance of all and love for fellow man, estimation of talent and joy in life and being). We say Israel is an Aparthate state, but women and men enjoy equal rights while we are stuck in our perpetual rear-view-mirror of judgement of the past, attempt to right past Wrongs via Broad-Based Black Economic Empowerment where we unfairly employ people based on their physical makeup. Making us follow straight in the Footsteps of Apartheid, Assigning places to live based on physical makeup. The organisation and religious dogma we are intending to support with this law aims at supressing opposing religions, scrapping freedom of reli not just opinions, and makes politics a weapon for the Muslim Brotherhood - an organization and creed that has birthed the human-sacrificing ISIS(huge Human rights infringements here), with their well-known aims according to the Koran, to persecute and supress all Christians and Jews. 	2025-12-09 14:27:35	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I am writing to object to the proposed Apartheid Amendment Bill on constitutional and legal grounds. My concern is not political but rooted in the protection of fundamental rights and the integrity of South Africa's justice system. 1. The Bill criminalises opinions, not conduct. Public statements by its drafters make it clear that "support" for Israel would be treated as criminal complicity. Criminalising political belief, religious affiliation, or personal opinion violates Sections 15, 16, and 18 of the Constitution. 2. The definitions are vague and overly broad. Key terms such as "support," "aiding," and "apartheid-like acts" are undefined or unclear. This violates the constitutional principle of legality and Section 35(3), which requires that criminal offences be precise and predictable. 3. Extraterritorial jurisdiction is impractical and open to abuse. Granting South African courts authority over alleged acts anywhere in the world risks selective, politically motivated prosecutions and is unenforceable in practice. 4. The Bill threatens social cohesion. South Africa's diverse communities hold differing views on Israel/Palestine. Criminalising support for one side will inflame tensions, stigmatise minorities, and undermine peaceful coexistence. 5. It duplicates existing law unnecessarily. Apartheid is already criminalised as a crime against humanity under the Rome Statute Act (2002). Creating a separate domestic offence adds confusion without adding legal value. 6. It sets a dangerous precedent. Using criminal law to punish political disagreement undermines democratic freedom and could be used against other groups in the future. In conclusion, the Bill is constitutionally flawed, impossible to enforce fairly, socially divisive, and duplicative of existing legislation. I respectfully request that Parliament withdraw or substantially amend the Bill and subject it to full constitutional review before further progress.	Carina

	2025-12-09 14:05:55	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This proposed law is completely antithetical to the principles of freedom of speech and freedom of association. It seeks to criminalise anyone who does not support Palestinians, among other things! What on earth has that got to do with South Africa? Why do South Africans need such a law? In addition, it appears that this proposed law can be used to criminalise many other forms of legitimate free speech and opposition to specific political parties, ideologies and agenda's using the vague accusation of that free speech or opposition representing a form of "apartheid", which accusation would then be used to charge those opposing or criticising the authorities with a made up criminal offence. As such it seems this law is not solving any specific urgent problem in the country, and probably on serves only as a political weapon that can be used against certain parts of the population, by certain other parts of the population. Thus it is a destructive and divisive attempt to divide the country further, sow conflict, and represents an attempt at oppression. And thus it is completely unacceptable to me.	Alan	Western Cape

Section 6(1)(c) of the Citizenship Act expressly distinguishes between foreign military service undertaken as a dual citizen (which is lawful and does not result in loss of citizenship) and service undertaken as a mercenary or as a citizen of a foreign state in which the person has no concurrent nationality. The statutory prohibitions relate to mercenary activity and unauthorised military assistance, not to legitimate service in a recognised national defence force of a state of citizenship. Therefore, a South African who holds dual citizenship may lawfully serve in the foreign army of the state of their additional nationality, without forfeiting South African citizenship and without breaching South African law.. 	2025-12-09 12:50:45	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The political policies of another country cannot dictate the laws drafted in South Africa. It is one thing to support the views of another country and to pledge resources or some other form of aid to assist them in times of need, however, draconian laws such as these aim to destroy the very fibre which forms the basis of human rights not only in South Africa, but every other country that would follow suite. It would be the same to bluntly state that all suicide bombers are of a certain religious persuasion and we should, therefore, promulgate laws to prosecute persons of that religious persuasion or the supporters of that religious persuasion worldwide, because South African politicians do not agree with their beliefs. This matter along with many other questionable policies which are being pushed forward shows how the political cadre has fallen from grace. No longer is there the calibre of one like Nelson Mandela. It's such a shame that born from the leadership of one so nobel, the current political leadership of South Africa has fallen and become so vile, mere dogs fighting for scraps rather than leaders of a once remarkable nation. 	2025-12-09 12:00:23	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The proposed Apartheid Bill by Al Jama-ah is deeply concerning as it represents a dangerous form of control and suppression under the guise of justice. Its vague and broad provisions create fertile ground for abuse, enabling authorities to prosecute individuals simply for expressing their views or supporting family, friends, and charitable organizations linked to Israel - entities that are not engaged in criminal activity. This is not about combating apartheid; it is about silencing people and instilling fear! Such legislation, driven by ideological motives, threatens South Africa's democratic values and risks steering the nation toward an oppressive, Islamist-influenced state (as is happening subtly in so many nations) something South Africa fundamentally is not. 	2025-12-09 11:39:21	No I do not	Constitutional issues	While the stated intention of the proposed Bill is to domesticate South Africa's international obligations, there are serious concerns that its current form may infringe on constitutional rights, erode legal certainty, and open the door to the political weaponisation of the law. These concerns warrant careful scrutiny before the Bill proceeds any further. 1. Risk of Infringing on Fundamental Human Rights The Bill appears to create broad and ambiguous definitions of conduct that could be interpreted as "apartheid-like" or constituting "systematic oppression." Without precise statutory limits, such provisions may: Limit freedom of expression (Section 16) by discouraging dissenting political viewpoints for fear of criminal liability. Interfere with freedom of association (Section 18) if membership in organisations with controversial or politically sensitive views can be construed as involvement in "oppressive" practices. Undermine the right to equality (Section 9) by enabling the selective application of the law based on an individual's political stance, position, or ideological commitments. Infringe on fair-trial rights (Section 35) if evidentiary thresholds are not clearly defined and the offences created are overly broad or retrospective in effect. A criminal statute must be unambiguous, predictable, and tightly confined. This Bill, as drafted, risks criminalising conduct that is lawful, constitutionally protected, and essential in a democratic society. This would also weaponize the law and is in fact a duplication of laws already in existence.	David

	2025-12-09 16:08:14	No I do not	Constitutional issues	To make the statement that 'if you support Israel, you support apartheid' is not only dangerous, but it's speculative and baseless. There were millions of people who lived in South Africa during Apartheid in South Africa who did not support the Apartheid idea at ALL. This statement is ignorant and I'm not even sure how such ridiculous bills are getting to the point of wasting time in parliament. There are many Israelis who love their country but don't support what their leaders are doing, the protests against their leaders' actions are testament to that. There are also many South Africans who are proudly South African but do not support the corruption and incompetence within our leadership. You can't say because you're proudly South African you endorse all the leaders are doing. This bill is rubbish, it's stupid, it's trying to mute people's freedom of speech and freedom to decide for themselves what they want to believe. If we allow these kinds of ridiculous bills to pass soon they'll make more ridiculous laws like in the UK where you get arrested for publicly being a Christian and can be arrested for praying for someone. I am neither anti-Semitic nor anti-Islamic. I respect the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa as underpinned by the Bill of Rights. These legal documents endorse the protection of all South African citizens irrespective of population group, gender, religion, freedom of speech, freedom of movement and so forth. There are several "checks and balances" for their implementation . Shariah Law (which I respect) only has a context and meaning for a minority of South Africans who cannot impose or enforce this Law onto the majority of South Africans. Where, then, does the domestification of the proposed Apartheid Bill and it's international ramifications fit in with the Construction and Bill of Rights for all South Africans. How can the South African judicial system, processes and structures be forced to change to implement this newly proposed Apartheid Bill locally, nationally and internationally? The analyst Willem Petzer sets out very clearly the shortcomings of this proposed Apartheid Bill. I agree with his rational comments. I cannot support this proposed Apartheid Bill as the global fight is too vast opening up to sectarian episodes of violence. Perpetrated violence negates the dignity of all humanity. The ever controlling ANC is doing it’s best to garner financial support from above mentioned countries and extremist groups as the ANC is bankrupt. The West is not willing to support the wholesale ANC corruption. South Africa is being led down a very dangerous path, to the detriment of it’s citizens, by leaders who are power hungry and lover’s of money, legal and/or illegal. 	2025-12-10 07:01:40	No I do not	Constitutional issues	It criminalizes political belief and association, violating core freedoms of speech, conscience, and religion. It targets a specific national, ethnic and religious community, risking discrimination and persecution rather than protecting rights. Constitutional change should narrow state power, not give authorities sweeping discretion to punish dissenting views or religious practices. International human-rights law and South Africa's own Constitution protect freedom of religion, expression and association; this bill conflicts with those guarantees. A lawful, democratic response to foreign-policy disagreement is debate and peaceful protest — not criminal penalties that chill civic life and endanger minorities.	Steph			self-employed

It is too ridiculous for words that Dutch or South African legislators should be wasting time and taxpayers money on issues that do nothing to resolve the unimaginable incompetance, corruption and lack of accountability of the Executive Branche. The fact that a leader of Goverment is allowed to hold the Highest Office for over 9 years, while destroying 42% of the and plunging South Africans into more debt, chaoscand poverty is evidence enough that - as Zapiro prophesized a decade ago - South Africa has gone from democracy to demo - nstrably - crazy. 	2025-12-09 22:44:36	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The “Apartheid Bill” is a Private Member’s Bill introduced by Al Jama-ah to domesticate the 1973 UN Apartheid Convention into South African law. While South Africa already recognizes apartheid as a crime against humanity under the Rome Statute Act (2002), this new Bill seeks to establish it as a stand-alone crime with broader, specific definitions and extraterritorial reach. Its primary political catalyst is the global solidarity movement with Palestine. The Bill is explicitly designed to allow South African courts to prosecute individuals (including dual citizens) accused of committing or aiding apartheid acts anywhere in the world, with a clear focus on the situation in Israel and the Occupied Palestinian Territories. As for as this Jew-hater political party Al-Jama, they do not represent South Africa or its Christian citizens. This is a Christian country, not a free pass for those who want to change what we know and believe in, and to force the citizens to bow down to their evil schemes. Such parties are not even supposed to be in parliament in the first place as it's a danger to the country and anyone who can't see that is delusional when they are telling you to your face what they will do you if you side with Israel. This has got absolutely nothing to do with apartheid. The churches must wake up as they are being distracted while our destruction is being planned and our rights being undermined. This proposed bill undermines Section 16 which guarantees our freedom of speech, it undermines Section 18 which guarantees our freedom of association, and has already undermined Section 25 of the Expropriation of Compensation Act. The whole world can now see for themselves that terrible things are happening in South Africa and that the government sees it as a big joke as they were seen laughing about it on tv, even though they the only ones laughing. 	2025-12-09 19:58:09	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This law is redundant. Apartheid is already recognised as a crime against humanity. Giving government extended jurisdiction outside of SA gives them power that they cannot responsibly maintain. Prosecuting people based on their support for or against a people group takes away their freedom of speech. People should be prosecuted when they harm others. But simply being prosecuted for voicing one's unpopular opinion if a crime against humanity itself. In the same breath, this bill is onesided. It only recognises crimes against whichever side the government decides are the victims. 	2025-12-09 19:26:33	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I oppose this Bill on constitutional, legal, and moral grounds. Constitutional Violations This Bill infringes at least six rights in our Constitution: Freedom of Expression (Section 16): The Bill criminalises political opinions about foreign states. In a democracy, we answer speech we disagree with through more speech—not prosecution. Freedom of Association (Section 18): The Bill punishes membership in organisations, donations to charities, and participation in cultural or religious groups based on their connection to a designated state. This is guilt by association. Freedom of Religion (Section 15): For many South Africans, religious identity is inseparable from connection to Israel. This Bill would criminalise pilgrimages, religious education, and donations to religious institutions. Freedom of Movement (Section 21): The Bill's extraterritorial reach means South Africans could be prosecuted for lawful conduct abroad. Visiting family, studying, or doing business in a designated country becomes criminal. Right to Equality (Section 9): The Bill's practical effect falls disproportionately on Jewish South Africans and other identifiable minority communities. Facially neutral laws that burden specific minorities are discriminatory. Political Rights (Section 19): Criminalising political advocacy based on viewpoint is what the apartheid government did. Our Constitution exists to prevent exactly this. The Vagueness Problem The Bill fails the principle of legality. "Support," "assistance," "endorsement," and "promotion" are undefined and impossibly broad. Does buying a product qualify? Using software? Attending a lecture? When citizens cannot know what conduct is criminal, the law becomes arbitrary. If the state can criminalise support for one country based on political designation, it can do so for any country, cause, or movement. The power this Bill creates will not only be used against those you disagree with today—it will be used against you tomorrow.	Alex	Gauteng		business owner

	2025-12-10 08:12:34	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I do not support the Apartheid Bill in its current form. Turns out the smartest investment isn't weapons-grade politics… it's keeping the planet that funds our economy alive!! South Africa is facing urgent climate and infrastructure crises that threaten water security, food systems, energy reliability and economic stability. Parliament's legislative focus and financial resources should be directed toward climate-critical priorities that affect every South African's daily safety and future wellbeing. These include: • Restoring degraded water catchments, repairing collapsing municipal water systems, and securing drought-resilient supply. • Upgrading the national electricity grid, expanding renewable energy capacity, and supporting storage technologies. • Strengthening climate-smart agriculture, soil restoration, and food-security programmes. • Investing in flood-resilient, fire-resilient and coastal-resilient infrastructure. • Creating climate jobs and skills programmes for renewable energy, ecological restoration, and environmental monitoring. These interventions will save lives, protect the economy, reduce disaster-relief costs, and build long-term resilience. Legislation should prioritise the greatest and most immediate risks to South Africa. The country needs practical climate action, not symbolic or punitive political bills. When the country was handed over to the ANC in 1994, South Africa was had the strongest economy and defence force in Africa, government a provincial departments were functional and municipalities were able to provide services to their communities according to reliable sources, Military wise our airforce had a total of 13 Gripen, 39 Mirage, 75 Impala MK ii and 115 Impala MK ! military aircraft that were airborn, regarding helicopters there were 63 × Alouette III (light helicopters) + 63 “Puma’s. During the recent G20 summit, one single Gripen jet flew across the opening ceremony. Regarding our milliary fleet South Africa had 30 to 35 vessels in total, including: o 9 strike craft, which included 3 modern Frigates; o 3 submarines o 6 mine warfare ships plus o 5–6 sea patrol craft which all were seaworthy. Today, according to reliable sources none of them are seaworthy. Furthermore, there used to be 30–35 total seaworthy vessels , including: o 9 strike craft o 3 submarines o 6 mine warfare ships o 5–6 patrol craft regarding industries South Africa used to have Denel, Yscor and several major industries that produced important commodities and helped to build our country. 	2025-12-10 10:42:03	No I do not	Constitutional issues	South Africa is facing one of the most serious legislative threats to religious freedom in our democratic history. The proposed bill, introduced by the political party Al Jama-ah, an explicitly Islamic party represented in Parliament, poses far-reaching consequences for people of faith. If passed, the bill will criminalise any South African, including pastors, churches, Christian organisations, intercessors, and individual believers, who support Israel in any form. The bill empowers South African courts to prosecute anyone accused of: supporting Israel assisting Israel promoting Israel defending Israel or even speaking in favour of Israel …by classifying such actions as being connected to “apartheid.” This infringes on the constitutional rights of all believers. People must be free to make their own choices, express their convictions, and practise their faith without fear of criminalisation. The bill should not be passed in any form. 	2025-12-10 09:57:20	No I do not	Constitutional issues	My fellow South Africans, Enough is enough. Our country is collapsing—roads are broken, hospitals are failing, the economy is sinking—yet instead of fixing what's destroying this nation, government pushes a bill that divides us even further. This "Apartheid Bill" doesn't heal anything. It fuels resentment, deepens racial lines, stirs religious tension, and hands politicians another weapon to silence whoever they choose. We cannot build a future by turning South Africans against each other. We need leadership that fixes this country, not leadership that uses hatred and identity politics to distract from their own failures. We need jobs, functioning services, safety, and accountability—not another law that rips us apart. South Africa was once strong, beautiful, and full of promise. It can be again—but only if we reject this divisive bill and demand real governance.	Samantha	Eastern Cape		employed individual

	2025-12-10 09:05:21	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This proposed bill is an attempt to criminalise and prosecute those who defend and fight for Israel literally or in words or other ways. In effect it seeks to criminalise Zionists, those who believe in the rights of the Jews to their ancient homeland. In actual fact, those who seek to attack Zionists are the actual racists! To accuse Israel of being guilty of practicing apartheid is duplicity of the highest level. Israel's laws endorse the protection of all who live in the State of Israel. The human rights abuses in many nations world-wide should be the focus of SA and the international community"s "condemnation resolutions". 	2025-12-10 12:59:41	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This is an extremely dangerous bill and completely against the constitution, because it goes against freedom of speech and freedom of association. The bill is definitely and purposefully (by design) too vague in its definitions: it does not clearly define what constitutes the crime or why it constitutes a crime. As such, it can and will be used as a weapon to target ANY individual or organisation by just accusing it of falling under this very vague umbrella, with no way to challenge it. If it gets passed, it can and WILL one day be used against ANY and ALL groups or colours, even against those who voted in this bill in the first place. This will give unprecedented power to government: they will be able to arrest and prosecute any person or institution/organisation by simply labelling them, and nobody will be safe. They will be able to lock you up as a criminal WITHOUT a fair due court process.	Schalk

	2025-12-10 12:29:57	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Dear Editor / Colleagues / Friends, In the shadow of South Africa's hard-won democracy, a shadowy specter has emerged in the form of Al Jama-ah's "Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025"—a cynical, half-baked piece of legislation that reeks of political opportunism and threatens to unravel the very constitutional fabric that binds our nation together. This private member's bill, still cloaked in secrecy without a full public draft available for scrutiny, pretends to champion justice by domesticating a 1973 UN convention into local law. Yet, beneath its lofty rhetoric lies a dangerous tool for division, one that duplicates existing protections while inviting abuse, all in the name of targeting perceived enemies abroad. It's a bill that doesn't just miss the mark; it actively undermines the principles enshrined in our Constitution, turning the rule of law into a weapon for selective vendettas. From the outset, the bill's opacity strikes at the heart of transparency and accountability, core tenets of our democratic order. With only a notice of intention released and no complete text for public debate, it flouts the spirit of Section 1 of the Constitution, which establishes South Africa as a sovereign democratic state founded on the supremacy of the constitution and the rule of law. How can Parliament meaningfully engage with a proposal shrouded in mystery? This devious approach not only hinders informed public participation—essential under Section 59, which mandates Parliament to facilitate public involvement in its processes—but also risks violating the principle of legality, a cornerstone of our Bill of Rights that demands laws be clear, accessible, and predictable. Without a draft, citizens are left guessing at its implications, rendering the entire process an affront to the constitutional imperative for open governance. Worse still, the bill's deliberate vagueness in defining "apartheid-	Francois	Eastern Cape		employed individual
	2025-12-10 12:25:42	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This bill contravenes the constitution. It is also a means to weaponize laws which will be used against minorities in South Africa. 	2025-12-10 12:23:20	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This proposed bill is nothing but an attempt by the Al Jama-ah political party to force its own anti-Israel, anti-Zionist and antisemitic ideologies and political agenda into legislation. This draft bill fundamentally infringes on the rights of South African citizens to freely express themselves theough freedom of speech and freedom of association. South Africa's Constitution, primarily Section 18, guarantees everyone the fundamental right to freedom of association, allowing people to join groups, form unions, cultural/ religious bodies, and political parties, all aimed at fostering a vibrant civil society and democracy. This extends to citizens being able to freely express their support (and disapproval) of other countries. This draft bill is unconstitutional, and specifically forments divisive, anti-Israel and antisemitic sentiment that will unfairly discriminate against supporters of Israel, dual Israeli/South African citizens and the local Jewish community. 	2025-12-10 12:05:20	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The 'Palestinian' cause itself was invented solely to destroy Israel, but also to steal the Jews' own history and entitlement to their own land. The Palestine flag, waved by so many sick and depraved people around the world, is a terrorist flag. It was the flag of the Palestine Liberation Organisation terrorist movement, which conducted terror attacks on many occasions. And that flag of the PLO terrorist movement has now been repackaged as the flag of Palestine and adopted by the Palestinian Authority, which repackaged the PLO. So anyone waving the Palestine flag or wearing it as a lapel pin is announcing in effect their support for a genocidal project to destroy Israel and murder Jews all over the world. It's irrelevant whether you are a Hollywood celebrity, a president, a prime minister or anything in between. A moron is a moron is a moron! Israel was, and always will be the homeland of the Jewish people. Frederik Willem de Klerk, the former state president of South Africa who negotiated the end of his country's apartheid regime, said in 2014: "You have Palestinians living in Israel with full political rights. 	2025-12-10 14:27:44	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The Apartheid Bill is being presented as a neutral human rights instrument. In reality, the way it is structured makes it a direct legal pathway to target Zionists, Jewish community members, pro-Israel South Africans, and Israelis living in or visiting South Africa. This is not an accidental side effect. It is built into the design. 1. The Bill Is Built on a Definition Already Applied to Israel and Zionism The Bill adopts the broad and highly political definitions of "apartheid state," "apartheid policies," and "the crime of apartheid" from the 1973 UN Convention. South African politicians driving the Bill have repeatedly declared that Israel is an apartheid state and that Zionism is an apartheid ideology. Once those definitions are written into domestic law, the state is positioned to treat support for Israel as participation in or assistance to an apartheid regime. That shifts Zionist identity, Jewish communal ties to Israel, and ordinary pro-Israel views into potential legal exposure. 2. Supporting Israel Can Be Framed as Participation in Apartheid The Bill criminalises collaboration, assistance, endorsement, or promotion of an apartheid state. If Parliament classifies Israel as such, then any of the following can be interpreted as assisting an apartheid regime: * Attending a Zionist youth movement • Donating to Israeli hospitals, charities, or humanitarian organisations • Volunteering or studying in Israel • Posting pro-Israel views online • Working for companies that have Israeli partnerships • Using Israeli technology or software • Travelling to Israel for religious, cultural, or business reasons. 	2025-12-10 13:47:42	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Apartheid was abolished over 30 years ago. It is long dead and buried. What relevance is there in referring to it again. The UN "Crimes against humanity " motion was never ever formally ratified, as it never ever received a unanimous vote at the UN. South Africa already has the Rome Statute which addresses past apartheid issues. This Apartheid Bill would be nothing but an extremely harmful, non-necessary duplication of something that is already there. Should this Apartheid Bill ever be approved, the Political, Economic and Financial effect on the country, would be beyond devastating. Leading South African diplomats will most likely be targeted, and sanctioned severely, by Western nations. South Africa would be regarded as a pariah nation, by some of our largest western trading partners. Disastrous Economic collapse and accelerating unemployment would inevitably follow. As South Africans, we should never allow a complete minority party with 2 seats in Parliament, be allowed to introduce devastating legislation, merely because they have a perceived grievance against Israel. This bill is totally at odds with the spirt and intention, of our Constitution, free speech and freedom of association, and must be rejected out of hand. South Africa desperately needs to strengthen international relations and trade, not cause them to deteriorate even further. Let this Government listen carefully to all objections, and do the right thing by rejecting this bill in its entirety. Let's build a totally united and unified rainbow nation, as Mandela wished for in this country. Why further isolate South Africa internationally and diplomatically, when the country desperately needs the exact opposite.	Michael	Western Cape		retired

	2025-12-10 13:36:43	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This proposed Bill falls foul of the Constitution in as much as it's effect would be to limit freedom of thought and freedom of speech. The suggestion that my belief that a country is not practicing apartheid and deserves my support can be negated by someone else's skewed view of the World is totally unacceptable. It is also impossible to enforce. Israel has been accused of apartheid but many believe there is no foundation to this argument. Saudi Arabia has been accused of apartheid without data to support the argument. Myanmar (Burma) has been accused of several crimes including genocide and apartheid but the accusations have no legal foundation. Malaysia has been variously accused of racial discrimination and apartheid with no action taken to prosecute. Who in South Africa is to say I cannot support Israel, Saudi Arabia, Myanmar, or Malaysia if I so choose? Absolute waste of Parliamentary time, a useless distraction, probably a purely racially motivated attack by Muslims against Jews. We do not need to foster Muslim hatred in SA. This bill would seriously damage that future. Secondly, this bill does not seem to be a serious attempt to address an issue of national importance. it seems like an attempt to hurt the brands of people who will oppose it. Why? Because it suits the grouping of parties that have congregated around this private members bill, are largely a who's who of parties that have been directly implicated in fraud, corruption and other crimes. And the last thing they need to have parties intent on prosecuting and highlighting crimes in the headlines. By putting forward this blatantly unconstitutional bill the grouping hope to create 'noise' for compliant news media to follow while crimes, corruption and fraud are carried on right under the public's nose.	theo	Gauteng		unemployed individual

As a devoted disciple of Jesus who was born in Bethlehem, Israel, I know that the Holy Land was given to Israel by God Himself. This promise was to Abraham and his descendants. Christian's are grafted into the true vine, Jesus, who came for His own. As a SA Christian I cannot deny these facts. Are we to be persecuted for our beliefs and faith? Israel has defended itself on numerous fronts against the most despicable hate crimes, attacks & invasions imaginable and yet they are accused wrongfully of genocide. What then was the massacre of innocents in Israel - men, women and children even defenceless babies? Why would anyone support such atrocities against a nation? Those who would try to punish friends of Israel should be ashamed of what they are trying to do . Israel is a friend to all who want peaceful relations and to prosper together sharing their wealth of medical, agricultural and many more areas of expertise & excellence. God said He will bless those who bless Israel & curse those who curse Israel . I don't see her enemies being blessed. God will judge nations with righteousness and justice and punish the wicked for calling good evil and evil good. Will SA allow such atrocities to happen here against those who love Israel? No let good men, Holy men & women stand against evil & those who would try to persuade our own government to harm innocent citizens whose faith & beliefs are targeted by those who hate Israel. 	2025-12-10 18:09:26	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Yes, Israel has committed a genocide, which is still unfolding. And yes, the Palestinians need their homeland. It is horrific what is happening there and pains me deeply. There should be sanctions on Israel, especially with regard to arming the country. But holding individuals here in South Africa accountable who have any connection to Israel is unconstitutional and a disregard of human rights. This means that many people in this country can be brought to trial, and it is unlikely that most will be charged. A waste of time, waste of government funds, and it would be open to witch hunting and discrimination, antisemetism, etc. This has never been done anywhere in the world. If it had stood as a law then one would have to apply the same to many other countries who have killed, ethnic cleansed, and ostracised particular segments of their populations. As a white South African living here in the Apartheid era, I was free to travel overseas without the concern of being arrested as a white South African who automatically benefitted (painfully) from Apartheid. So NO to this proposed draft. It in itself will be a violation of human rights.	Harold	Western Cape

These minority parties are pushing their own political agenda and at the same time seeking to reduce the rights of individuals and target those that do not agree with their viewpoint. This is a distraction against what we need to fix in our country like murder, rape, violent crime and corruption clearly committed by those in government and affecting millions of vulnerable lives in South Africa. We need to rather tackle our real problems in SA first. Apartheid for South Africa ended 30 plus years ago and we have been a free democracy since 1994. 	2025-12-10 21:17:26	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This apartheid bill is unashamedly racist, xenophobic and antisemitic. It contradicts our beautiful constitution completely, which calls for equality for all, freedom of speech and association. Apartheid was dealt with 32 years ago, and the issue is long dead and buried. The present Rome Statute already deals with crimes against humanity. Absolutely no need for any further legislation in this beautiful country of ours. It is being driven by a minute radicalized party with only two seats in Parliament. Why should this ridiculous radicalized party destroy South Africa's image and standing in the international arena. This party is so extremely clever to insert the word "apartheid" in the bill, as it knows this one word will gain its support from all the mindless, destructive, populist parties dominating the political scene in South Africa. If this bill is passed, South Africa will be further ostracized by the west, trade relations will be severely affected, and hopefully politicians will be severely sanctioned by western countries. All this bill will do is increases South Africa's economic decline, and explode the unemployment rate in the country, as major corporations could well disinvest, and foreign investors pull out and move their money elsewhere. Let South Africa follow an upward trajectory and cancel this bill immediately, rather than descend further down the road of economic ruin and world ostracization and exclusion. Do not waste our courts time with absolute nonsense, let the courts do what they are designed for, to fight crime and keep our citizens safe.	Mike	Gauteng		retired

Apartheit is already a recognised crime in this country for good reason, but the political motivation of this bill is unacceptable and the potential ramifications for our already beleaguered economy and reputation are concerning. 	2025-12-10 22:07:06	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This is a violation of our constitutional rights of freedom of speech and freedom of association, fuelled by the antisemitism and Islamic radicalism of a minority group. It is also an overreach in governmental control based on the ICJ case presented by the ANC without consultation with the general public and not backed by a majority of the people. The current format of this bill is vague and allows for misuse by a radical element to unfairly discriminate against the Christian and Jewish communities, with the intention of irradication of their beliefs and is therefore in contravention of the constitutional freedom of religion. 	2025-12-10 22:05:58	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I do not support organizations that send out negative propaganda against freedom of choice. May we never be forced to turn away from our prefered faith. We know Israel has a rich history highlighting the bible. I do not have a problem with that. For example those people that have a problem with those who prefer to be encouraged by something of their personal choice, for example being the bible or Israel, should not be discouraged through forced change of preferences. We all contribute, if possible, towards taxes to build a better economy. More and more people become worried about fanatic movements targeting Israel, while Israel supports our and the world's economy.	Christine	Western Cape		retired

	2025-12-11 07:37:43	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I strongly oppose the proposed criminalisation of expressions. This amendment is fundamentally unconstitutional, as it infringes on the rights to freedom of belief, opinion, expression, association, and religion as protected under the Bill of Rights. It is deeply concerning that the Bill seeks to punish individuals for holding, expressing, or not expressing a particular viewpoint. Ironically, this approach results in exactly the kind of discrimination and persecution that the Apartheid Bill intends to criminialise. No democratic state should criminalise citizens for their personal convictions, identity, faith, or political stance, nor should the law be applied in a one-sided manner that targets specific communities. Legislation must uphold equality, protect diverse beliefs, and safeguard citizens from coercion, not dictate what South Africans must think or publicly support. For these reasons, I cannot support this proposal.	Elaine	North West		business owner

	2025-12-11 07:31:56	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Freedom of speech makes it difficult to support the Bill because the Bill appears to criminalise support, endorsement, or assistance for a foreign state—actions that fall squarely within the realm of protected political expression under Section 16 of the Constitution. Political opinion, including views about international conflicts or foreign governments, is the most strongly protected category of expression in South Africa. By equating verbal or ideological support for Israel with participation in “apartheid,” the Bill risks punishing people not for harmful conduct but for their beliefs, associations, religious views, or political positions. Such broad and vague restrictions on expression would likely fail constitutional tests of legality, clarity, and proportionality, making the Bill incompatible with fundamental speech rights in an open and democratic society. 	2025-12-11 07:13:44	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This bill centers on the religious differences between Palestinians and Israelis. South Africa should maintain a neutral stance both domestically and internationally, especially regarding conflicts rooted in religion, and instead promote diplomatic solutions. Taking sides could foster religious divisions within South Africa, which has so far upheld a commendable standard of religious freedom and neutrality. The bill goes against the intent and motives of the Constitution of South Africa, which are rooted in freedom of speech and freedom of religious affiliation.	Sean			employed individual

We, as citizens of South Africa, have a right to choose who and what we believe in. Pushing a law through saying that we cannot support another country just because someone else doesn't like it, doesn't make it right. There is a greater God, and His name is Jesus. Are you saying that we must support an Islamic party who thrive on 'murdering - beheading' their own and foreigners who they hate? Are you saying it's okay 'an eye for an eye or tooth for a tooth!' No! Are you saying it's okay for women to be mistreated, abused, mutilated? We do not bow down to an Islamic party who SUPPORT this kind of religion. You all forget who started the war with Israel, yet now it's Israel's fault!!!! Yet if this country had been attacked, would you not stand and fight terrorism? South Africa has not even implemented its own constitution yet in this regard, poverty and inequality are INCREASING instead of decreasing, and the constitutional requirements for water, electricity, sanitation, education and fee speech, the basics, have not been satisfied yet. But you want to force another country to solve its history? This bill is arrogant and, because our own constitutional requirements remain unsatisfied, it is unconstitutional to prioritize this bill over doing this government's basic job in our own country. How much time and resources have been wasted on this bill and this vendetta? ALL OF THOSE RESOURCES are unauthorized expenditure because, constitutionally, resources should FIRST be used to comply with our own constitution, providing basic services, BEFORE spending any resources on unmandated/ lesser/ overseas issues. In effect it seeks to criminalise Zionists, those who believe in the rights of the Jews to their ancient homeland. To accuse Israel of being guilty of practicing apartheid is duplicity of the highest level. Israel's laws endorse the protection of all who live in the State of Israel. This law is yet another example of the government or the people proposing this oppressing its people to conform to its own narratives. As a Christian this law will force me to go against my religion as its the Holy Land. The place where Jesus Christ Lived and Ministered. To say we can not support Israel is unconstitutional as it revoked our rights of freedom to chose religion without discrimination. What Mandela built is being destroyed. We are not free, we do not have rights, we are slaves and prisoners of a different type of apartheid in our very own country. We just want to live our lives in peace and harmony without governement and political propaganda and laws trying to divide us all. Stop creating new racist or discriminatory laws. You dont stop discrimination by continuing to discriminate in a new way. Educate people rather than control people through discriminate laws. Stop wasting tax payer money by processing these types of requests that infringe or violate our constitutional rights. Or atleast what's left of our rights. Will they be arresting every single Christian now and taking away our Bibles too? Is that the next step.... I no longer and haven't felt safe in this country for a while and this act... this shows that there is no rainbow nation, no freedom, no democracy. 	2025-12-11 11:19:52	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I, as a citizen of the Republic of South Africa, wish to raise my concern regarding the introduction of this Bill by Hon. Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP. While I respect the constitutional right of every Member of Parliament to initiate legislation, I am deeply concerned about the proportionality and democratic legitimacy of a member representing a political party with only two seats in the National Assembly proposing legislation that may have far-reaching consequences for the constitutional rights and freedoms of millions of South Africans. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on the principles of public participation, accountability, and respect for fundamental rights. Any proposed law that could potentially restrict freedom of expression, freedom of belief, freedom of association, or the ability of citizens to support causes and organisations of their choosing must be subject to the broadest scrutiny and public engagement. As a Christian, and as part of what is statistically the largest religious community in South Africa, I am particularly concerned about any legislation that may inadvertently—or intentionally—limit the ability of religious groups to express their beliefs, engage in public discourse, or support individuals or organisations aligned with their moral and spiritual values. No single Member of Parliament, regardless of political affiliation, should be able to dictate or influence, without wide public mandate, how South Africans may speak, believe, or associate. My concern is not about the existence of the Bill itself, but about its potential implications for constitutional rights, and the democratic imbalance created when a legislator from a very small minority in Parliament proposes legislation that could impact the daily lives and freedoms of the majority. I therefore request that: The Bill be subjected to the fullest possible public participation process; A comprehensive constitutional impact assessment be conducted and made public	DIRK	Gauteng		employed individual

	2025-12-11 11:17:25	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Freedom of religion is a priority. I believe what is written in the Holy Bible; The verse "those who bless Israel will be blessed" primarily comes from Genesis 12:3, where God promises Abraham: "I will bless those who bless you, and whoever curses you I will curse; and all peoples on earth will be blessed through you," and is echoed in Numbers 24:9, where Balaam declares, "Whoever blesses Israel will be blessed, and whoever curses Israel will be cursed". These scriptures form the basis for the belief that God promises divine favor to those who support Israel, and consequences for those who oppose it, extending this promise through the lineage of Abraham to all nations. If this law is imposed then my support of Israeli citizens could be deemed illegal because it is only taken at face value. It is all far more complex. All of this belongs in foreign policy. It does not belong in trying to force people to act in lock-step with what the government wants. South Africa can make a far more effective stand by applying political pressure on Israel. 	2025-12-11 10:57:04	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This Bill is stupid. If passed it means that every single person, man, women and child, who is Jewish will be criminalized overnight. How stupid is this thinking. This would mean that every single Jewish person should leave SA immediately, how stupid is this thinking ... Every single Business entity must cease to exist in SA - how stupid is this thinking. I cannot think of a more stupid idea than this, it has to be political, but I know that it is a spiritual battle. Israel is God's chosen people whether you like it or not, whether they are good or bad is not the issue. Whether you believe anything or nothing it does not matter, South Africa will be opposing the same God that the Arab nations came from, the same God the Jewish nation came from. Dear South Africa, you do not want to be on the wrong side of God by trying to criminalize the nation God chose to be His own, what a stupid thought to think that anyone can oppose God and God's chosen people. Such a tiny piece of land that could fit in the Kruger Game Reserve and nobody can out them down ... just wait, the doom will come, and SA will be on the wrong side of the fence if this stupid idea goes any further. Just the thoughts are enough to bring a curse on SA but what difference does it make SA has already taken on the curse and SA will soon be like many other cursed countries. It's coming just because your thoughts are wicked, they are selfish and SA will get what it deserves ..... these things must happen so that the end of SA can come ... two thirds of all land will be destroyed in the end, and I can guess which portion SA will be in and guess what, that little piece of land that can fit in the Kruger game reserve will still be here ... makes you think ... if you can !! 	2025-12-11 10:27:44	No I do not	Constitutional issues	In our constitution we have the right of freedom of association. To me as a South African citizen it means that i can belong to any organization i choose to. It means i can believe whichever religion i choose to. If this bill is passed that right of freedom of association and freedom of religious affiliation is suppressed and ultimately taken away. The bill means that people must all associate to only one religion and if you don't you are seen as being against the people of the religion the MP is trying to protect. In South Africa we are living peacefully side by side as people from various religions so i do not agree that such a bill is necessary for this country. The war between Palestine and Israel is not happening here, why would the people of SA need to be played up against one another. Why is the bill being used to punish people who are not fighting and injuring one another? Why are our constitutional rights being violated when we are not violating anyone else's. 	2025-12-11 09:52:15	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This bill specifically targets Christians and Christianity whose beliefs are tied to Isreal. While I do not support the in humane acts of the Isreal today (there is a difference between the country and its leaders and the line of Isreal God speaks of in the bible) , banning in such a fashion is a direct violation of Christian beliefs and our ability to practice freely which is our constitutional right. The bill is too rigid . While I do not support inhumane actions against any person, Christians cannot be banned from practicing our beliefs freely. When other groups take part in inhumane actions no other religion has been targeted. Why is it only now the Jewish or Christian community. The country may put measures in place to ensure that the inhumane acts on both parts are not funded (both Palestine and Isreal) to promote peace by operating on a morale scale for both parties involved in this situation, but to remove our constitutional right to practice as Christians , that cannot be the solution. It has never been done to other religions, it should not be done to Christians, unless the true aim here is to silence and wipe out Christianity in its entirety . South africa is a multi beliefs country. We cannot push one particular agenda for the Muslim / pro Palestine community while infringing the rights of other religious groups.	Kerry			self-employed

This is not about taking action against those inciting violence. It is a slippery slope to becoming a nanny state where government controls how citizens are allowed to think, speak or even assemble with. 	2025-12-11 09:29:52	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I think that this bill is extremely ill advised and does not further the interests of the citizens of South Africa. It is diplomatically a bad idea , it violates the right to free speech and violates the very essence of the constitution . It further entrenches the distraction tactics and failing policies that make all citizens in South Africa poorer, South Africa should focus on uplifting South Africans and dealing with the many challenges facing the country. It is a waste of resources and we should use all the resources we have to focus on real crime taking place daily in this country at a completely unacceptable level . It is politically driven and should be opposed by anyone who believes in freedom and democracy .	Michael

	2025-12-11 12:33:59	No I do not	Constitutional issues	After reading the details, I must kindly express that I do not agree with the proposed Bill. As a Christian, I am called to stand in prayer for Israel (Psalm 122:6) and to seek peace rather than division. I believe this Bill risks creating hostility among ordinary South Africans and may unfairly target people of faith who simply support Israel in prayer or conviction. I respect our democratic processes, but I cannot support legislation that could criminalise sincere belief or peaceful support. I will continue to pray for wisdom for our leaders, for peace in the Middle East, and for unity in South Africa.This bill is a blatant onslaught on our constitution and freedom of speech. It is a further weaponisation of laws against citizens, Christians, the Holy Bible, and the foundation of our Christian faith.	Christine	Gauteng		employed individual

	2025-12-11 12:33:08	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I formally object to this Bill as it poses a direct threat to the Constitution of South Africa, specifically Freedom of Religion (Section 15) and Freedom of Expression (Section 16). 1. Violation of Freedom of Religion (S15): The Bill fails to distinguish between criminal intent and religious observance. By domesticating the Convention, it applies criminal liability "irrespective of the motive involved". This clause endangers Christians whose support for Israel is theological, not political. It implies that religious acts—such as tithing, volunteering, or pilgrimages—could be prosecuted as "abetting" or "co-operating" with a crime. This effectively criminalizes the practice of faith for many South Africans. 2. Violation of Freedom of Expression (S16): The Bill creates vague "speech crimes" incompatible with democracy. Article III(b) criminalizes anyone who "encourages" the crime. This impermissibly broad definition threatens to prosecute sermons, academic discourse, or public statements that support Israel. It stifles legitimate debate and silences diverse opinions. Conclusion: This Bill is overbroad and unconstitutional. It forces citizens to choose between their faith and the law. I urge the National Assembly to reject it.	Garreth	Gauteng		employed individual

	2025-12-11 12:50:16	No I do not	Constitutional issues	No I do not Constitutional issues The SA Constitution expressly provided for the right of free speech. This country has laboured under the yolk ofaparheid, and it continues to be used by the ANC as a way of accounting for the lack of economic success and delivery. The concept of apartheid is internationally repugnant , and for a country such as SA to reintroduce a law based the apartheid system for political convenience is not only ironic, but almost laughable! There are certain countries, particularly in Europe which openly condem Israel as the primary aggressor in the Middle East, yet they have never, and will never introduce an apartheid based legislation into their legal system. SA has a very large and influential Jewish population, and not everyone supports Hamas/Palestine. Individuals have a right to express their beliefs freely without fear of legal reprisals. This country has laboured under the yolk ofaparheid, and it continues to be used by the ANC as a way of accounting for the lack of economic success and delivery. The concept of apartheid is internationally repugnant , and for a country such as SA to reintroduce a law based the apartheid system for political convenience is not only ironic, but almost laughable! There are certain countries, particularly in Europe which openly condem Israel as the primary aggressor in the Middle East, yet they have never, and will never introduce an apartheid based legislation into their legal system. 	2025-12-11 15:03:43	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The Enemy of our country is in an uproar of what God is doing, and is still going to do in South Africa. It is using any means, any argument any idea aimed at disrupting peace and stability. It knows the time it has is short,and any straw, even apartheid issues that has been settled for decades to further its quest. Today I want to make it clear: NO weapon formed against Gods' people shall prosper. This is a spiritual battle that will be fought in the spirit. And as such the outcome is already determined. All those forces of darkness that seek the destruction of Israel and the Christian believers in SA shall fail. They can rant and rave, but ultimately God will have the last say, NOT Islam, or any of the parties supporting them.	Thea			retired

Ek het groot bekommernes oor die saak van Israel. Om 'n Suid Afrikaaner te vervolg net omdat hy/sy Israel ondersteun oortree hulle regte aan spraak, geloof, en opinie. Die regering speel met vuur as hulle hierdie toelaat, want op 'n stadium gaan die mense van Suid Afrika gatvol raak vir dit. Hulle gaan gatvol raak vir 'n regering wat besluit wat die definisie van 'n woord is (apartheid) en hoe dit van toepassing is op internasionale sake. As hierdie deur gaan dan bewys dit maar net dat die mense nie God gegeede regte het nie, hulle het maar net vooreegte wat die regering vir hulle gee waneer dit hulle agenda pas. The poses are constitutional rights and human rights as South Africa Africans, we live in a country where people are allowed to say whatever they want and even if others oppose it at least they can be protected under freedom of speech, how can we enforceable a ball that directly opposes that right to a select community. This is a step towards a legal communist state. This is discrimination against South African Jews as well. Many have ties to Israel. Many Christians support South African Jews. This is a way to isolate the Jewish population of our country. 	2025-12-11 16:16:38	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the proposed legislation. I respectfully submit the following concerns for consideration. 1. Risk of Conflating Foreign Policy With Criminal Law The explanatory notes indicate that the bill is partly motivated by global political considerations, including solidarity positions and international conflicts. While these motivations may hold political legitimacy, the use of domestic criminal law to address foreign-policy grievances raises concerns. A legal system functions best when insulated from international political dynamics. Integrating geopolitical disputes into domestic criminal processes may risk: • Politicising prosecutorial decisions, • Undermining institutional neutrality, and • Creating expectations that courts adjudicate matters rooted in foreign conflict rather than domestic criminal behaviour. This would represent a significant shift in how South Africa uses its legal instruments internationally. 2. Potential Diplomatic and Economic Consequences Extending criminal liability extraterritorially to foreign or dual nationals for conduct occurring outside South Africa may generate diplomatic friction. Other states could respond with: • formal diplomatic protests, • reciprocal legislation, • trade or investment consequences, or • legal countermeasures. Such responses could adversely affect South Africa's international standing, economic partnerships, and long-term investment climate. Any legislation with extraterritorial reach must therefore be carefully weighed against possible foreign-policy and economic repercussions. 3. Risk of Overloading the Justice System By enabling complaints based on events occurring anywhere in the world, the bill could open the door to a substantial number of political legal cases that would clog up our already overburdened courts. 	2025-12-11 16:15:54	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Scripture warns nations against opposing Israel, promising God's judgment on those who harm His people or divide His land, as seen in Joel 3, where God gathers nations in the Valley of Jehoshaphat for judgment based on their treatment of Israel. Zechariah 12 describes nations attacking Jerusalem only to harm themselves, while God protects Judah, and Ezekiel 38 speaks of an end-times confrontation against Israel, with God intervening. God promises to fight for Israel against enemies but also holds Israel accountable, as shown in Amos 9, where He promises to destroy the sinful kingdom but also restore them. Key Scriptures on Nations Against Israel: Joel 3:1-2: "For I will gather all the nations and bring them down to the Valley of Jehoshaphat. And I will enter into judgment with them there on behalf of my people and my heritage Israel, because they scattered them among the nations and have divided up my land". Zechariah 12:2-3: "Behold, I will make Jerusalem a cup of staggering to all the surrounding peoples... and when all the peoples of the earth go up against her, I will make Jerusalem a heavy stone for all the peoples. All who lift it shall surely hurt themselves". Ezekiel 38:16: "You will come up against my people Israel, like a cloud covering the land. In the latter days it shall come to pass that I will bring you against my land, so that the nations may know me, when I am sanctified in you, O Gog, before their eyes". God's Protection & Judgment: Deuteronomy 20:4: "For the LORD your God is He who goes with you to fight for you against your enemies, to save you". Amos 9:8: "Behold, the eyes of the Lord GOD are on the sinful kingdom, and I will destroy it from the face of the earth" (but also promises restoration). Themes in Scripture: Divine Covenant: God's promises to Israel are tied to His faithfulness. Land Ownership: The land of Israel belongs to God, and dividing it brings judgment. God's Sovereignty: God uses nations to judge Israel, but also uses Israel	Roy	Eastern Cape		retired

	2025-12-11 16:08:26	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The draft Bill raises serious constitutional concerns. South Africa is founded on the principles of equality, non-racialism, and the protection of individual rights. Any legislation that risks undermining these foundations or introducing discriminatory classifications is inconsistent with the values of our Constitution. My concern is heightened by the fact that government actors have, at times, engaged with foreign political or militant organisations in ways that appear to contradict South Africa's stated commitment to peace, neutrality, and human rights. It is inconsistent to promote constitutional democracy locally while entertaining relationships that disregard those same values internationally. For these reasons, I do not support the Bill. That means we are allowed to choose our religion, our political views, even our international ties etc. To have a group of people trying to impose their views on others is a step backwards that we as a nation do not need. You don't live in Palastine or Isreal. You live in South Africa. We are an independent nation of wonderful people and we don't need other people's nonsense to influence our lives. 	2025-12-11 15:54:22	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I am deeply concerned about the proposed 'Apartheid Bill' being discussed in Parliament. South Africa's progress has been built on equality, justice, and the protection of human rights for all citizens. This includes the fundamental freedom of religion. As a Christian, I am worried that this bill seeks to limit our right to express our beliefs, including referencing Israel in a positive light—just as it must protect the freedoms of every other faith in our country. I urge our leaders to reject any legislation that undermines religious freedom or divides our nation, and instead focus on unity, fairness, and the well-being of every South African. If you are extremist on the left, nothing may happen, even the constitution (that may or may not be corrupt) coincides. When you are with the above metioned, you may literally call for the killing of people. Just look at the "free Palestine" movement aswell as the "Kill the Boer" verdicts. Absolutely no one is asking for the cleansing of the Gaza strip, most are just asking for the Jewish to have a place they may call home. Where does one start to look at history? The last 50 years, the last 100 years, the last 1000 years? I always like to ask myself the question: Who is right? The one that does something, or the one that propogates the most? Mostly, the one that propogates, hides behind civilians and children. The other just want to carry on and be prosperous. Mostly facilitating all of the people that want to exterminate them. My best resolution would be for all the world leaders to visit the area for a time and make their own conclusion. I would like for them to vistit SA as well Most of racial tension is caused by the politicians living luxurious lives that don't want to leave power. Kind regards N Bester Would be vetirinarian, but thanks to racial laws, just a local	Nico	Limpopo		self-employed

	2025-12-11 18:59:10	No I do not	Constitutional issues	One compelling reason to oppose the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill in South Africa is its overly broad and vague definition of apartheid, which could be weaponized to suppress free speech, criminalize legitimate dissent, and target specific communities or international relationships. Critics argue that by granting South African courts extraterritorial jurisdiction to prosecute individuals for "committing or aiding" apartheid acts anywhere in the world, the bill risks violating constitutional rights to freedom of expression and association, potentially equating support for countries like Israel—labeled an "apartheid state" by proponents—with criminal activity. This lack of transparency in the draft, combined with its potential to police personal beliefs and foreign ties, transforms it from a tool against oppression into a mechanism for ideological enforcement, as highlighted by concerns that it represents "one of the most reckless and dangerous pieces of legislation" in democratic South Africa. Such provisions could lead to diplomatic isolation, economic harm, and division within society, undermining the very principles of justice and reconciliation that post-apartheid South Africa was built upon	Mario			employed individual

	2025-12-11 18:37:57	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Extraterritorial Jurisdiction (The “Long Arm”): Enforceability: Legal experts raise concerns about the practicality of South African courts prosecuting crimes committed entirely on foreign soil. Investigating a crime in a hostile foreign jurisdiction (e.g., gathering evidence in Gaza or the West Bank without Israeli cooperation) is practically impossible. Trial in Absentia: If the accused does not enter South Africa, the law may be toothless, serving only as a symbolic gesture rather than an effective legal tool. The NDPP “Gatekeeper” Clause: The Bill requires the written consent of the National Director of Public Prosecutions (NDPP) before any prosecution can start. Concern: Supporters fear this could lead to political interference where the state blocks prosecutions to avoid diplomatic embarrassment. Conversely, opponents fear a “rogue” NDPP could authorise politically motivated prosecutions.	S	Western Cape

	2025-12-11 18:11:40	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The proposed “Apartheid Bill” is not merely a policy debate—it is a direct threat to the democratic foundations of our Parliament and to the religious freedom of every South African, especially Christians. By criminalising any support for Israel, the legislation would compel MPs to censor their own speeches and silence constituents who wish to express a bib-lically rooted view, thereby eroding parliamentary immunity and the open-exchange that our Constitution guarantees. For the Christian community, this is far more than an abstract infringement; it places pastors, churches and lay believers at the sharp end of prosecution simply for exercising their God-given right to pray, speak and act in accordance with Scripture. The bill is undeniably biased, targeting a specific faith perspective while shielding others, and it sets a dangerous precedent that could be wielded against any religious group in the future. We therefore urge all honourable members of Parliament to reject this unfair, sectarian legislation, to protect the constitutional right to freedom of religion, and to ensure that no citizen—Christian or otherwise—has to suffer the brunt of a law that undermines the very principles of justice and equality upon which our democracy stands. This bill will override the Constitution, crush due process, and criminalize anything the government labels as "apartheid activity" — including PR stunts, free speech, criticism of the ANC, defending minority rights, or even making YouTube videos. 	2025-12-11 19:11:48	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This law is against our Constitutional right of freedom of religion. Christianity was birthed out of Judaism and so that actually means that we cannot separate Christianity from Judaism and as such, this bill would mean that Christians would need to stop practicing their faith completely. That would mean the bill wipes out our religion, which is ridiculous. Many countries practice apartheid, like India, China, Russia and most Muslim countries, which makes an apartheid bill foolish. South Africa is in good relations with all these nations, . so why should Israel and indirectly Christianity be targeted only. Unless this bill seeks to address all the apartheid nations I suggest we rename it to address it's real purpose which is to promote Islam, it seems.	Glyn	Gauteng		employed individual

	2025-12-11 20:41:17	No I do not	Constitutional issues	1. Tabling of this law is obviously to oppose and antagonize Israel. There is no call for the legal system - particularly the legislative body - of a country so physically distanced from Israel to concern itself with the actions of another territory or country like Israel. 2. Tabling and consideration of this legislation is an unnecessary waste of the time and energy of the legislative arm of the South African government. Government and the legislature have sufficient important tasks to fulfill regarding the running of the country without tabling a piece of legislation that is not necessary in any way for the country or its citizens. 3. The naming of this proposed legislation as an anti-apartheid mechanism creates confusion about the historical reality of apartheid. The attempt to create crimes for persons in reference to another country or territory in regard to which the Republic of South Africa has not declared a formal state of war is outside the purview of the government of the RSA. 4. The Constitution of the Republic of South Africa in section 16(1) grants the fundamental right of free speech. The proposed legislation will curtail this freedom of the people of South Africa to exercise the right of free speech. 5. In addition, the proposed legislation may contravene the provisions of section 16(2) of the Constitution which excludes advocacy of hatred based on race by targeting free speech regarding another country or territory. 6. The South African Constitution also protects freedom of movement. Section 21 of the Bill of Rights grants rights to everyone to move within South Africa and leave the country, while giving citizens additional rights to enter and stay in the country. Where the proposed legislation limits this right of freedom to travel outside the country & punish those who enter a particular territory with which South Africa is not at war, it is a violation of the right to freedom of movement, & in fact creates apartheids style limits on movement. 	2025-12-11 20:07:25	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I do not support the proposed Apartheid Bill. The Bill, in its current form, raises significant constitutional and legal concerns: The definition of “apartheid” is overly broad and indeterminate, violating the principle of legality (nullum crimen sine lege certa). Extraterritorial jurisdiction granted by the Bill exceeds reasonable limits of domestic criminal law and conflicts with principles of sovereignty and jurisdictional restraint. The Bill’s wording enables potential criminalisation of protected forms of expression and association, contrary to Sections 16 and 18 of the South African Constitution. The vagueness of the offence creates a risk of arbitrary or politically selective enforcement, inconsistent with constitutional requirements of clarity, predictability, and proportionality in criminal legislation. For these reasons, the Bill should not be adopted in its current form.	Cristina			employed individual

	2025-12-12 06:51:14	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This Is a Direct Attack on the Church The Church cannot be silent. While we fight the CRL’s attempt to regulate religion, another front has opened, a frontal legislative assault designed to weaken, silence, and eventually criminalise the Christian voice. If the Church does not stand now: Your pastor could be criminalised for praying for Israel. You could be criminalised for visiting Israel or taking tour groups to Israel. Your church could be prosecuted for hosting an Israel solidarity event.Believers could face charges for posting Scripture about Israel on social media. Christian organisations could face legal consequences for supporting humanitarian work in Israel. This is NOT a small matter. This is NOT a foreign issue. This is NOT a debate for academics. 	2025-12-12 06:00:39	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Peoples rights to Freedom of choice matters for all. Let everyone live and choose who and what they believe in without discrimination. It's not the first time we encounter how certain members (not all of them) of the Islam community want to be a law unto themselves and take over and have things just favour their way of life and thinking. It's backwards thinking, ignorant, arrogant,selfish and dangerous tactics that does not support a free ,fair,well balanced peaceful society that we all should stive to help build togetherin our country. We face much bigger issues like crime in our country and everyone has their own way of connecting to God and things surrounding this like Israel and other topics which helps with their quality of life and facing lady to day life. Islam is one of the only religious movements that want to take others rights away. No other religious movements does this to them. How would they react if the roles were reversed and a bill was suggested that takes their rights away and threatens their freedom of choice in what they can do say, support or believe? Imagine if a law was passed that criminalized a trip to Mecca?They wouldn't allow it to happen to them so why should we? NO NO NO to this bill!!!!!	Chantal			employed individual

The law should not be used to weaken democracy.As this Apartheid bill would. Every SA citizen has the freedom of choice according to the bill of rights in the constitution. This Apartheid bill promotes unforgivenness from the terrible history of Apartheid. Which was promoted through 1994 transition and elections. This Apartheid bill is against Ubuntu of forgiving others and building a prosperous state for SA citizens. Additionally it removes SA citizens right of freedom of expression and speech. Consequently, this Apartheid bill is the beginning of government via legislation stripping SA citizens rights to freedom of communication, speech and association. Which goes against the constitutional rights obtained in a democracy.	Mmaps

	2025-12-11 23:07:22	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The Bill is a direct attack on the Sovereignty of the State of Israel and also of the United States. Although called the Apartheid Bill it serves no purpose on rectifying anything of South Africa. The Bill is motivated from a political point of view as well as ideology and the Religion of Islam. It is clear that the bill seeks to criminalize deeds that took place in another country (specifically Israel) but also any other country or a country aiding Israel. It is no secret that the US is in a form of alliance with Israel. This bill seek to criminalize US aid to Israel as well. Thus it merely seeks to once again undermine the security interests of the United States and try position South Africa as an enemy of the US. I will not support an attempt at law-fare and which is clearly not in the interest of South Africa at all. Furthermore the bill is a waste of time and taxpayers money as it will be unenforceable in other countries. It also seems that the bill is an attempt to undermine freedom of religion in South Africa and seems to lay the foundations of the systematic Islaminisation of South Africa. I support freedom of religion and will thus not support this bill which clearly is drawn on the lines of the Jewish-Islam conflict. It is not in the interest of South Africa. Lastly the bill's name is misleading as it actually has nothing to do with apartheid or South Africa (or even Namibia) but is a unenforceable bill which seeks to position South Africa as an enemy of the US and Israel and a waste of taxpayers money and is full of Constitutional issues. Where is our freedom to speak out for what we believe and support without fear of retaliation and persecution? We will not be forced to bow down to blatant discrimination! Not only is this "bill" unconstitutional, it is in itself racist and pro-apartheid. What is this country coming to? Mandela will be turning in his grave, this is NOT what he would have wanted for the new South Africa! Shame on whoever thought (or thinks) this was even appropriate!	Lisa

	2025-12-11 21:57:25	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Apartheid Bill" is a Private Member's Bill introduced by Al Jama-ah to domesticate the 1973 UN Apartheid Convention into South African law. While South Africa already recognizes apartheid as a crime against humanity under the Rome Statute Act (2002), this new Bill seeks to establish it as a stand-alone crime with broader, specific definitions and extraterritorial reach. Its primary political catalyst is the global solidarity movement with Palestine. The Bill is explicitly designed to allow South African courts to prosecute individuals (including dual citizens) accused of committing or aiding apartheid acts anywhere in the world, with a clear focus on the situation in Israel and the Occupied Palestinian Territories. It would be wrong to remove a person's freedom to hold personal convictions and beliefs. Freedom of religion is threatened, freedom of movement, and speech are at risk. This is totally unconstitutional and unacceptable. Of course the policy of apartheid was wrong but calling this an apartheid bill is a misnomer probably intended to confuse and mislead. i.e. it is dishonest and wrong. It should not be allowed, It is an attempt to sow hatred and divide the country. In a sense it is racist and unacceptable. One should be free to be pro Israel or anti Israel according to ones convictions. Neither should be a matter for prosecution by the state or the church.	Patricia	Eastern Cape		retired

	2025-12-11 21:01:25	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Once they introduce this bill, what's next? A ban on public church gatherings or other places of worship? If this bill passes, it will be violating the constitution by limiting free speech- a key characteristic of democratic countries -last I checked South Africa is, and I hope will continue to be so. The root of this bill is not human activism; it is purely political motivation, driven by hatred- not kindness. Surely a bill that deserves to pass is one that will benefit all of our citizens of our great, democratic nation, the Republic of South Africa? Who will this bill benefit? If the bill passes, who would be affected? Why would that group be affected? Why would a democratic country decide what the citizens believe or where to travel to? Why isn't there a bill to ban South Africans from travelling to North Korea or Afghanistan- both are ruled by a communistic, iron fist that is always starving for power? Do you, yes you- reading/hearing this right now, who has the power to zip the mouths of your fellow Christians, while simultaneously super-glueing it shut, believe that the passing of this bill will improve the lives of your fellow South Africans, or by extension, the Gazans/Palestinians who have now been refused entry into our country? By even considering such a bill, what message does that give off to the world, specifically the USA. This is handing them their first proof that ,'South Africa is commiting a genocide', on a silver platter. I implore you to haltl the final destruction of the American- South African relashionship, but more importantly, to stop sowing the seeds to grow a communist, theocratic South Africa. 	2025-12-12 07:16:58	No I do not	Constitutional issues	1. The Bill Undermines Constitutional Rights and Freedoms The Bill, as publicly framed by its political sponsors, threatens to criminalise South Africans based on their political beliefs, associations, or foreign policy views. This is incompatible with several core constitutional protections: - Freedom of expression - Freedom of conscience, belief, and opinion - Freedom of association - The right to fair, clear, and predictable criminal law Criminalising individuals for supporting a foreign state — or for holding a political position that differs from the ruling coalition — is a direct violation of these rights. South Africa's Constitution does not permit Parliament to weaponise criminal law to police political loyalty. 2. The Bill Is Vague, Overbroad, and Legally Unworkable The proposed definitions of "support", "aid", or "complicity" are so broad that they could encompass: - humanitarian work - academic collaboration - religious affiliation - family ties - trade or business activity - personal opinion expressed online Criminal law requires precision, not political interpretation. A law that can be applied arbitrarily is a law that will be abused. Furthermore, the Bill's attempt to create extraterritorial jurisdiction over global political conflicts is legally unenforceable and will collapse under judicial review. 3. South Africa Already Has Adequate Legal Mechanisms The Rome Statute Act (2002) already recognises apartheid as a crime against humanity and provides mechanisms for prosecution. Creating a second, parallel offence with expanded definitions serves no legal purpose. This Bill does not strengthen justice — it duplicates existing law in a way that invites political misuse. 	2025-12-12 08:22:52	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I do not support the Apartheid Bill in its current form. While accountability for grave human rights violations is essential, this Bill is overly broad, constitutionally ambiguous, and risks turning South Africa’s legal system into a political instrument rather than a credible guardian of justice. Its extraterritorial reach, unclear definitions, and explicit intention to criminalise political association create serious concerns for due process, freedom of expression, and the principle of legality. South Africa already has robust mechanisms under existing international and domestic law to prosecute apartheid as a crime. Introducing a parallel, politically targeted framework risks weakening rather than strengthening our human rights architecture. For these reasons, I cannot support the Bill as published. 				A Firm Christian Argument Against the Al Jama-ah Anti-Apartheid Bill ✦ As a Christian who believes wholeheartedly in God the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, and who stands with Israel because Scripture clearly shows God's covenant with Israel, I cannot remain silent about the proposed Al Jama-ah Anti-Apartheid Bill. This Bill is not simply about "apartheid" — we already have apartheid defined as a crime against humanity under the Rome Statute Act of 2002. This new Bill goes far beyond that. 1. The Bill is an attempt to criminalise belief, not protect human rights When a political leader publicly states: > "If you support Israel then you are automatically supporting Apartheid and will be criminally charged." — he is not talking about justice. He is talking about policing thought. He is talking about criminalising my faith convictions. He is talking about punishing people for standing with Israel, which is a position rooted deeply in Biblical teaching. This is ideology enforcement, not justice. 2. This Bill forces South Africans to adopt one political and religious narrative The ruling parties and their coalition partners openly support Palestine. That is their right. But NO government has the right to force its citizens to think the same way. This Bill reads like an attempt to make the entire country bow to one geopolitical interpretation— one aligned with Islamic political groups and radical leftist movements, not with democracy, not with freedom of conscience, and not with the Constitution. 3. As a Christian, I refuse to be told that my Biblical convictions are criminal The Bible is clear: God made a covenant with Israel. God defends Israel. God warns those who curse Israel. Supporting Israel is not a crime — it is a faith position. If a government tries to criminalise that, then it is no longer about apartheid… It becomes an assault on freedom of religion, freedom of expression, and freedom of conscience—all rights guaranteed by the South Afr

	2025-12-12 08:20:26	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas.	johannes nicolaas	Gauteng		business owner

	2025-12-12 08:15:31	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Be it national or international... politics is a dirty activity - not a game! If politicians want to fight... let them dual it out individually, not draw citizens into their squabbles!! Neutrality is a key issue... there are other countries but Switzerland stands out - internally they deal with many issues but internationally people leave them alone and that has been better for them... Choose an international cause and one gets drawn into a side that does not benefit the people in the country!!! As locals we do not know the history and cultural concerns of others yet an international choice does... Our politicians have already chosen to fight the USA!! The effects have bad a disastrous outcome for NGO's that have lost funds... HIV, our Children, Education, infrastructure has all been impacted for what purpose??? Historically we have seen our citizens die, for what?? World Wars, Korea and DRC to mention a few... let individuals volunteer if they choose but don't let politicians draw citizens into a conflict that does not actually concern us!! We have lost the moral high ground for which Nelson Mandela fought and died, just to mention one person. Not to say we must not object but to make a law is not acceptable!! The majority in the RSA, just want to live, not die - even those that have voted for the last political majority party! We can see that by the current political majorities support... It is early days but time will tell what the internal politics of the USA will have on the international landscape... we will be effected and are as above... but why choose a side? We need to reclaim our moral high ground, returning to a view of a country that fought hard internally to become a country that WAS respected for a brief few years!!! Currently we are seen and judged as country that has no ethics!!! We have gained and now lost all that effort!!! We have our own problems of corruption that is failing citizens on every front!!! So this bill is already flawed before it even started. To make matters worse, even in South Africa, is BBEEE not institutionalising a new form of apartheid?? The matters at hand has got nothing to do with Apartheid and everything to do with select individuals simply siding with a terrorist nation that cowardly attacked another. 	2025-12-12 09:10:34	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I, as a South African Christian woman, do not support the proposed “Apartheid Bill.” My objection is based on constitutional, legal, and human-rights grounds. 1. The Bill Violates the South African Constitution The Bill of Rights guarantees: Freedom of religion (Section 15) Freedom of belief, conscience and opinion Freedom of expression (Section 16) Freedom of association (Section 18) Freedom of movement (Section 21) This proposed bill criminalises religious expression, prayer, travel to Israel, humanitarian support, and even quoting Scripture related to Israel. This is unconstitutional and cannot be supported in a democratic country. 2. The Bill Criminalises Christian Religious Practice Support for Israel is, for many Christians, a biblical conviction, not a political act. A law that punishes: pastors praying for Israel churches hosting Israel-related events believers posting Scripture citizens visiting or assisting Israel …is a law that directly interferes with religious freedom and violates Section 15 of the Constitution. The state has no authority to dictate which parts of Scripture Christians are allowed to believe or express. 3. The Bill Creates Religious and Political Discrimination South Africa is a multi-faith nation. This bill unfairly targets Christian beliefs and imposes religious bias in lawmaking, which violates constitutional principles of equality and non-discrimination (Section 9). 4. The Bill Misuses “Apartheid” for Political Purposes Using South Africa’s historical trauma as a foreign-policy tool is inappropriate and divisive. It undermines national unity and weaponises our legal system for external political agendas. 5. South Africa Must Protect Freedom, Not Restrict It This bill threatens: freedom of worship freedom of speech freedom of belief freedom of travel freedom of association Therefore, I strongly oppose it. Conclusion The “Apartheid Bill” is unconstitutional, discriminatory,	Rachel	Gauteng

	2025-12-12 09:08:27	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The bill does not promote reconcilliation and growth between communities and citizens of this country. Communities have worked hard and made progress in diminishing racial barriers within their personal lives, social groups, and workplace. Laws that keep on highlighting racial differences instead of how all citizens are the same, sharing the same dream to build a country where their children can thrive, bring division and antagonistic attitutes among all races. The bill also infringes on constitutional rights such as the right to religious freedom, equalty, dignity, expression, and association .	Janine

	2025-12-12 10:36:59	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-12 10:20:47	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This bill threatens freedom of speech as well as freedom of religion. It is an assault on South Africa's democracy. This bill seeks to punish and to criminalise individuals for having an opinion outside of the party's own. It is an attempt to suffocate freedom of thought as well as speech and therefore threatens the democracy of South Africa. This bill seeks to weaponise a word that is part of South Africa's painful past and is hurting south Africa's progress. The bill hides under the guise of equality while it's true intentions are to enforce inequality. One injustice can not be repaired by forming another. Christian beliefs are deeply rooted in Israel. To criminalise the support of Israel is to criminalise Christian belief. This is not merely a political overeach but also an attempt at erasing the Christian identity in South Africa. This is a frontal legislative assault designed to weaken, silence and eventually criminalise the Christian voice.	Chantelle			employed individual

	2025-12-12 09:52:15	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Dear Sir/Madam, Allow me to briefly and simply state my concern regarding the Apartheid Bill introduced by the Al Jamah-ah party. If I speak about Israel in a positive manner, will I be in violation of this Bill? Let me specify. If I speak of Israel's God in a postive manner, will I be in violation of this Apartheid Bill? It seems I would be, as it could be assumed that I spoke of Israel's God protecting them from their enemies. Now, would the same violation and consequences follow if I do the following: I speak of Islam's God in a positive manner - He protects Palestine and all Muslim people from their enemies. Can you truly confirm that I will not be in violation of the proposed Apartheid Bill for speaking in the same manner of Israel's God, as of Islam's God? If so, then no religious, atheist, agnostic, theist South African citizen need have fear that their country would seek to undermine their freedom of belief (without racial bias) by criminalizing the preference of one nation over another. Perhaps South Africa has had enough of that period. Essentially, they need not fear the long-standing Constitution of South Africa (envied by other advanced countries), as being overwritten by a Bill of suppressive nature to the South African individual's freedom - a freedom that the older generation have first-hand experience of gaining. Shall we return to that period? Shall we be required by our country to submit to the whims of another nation? I hope not. Sincerely, L. Pillay Durban	L.	KwaZulu-Natal		employed individual

	2025-12-12 11:14:11	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This Bill is UNCONSTITUTIONAL. It infringes on our rights of freedom of expression (Section 16) and freedom of association (Section 18) enshrined in the South African Constitution. The South African Freedom Charter declares that "South Africa belongs to all who live in it, black and white", and upholds equality, freedom of expression, and association. This bill targets individuals or groups based on their political or cultural ties to Israel, and therefore undermines these very rights. It infringes on the rights given to ALL human beings by The Universal Declaration of Human Rights, a cornerstone of international human rights law and customary international law. The UDHR gives us all : Article 9 - The Right to Liberty: The bill's broad extraterritorial reach and vague definitions may enable arbitrary arrest or prosecution of individuals for political or associational conduct protected under international law. Article 19 - Freedom of Expression: Critics argue that criminalizing support for a foreign state—without clear thresholds—could suppress lawful speech and dissent, especially if affiliation with Israel is equated with complicity in apartheid. Article 7 - Equality Before the Law: If enforcement selectively targets specific ethnic or religious communities (e.g., Jewish South Africans), it would violate the principle of equal protection. This is religious and cultural persecution hidden as political game play.	Anette

	2025-12-12 11:06:39	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This bill will turn innocent law abiding citizens into criminals for simply having a different opinion than that of the government. This bill will empower government to intimidate and manipulate minority groups into submission to the governments views -threaten our constitution and turning our country into an ideologic state instead of enforcing the democracy our predecessors have fought so hard for. Sacrificing South Africa's democracy to please international and foreign aids is moving backwards. We should stand united behind the unjust behaviours and voice our opinions loud and clear. But to force every citizen into submission by laws and threats will make us, ourselves, guilty of the very same acts that we are shouting against.	Anine	Limpopo		business owner

	2025-12-12 10:59:00	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This bill looks very much like the work of anti-semites pushing the agenda of the Muslim Brotherhood. They have 5 arms by which they mean to over generations, establish islam as the only faith on earth and eradicate all other peoples and religions: 1. MILITARY ARM: - Liberate occupied Muslim lands from non-Islamic rule. - Expand the borders of Islam by conquest, terror, war. - Destroy minorities and dismantle any resistance to Allah's law. - Obey the divine call to wage jihad. 2. POLITICAL ARM: - Control parliaments and city councils. - Infiltrate Western legal and democratic systems using civil liberties against themselves. - Write and lobby for constitutions aligned with Islamic values. - Push blasphemy and hate speech laws to criminalise criticism of Islam. - Weaponise identity politics (race, gender, post-colonial guilt) to silence opposition. - Defend terrorists as freedom fighters under the guise of resistance. 3. RELIGIOUS ARM: - Educate and indoctrinate from the pulpit, classroom, and prison cell. - Equip new missionaries, scholars, and legal jihadists. - Ignite emotional and spiritual fire in Muslim youth with identity-driven rhetoric. - Provide logistical support for conversions, cultural takeover, and legal preparation for Sharia norms. 4. FINANCIAL ARM: - Fund Islamic media empires to control narrative and perception. - Pour billions into universities to shape curriculums and silence criticism. - Buy influence with bribes, donations, and diplomatic pressure. - Sponsor scholarships and fellowships for Muslims in politics, law, academia, and journalism. 5. The Human Infrastructure: - Outbreed the natives, weaponise birthrates to tip demographic scales. - Use immigration as a vanguard tool to plant flags in non-Muslim lands - Islamise neighbourhoods, schools, and cities through sheer numbers and cultural insistence. - Convert the disillusioned people with identity politics and false empowerment. 	2025-12-12 11:27:56	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Introducing a Bill like the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid risks doing far more harm than good in South Africa's current context. We already have comprehensive constitutional and legislative frameworks that prohibit discrimination, protect human rights, and criminalise hate crimes. Adding another apartheid-focused Bill now feels unnecessary, duplicative, and politically inflammatory. South Africa needs legislation that strengthens the economy, supports social cohesion, and builds investor confidence — not laws that reopen wounds, create division, and potentially weaponise historical terminology for political agendas. This Bill could easily be misused to label political opponents or businesses unfairly, creating uncertainty and fear instead of stability. Our priority should be nation-building, economic recovery, and strengthening existing institutions, not creating new laws that could deepen polarisation. In short, this Bill does not address the country's real challenges and risks being used as a political tool rather than a meaningful contribution to justice or progress. 	2025-12-12 12:54:37	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-12 13:59:27	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I strongly oppose the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. This legislation represents dangerous overreach, granting South African courts extraterritorial jurisdiction to prosecute individuals worldwide for vaguely defined "apartheid" acts, including mere support or publicity. It risks criminalizing free speech, travel to Israel, or advocacy, targeting dual citizens and Jewish communities without evidence. Such broad powers disregard constitutional protections under Sections 16 (freedom of expression) and 35 (fair trial rights), fostering division and McCarthyism. This bill exploits our apartheid history for political gain, undermining democracy—Parliament must reject it to safeguard liberties.	Timothy	Northern Cape		self-employed

Also, it is hypocritical because it endorses an attitude and behaviour, towards Israel and Jews, and people/countries who support them, which it purportedly condemns. Two wrongs don't make a right. Lastly, I object to the way Islam is seeking to control the world and bring it under Islamic rule, to the detriment of freedom of religion and culture. The Middle East has issues far beyond what the history of South Africa ever faced and it boils down to a matter of religious connection to the land and religious animosity. South Africa must be careful to participate in anti-semitism especially when it comes to our own people. If we are truly Ubuntu we cannot push out or harm the Jewish people in our country and should therefore not harm our relationship with Israel by reopening past wounds of Apartheid. Have we forgotten Ubuntu? South Africa more than any other country can testify that equality does not come through reverse oppression or victim mentality. It comes through unity, peace, coexistence. An enemy of Israel is an enemy of God. I am not saying God is happy with what is happening, but you cannot right a wrong with another wrong.	Chanel	Gauteng		employed individual

	2025-12-12 16:08:12	No I do not	Constitutional issues	OBJECTION TO THE PROPOSED “APARTHEID BILL” (PRIVATE MEMBER’S BILL BY AL JAMA-AH) To Whom It May Concern, I hereby submit my formal objection to the proposed “Apartheid Bill”, introduced as a Private Member’s Bill by Al Jama-ah. My objection is based on constitutional grounds, human-rights concerns, the protection of religious freedom, and the threat this Bill poses to the integrity and functioning of the Christian Church in South Africa. 1. The Bill Is an Unconstitutional Violation of Religious Freedom The Bill seeks to criminalise any South African — including pastors, churches, Christian organisations, and individual believers — who express support for, pray for, speak positively of, or associate with Israel in any form. This constitutes a direct infringement on: · Section 15(1) — Freedom of religion, belief, and opinion · Section 16(1) — Freedom of expression · Section 18 — Freedom of association · Section 9 — Equality before the law To criminalise a theological position is to criminalise religion itself. Christianity is rooted in Scripture, Covenants, Prophets, Apostles, and the history and geography of Israel. Penalising believers for honouring these foundations is a blatant violation of constitutional protections. 2. The Bill Represents a Direct Attack on the Christian Faith The practical consequences of this Bill directly target the Church: · Pastors could face prosecution for praying for Israel. · Churches could be criminalised for hosting Israel-related events. · Believers could be charged for posting Scripture referencing Israel. · Christian organisations could face legal sanctions for humanitarian work in Israel. I therefore urge the relevant Parliamentary committees, constitutional experts, and the South African public to reject this Bill in full. I vote NO. Now that we are in an unfavourable position with the USA, is it now also our intent to apply the same to them as a country or to any other country we no longer agree with. Further to the above, the bill is aimed at enforcing a specific viewpoint that is not sound, nor enforceable, and aimed to enhance/ oppose certain religious viewpoints. We, as a country can surely not afford such legislation. The country can do better by ensuring that our limited resources be put to better use e.g. fixing corruption, caring for the poor, creating jobs, fixing infrastructure and reducing corruption etc. Start at home and fix what is fundamentally wrong here in South Africa, before we get involved in international politics. 	2025-12-12 15:42:27	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The hypocrisy of this bill is that it is actually apartheid itself as it goes against the beliefs and values of Christian South Africans & against the identities of Jewish South African citizens. Clearly, there is a group whose own ideologies are in conflict with Christian beliefs and values and they are attempting to suppress and will eventually persecute South African Christians and South African Jewish citizens. This bill IS COMPLETELY UNCONSTITUTIONAL!! We must ALL have respect for eachother and learn how to work together.	Christine	KwaZulu-Natal

I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. 	2025-12-12 16:33:43	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I agree that people should not be discriminated against and apartheid was aweful and should not be repeated in South Africa. However, a bill such as this is very vague and especially where it does not involve South African politics directly but tries to regulate a South African's opinions about matters outside of the country, I do not believe the intentions behind this bill is purely for the reason it tries to claim and am concerned about the abuse it could create when enforced by the wrong individuals based on subjective opinions on what is apartheid. I also don't agree that it stems from Muslim routes for Muslim activism, where all religions need to submit under. Don't believe it meets our constitutional rights of freedom of religion when we are bound under a vague bill that could claim anything they wish to be considered apartheid and driven my a bias religious group. We have enough to focus on in this country that needs urgent attention, without trying to enforce justice on behalf of other countries. Let the South African government rather ensure they are first fair towards our own people of all races, which currently is not the case, before trying to score points in the views of other international leaders. If we are not united and fair internally as a country first, how can we expect to be a representative of "anti-apartheid" for others? The priorities are not in the right order here, causing concern for misuse, so it's a no for me.	Bianka	Western Cape		employed individual

	2025-12-12 16:20:50	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The apartheid bill is clearly incredibly unwise and dangerous. It is a threat to: (a) South Africa's national security; (b) to South Africa's foreign relations, in particular to relations with the United States, Israel and even the European Union; (c) The US Congress is piloting legislation to sanction South Africa including individuals seen as anti-American and anti-America's allies which includes Israel. See H.R. 2633. The apartheid bill will only incite the United States to inflict significant and damaging sanctions against South Africa. Sanctioning the purchase of South Africa's debt would cause a financial collapse in South Africa. A few days ago influential US Senator John Kennedy described South Africa as an "enemy" state and as an ally of America's enemies; (d) Domestically the bill is clearly an assault against freedom of speech and individual liberty; (e) The bill serves the interests of radical Islamic elements within South Africa and in the Middle East. CONCLUSION: Enacting this bill would be an act of folly and utter stupidity also directed at undermining South Africa. It must be stopped.	Francois	Gauteng		retired

I am not forcing my faith on anybody, but they are forcing people into submission to what they believe. It is unconstitutional in a Democracy. The Apartheid Bill, is doing exactly what they are accusing Israel off. They are excluding certain people groups, making them criminal simply by association or by birth or religious orientation. The Apartheid Bill, is serving a political agenda, that causes Apartheid and will affect whole Christian and Jewish denominations. We as South Africans, must have the freedom to choose who we associate with, where we want to travel to and to believe what we want to. If this constitutional freedom is taken away from South Africans, every other freedom is at risk of being taken away.	Mariska	Western Cape		self-employed

South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. 	2025-12-12 18:44:17	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The proposed bill, intended to combat apartheid, ironically perpetuates the very crime it seeks to eliminate. By imposing restrictions with whom individuals and groups may associate, the bill stifles the diverse interactions that foster understanding and unity. Instead of combating division, it serves to entrench it as a diversity of people will be excluded from the public discourse. This creates a paradox where the government, in its effort to create a more harmonious society, actually perpetuates the alienation and disconnection among communities, generating the very antagonism it aims to eliminate. Thus, in attempting to control social dynamics, the bill contradicts its intended purpose and risks exacerbating the issues it addresses. Israel has the most free society in the Middle East. Accusing it of apartheid is preposterous, as will be attested to by the many refugees who have fled there from neighbouring countries.	Gysbert	Western Cape		employed individual

You are using "broader definitions" as a smokescreen to target people you don't like while ignoring the fact that your own courts are already buried under a massive backlog of local crimes. 	2025-12-13 06:41:56	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I acknowledge the deep harm caused by apartheid and support accountability for genuine crimes against humanity. However, I oppose this Bill because South Africa already has laws to prosecute such crimes. The problem is enforcement, not the absence of legislation. This Bill introduces vague definitions, concentrates power, and risks politicised application, undermining the rule of law and constitutional certainty. At a time of economic hardship and social fragility, legislation that may deepen division and legal uncertainty is harmful to citizens. Parliament should focus on enforcing existing laws, strengthening institutions, and protecting equal rights for all.	Michelle	Gauteng		employed individual

	2025-12-13 06:41:12	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Discrimination No freedom of speech which is part of a democracy Attack against Christianity There is different people with different opinions in one country, you cannot group all together and criminalise all because of the action of some leaders. For example if a South African leader is corrupt, should the whole country go to jail? The Constitution is founded on values such as human dignity, equality, non-racialism, non-sexism, the supremacy of the constitution, and the rule of law. All of these values are violated. All human beings should be treated with dignity no matter their religion or affiliation with other people. Where is equality in this law? It is based on discrimination against a certain race. 	2025-12-13 06:16:16	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This is political over reach that is encroaching on the constitution and the right of an individual to be affiliated to any religious beliefs or organisation. It is deliberately set up to ensure that only Christians are targeted, silenced, and dealt with as it is irrevocable that their beliefs are rooted in Israel and people emanating from there. So looking at this bill you want to silence all mention of Israel, both in the public and private space, inside and outside borders all in the name of criminalising the mention, support and respect for Israel. Is this the best possible way of doing things? The bill in its form is blatantly anti Christian, seeking to destroy, persecute, erase, and silence the Christian faith as we know it today. This attack on the history and the vestiges of the Christian faith should not be allowed to see the light of day, for an attempt to weaponise legislation in this manner is downright dangerous, malicious and irresponsible. The passing of this bill opposes the mandate of the constitution to protect and preserve the people of this nation. South Africa let us do the right thing and stop this rubbish from tainting the honour of Parliament.	L			retired

	2025-12-13 05:34:51	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This This bill does more than target foreign policy, it targets the Church directly. - There is no Christianity without Israel. - There is no Bible without Israel. - There is no Messiah without Israel. - There is no salvation story without Israel. To criminalise support for Israel is to criminalise Christian belief, because the foundation of our faith is rooted in Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, the Covenants, the Prophets, the Apostles, and the land from which our Lord Jesus Christ came. Their policies are alienating our trading partners and follow a high bias with the ideologies of the ANC (not the so-called Government of National Unity) as if they won a landslide victory in the 2024 election and is the only party in South Africa. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. 	2025-12-13 12:33:28	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I oppose the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025 on the following grounds: Existing Legislation is Sufficient: Apartheid is already defined and criminalized as a crime against humanity within South African law through the domestication of the Rome Statute. Therefore, this new, parallel legislation is redundant and unnecessary. Risk of Political Abuse: The bill appears to be a politically motivated attempt to criminalize specific foreign policy stances and relationships. Given that the proposing party has publicly framed this bill around criminalizing ties with Israel, it risks being weaponized against minority communities and individuals based on their political, religious, or cultural affiliations, rather than being applied justly against actual perpetrators of systemic oppression. Erosion of Fundamental Freedoms: By attempting to selectively legislate international political issues, the bill threatens to intimidate certain minority communities and undermine fundamental rights to freedom of expression and association in South Africa. Lack of Due Process and Transparency: Concerns remain over the legislative process itself, specifically the failure to provide the full draft wording of the bill alongside the "notice of intention." This lack of transparency severely hinders the public's ability to offer effective and informed comments, undermining democratic public participation. Inconsistent and Unjust Application: As drafted, such a law would be open to abuse and difficult to apply justly and without prejudice across the globe. It risks being selectively enforced in cases where other instances of systemic oppression against minority groups in other parts of the world are overlooked.	Brian	KwaZulu-Natal		Non-profit

	2025-12-13 10:41:45	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I do not support the Apartheid Bill as published. While apartheid is rightly recognised as a crime against humanity, South Africa already criminalises it under the Rome Statute Act (2002). This Bill does not address a legal gap, but instead introduces a stand-alone offence that is selectively framed, constitutionally vague, and explicitly targeted at a single foreign state. The Bill raises serious constitutional concerns. By criminalising undefined “support” for apartheid, it risks infringing on freedom of expression, freedom of conscience, and freedom of religion. In particular, Christianity is inseparably connected to the name and concept of Israel through Scripture, regardless of one’s position on modern geopolitics. A law that conflates political endorsement with belief, language, or religious teaching creates a chilling effect on lawful religious expression and risks indirect discrimination against faith communities. Furthermore, the Bill undermines the principle of equality before the law by being one-sided and selective. Crimes against humanity must be addressed through neutral, universally applicable legal standards, not through legislation designed to advance a specific political or foreign-policy agenda. Selective application transforms human-rights law into a political instrument, weakening both constitutional integrity and public trust in the justice system. South Africa’s history demands that we guard against vague, ideologically framed laws that criminalise belief, association, or opinion. Moral condemnation and international advocacy must not come at the expense of constitutional rights, legal certainty, and the rule of law. For these reasons, I cannot support the Bill in its current form.	Francois	KwaZulu-Natal		self-employed

	2025-12-13 10:40:43	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Israel is not just a country. It is a highly religious entity mentioned in the Bible, Qur'an and the Tanakh. The conflict in the Middle East is not merely a human rights issue. It is a religious war. Creating a law that regulates people's sentiment towards Israel (or any other country in the Middle East) infringes on the constitutional right of freedom of religion, belief and opinion (section 15 of the Constitution of South Africa). This law will also discriminate against people on the grounds of their religion, an infringement of section 9 (of the Constitution) that prohibits unfair discrimination on grounds including religion. This proposed law is essentially in contradiction with the Constitution of South Africa and is therefore illegal.	Jan Mathys	Gauteng		self-employed

	2025-12-13 09:53:52	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. If an amendment clearly undermines entrenched rights (like equality or freedom of religion), it could be challenged and struck down by the Constitutional Court. This means you are protected from arbitrary removal of rights simply because a Bill is passed — South Africa's constitutional system has multiple safeguards: Public participation in the amendment process, Super-majority voting requirements, Provincial involvement, Judicial review by the Constitutional Court. Our rights are reserved as per the Constitution therefore you cannot infringe those rights. Period.	Anna	KwaZulu-Natal		retired

	2025-12-13 09:37:33	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Public Statement on the Proposed "Apartheid Convention Bill, 2025" I oppose the proposed Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025 in the strongest possible terms. This Bill is ideologically driven, legally reckless, and constitutionally dangerous. South Africa already possesses one of the most comprehensive constitutional and legislative frameworks in the world to address racism, discrimination, hate speech, and crimes against humanity. To introduce additional legislation under the banner of "apartheid" in 2025 is not justice—it is political theatre weaponised through law. More troubling is the elastic and selective interpretation of the term "apartheid", which risks being repurposed as a tool to criminalise belief, conscience, religious conviction, and free expression. That is not reconciliation. That is authoritarian creep. The Constitution of the Republic of South Africa is explicit: • Freedom of religion, belief, and opinion is protected (Section 15). • Freedom of expression is protected (Section 16). • The rule of law is non-negotiable (Section 1). Any legislation that blurs moral disagreement with criminal conduct undermines these foundational rights. When law is driven by ideology instead of objective justice, it ceases to protect citizens and begins to control them. South Africans know the real evil of apartheid. It was a state-enforced system of racial domination, not a rhetorical label to be stretched and applied to modern political disagreements or international narratives. To dilute the term is to dishonour history and insult those who truly suffered under it. This Bill does not unite the nation. It polarises it. It does not heal wounds. It reopens them for political leverage. It does not strengthen democracy. It weakens it by normalising ideological lawfare. I reject any attempt to: • Criminalise conscience • Silence faith communities • Rewrite history for politi	Willem	Mpumalanga		Non-profit

As a Christian - and having seen what extremist groups like Hamas have done to Christians in places like Nigeria, anything that threatens freedom of belief is deeply concerning and discrimination. Our Constitution protects freedom of religion and expression for all South Africans. If this bill undermines those rights, then we should oppose it on constitutional grounds, not by turning it into a battle between religious communities. If any proposed bill threatens those constitutional protections, then we should oppose it on that basis: because it is unconstitutional, because it restricts freedom, and because no government has the authority to dictate a person's conscience or theological convictions. Arguments against the use of the term include: - Israel is a democracy where all citizens, including the Palestinian minority, have political rights. - Security concerns, not racial discrimination, drive policies like checkpoints and barriers. - Israel's situation is not comparable to South African apartheid, which involved explicit racial segregation laws and the denial of voting rights to the majority. - Differences in rights are related to citizenship and the ongoing conflict, not race. Islamist believe that anyone who doesn't share their spiritual beliefs are wrong and seek to strongly enforce that belief on everyone else. Christians have the same opinion about our faith, but are not forceful in our attempt to sway what others believe. It must be a willing choice. As Christians, we cannot stand for this bill because our belief is rooted in Israel. Islamist seek to take over in an unmerciful way. 	2025-12-13 07:52:26	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Formele Kommentaar: Afkeur van die Voorgestelde Wet Ek dien hiermee my formele beswaar en afkeur in teen die voorgestelde wet. Hierdie wetsvoorstel is in stryd met die grondliggende waardes van Suid-Afrika as ’n grondwetlike demokrasie en as ’n reënboognasie wat gebou is op inklusiwiteit, vryheid van gewete, en wedersydse respek tussen uiteenlopende gelowe, kulture en oortuigings. Suid-Afrika se Grondwet beskerm uitdruklik vryheid van godsdiens, denke, uitdrukking en assosiasie. Enige wetgewing wat burgers, geloofsgemeenskappe of organisasies kriminaliseer op grond van hul geloofsoortuigings, morele standpunte of internasionale verbintenisse, staan direk teen hierdie beginsels en ondermyn die sosiale samehorigheid wat ons land nastreef. Hierdie voorgestelde wet verteenwoordig nie die konsensus of gedeelde waardes van die breë Suid-Afrikaanse samelewing nie, maar weerspieël eerder die ideologiese doelwitte van ’n spesifieke organisasie of politieke groepering. Dit is onaanvaarbaar om die staatsapparaat en wetgewende proses te gebruik as ’n instrument om ’n enkel ideologiese agenda op ’n diverse bevolking af te dwing. Wetgewing behoort daarop gemik te wees om eenheid te bou, regte te beskerm en vreedsame saambestaan te bevorder — nie om verdeeldheid te saai, burgers te intimideer of geloofsgemeenskappe te marginaliseer nie. Ek versoek dat hierdie wetsvoorstel heroorweeg en verwerp word, aangesien dit nie tuishoort op die wetboeke van ’n land wat hom verbind tot inklusiewe omgee, menswaardigheid, en liefde vir alle mense nie. Suid-Afrika behoort ’n ruimte te bly waar verskillende oortuigings vreedsaam kan saamleef sonder vrees vir kriminalisering of uitsluiting.	Jaco	Western Cape		business owner
	2025-12-13 07:51:54	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The state of Israel's right to defend their sovereignty and their citizens is not apartheid, there are Jews, Muslims, Christians living there, Israel is merely defending their right to safety and religion. For South Africa to deem anyone a criminal who supports Israel, is in fact discrimination based on religion, discrimination against freedom of speech and it is tyrannic and in fact this is an apartheid law in itself, in essence portraying exactly that mindset towards Israel and it's supporters. Ostracising Israel, Jews and it's supporters is the real apartheid,	Anna	Gauteng

	2025-12-13 07:41:00	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The primary problem is that it relies heavily on misrepresentation, fear-based rhetoric, and theological overreach rather than verifiable legal facts. The proposed “Apartheid Bill” is framed as a direct criminalisation of Christian belief and worship, yet no evidence is provided that the bill explicitly targets churches, prayer, Scripture, or theological support for Israel. Complex international-law language is reduced to alarmist claims without quoting the actual legislative text or legal definitions. Secondly, the argument conflates Christian faith with modern geopolitical support for the State of Israel, a theological position that is not universally held within Christianity. While Christianity is historically rooted in Israel, equating biblical faith with endorsement of a contemporary nation-state is a doctrinal interpretation, not an uncontested Christian mandate. Third, the text uses slippery-slope reasoning, asserting that pastors will be jailed for prayer or Scripture without demonstrating a legal pathway for such outcomes. This creates panic rather than informed engagement. Fourth, it portrays a single political party as an existential spiritual enemy, risking religious polarisation and undermining democratic discourse. Finally, the call to action encourages mass mobilisation without encouraging critical reading of the bill itself, which weakens credibility and responsible Christian witness. If an amendment clearly undermines entrenched rights (like equality or freedom of religion), it could be challenged and struck down by the Constitutional Court. This means you are protected from arbitrary removal of rights simply because a Bill is passed — South Africa's constitutional system has multiple safeguards: Public participation in the amendment process, Super-majority voting requirements, Provincial involvement, Judicial review by the Constitutional Court. 	2025-12-13 17:44:30	No I do not	Constitutional issues	The “Apartheid Bill” Driven by Al Jama-ah Is a Threat to Every Christian, Pastor, Leader and Believer South Africa is facing one of the most dangerous legislative attacks on religious freedom in our democratic history. The political party Al Jama-ah, an explicitly Islamic party represented in Parliament, is pushing the so-called “Apartheid Bill”, a proposed law that poses a direct threat to Christians, churches, pastors, and anyone who stands with Israel. This is not simply a political matter, it is a spiritual matter, a biblical matter, and a matter of Christian survival. 1. What This Bill Actually Seeks to Do If passed, the bill will criminalise any South African, including pastors, churches, Christian organisations, intercessors, and individual believers, who support Israel in ANY form. The bill enables South African courts to prosecute anyone accused of: - supporting Israel - assisting Israel - promoting Israel - defending Israel - even speaking in favour of Israel … by classifying such support as an act connected to “apartheid.” This includes citizens, dual citizens, organisations, churches, and individuals, even if the alleged “act” happened outside South Africa. 2. Why Christians Must Be Alarmed This bill does more than target foreign policy, it targets the Church directly. - There is no Christianity without Israel. - There is no Bible without Israel. - There is no Messiah without Israel. - There is no salvation story without Israel. To criminalise support for Israel is to criminalise Christian belief, because the foundation of our faith is rooted in Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, the Covenants, the Prophets, the Apostles, and the land from which our Lord Jesus Christ came. This is not merely political overreach, this is the attempted erasure of Christian identity in South Africa. 3. This Is a Direct Attack on the Church The Church cannot be silent. 	2025-12-13 16:30:53	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Things were way much better before 94. Not because of segregation but because the people who ruled, had the brains and the ability to rule. They did not want to corrupt and bankrupt the country. Yes there were corruption during the apartheid era but it was nothing compared to what's going on since 94. We are not a people who live in a democracy. We are a kakistoracy. We are ruled by the worst of the worst of clowns. They are incompetent. Every State owned enterprise has been destroyed. 	2025-12-13 15:41:19	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Our constitution allows for freedom of speech and religion. This proposed bill is also politically motivated. No nation can ever prosper if its leaders are not righteous, and by removing God the Father, Jesus and the Holy Spirit - the nation is doomed. The purpose of this proposed bill / law is nothing less than an attempt to try and control South African citizens, and to turn anyone who opposes government into a criminal. Along with, serious consequences resulting to the SA economy and wellbeing of its citizens. I oppose this proposed bill/law, and pray it is never allowed, as it goes against the belief of every SA Christian citizen - to include myself and our family.	Marlene	Gauteng		retired

	2025-12-13 15:37:52	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I do not believe that it is right to criminalize support of a country that has religious significance to both the Jewish and Christian communities of South Africa. Its hostorical roots go far deeper than recent events. Back thousands of years. There are many South Africans who may have family ties with people of all backgrounds living in Israel. Atrocities have been committed by political groups from all over the Middle East, not just by Israel. The Islamic Regime in Iran also has a terrible record with human rights (particularly those of women). If we are to take such a firm stance against Israel, we should be as firm in standing against Afghanistan, where women have lost even basic human rights to medical care and education. Israel is a troubled country but I do not believe South Africa's politicians have a thorough understanding of the geopolitical forces at work there. The situation is being used to further political narratives closer to home. Our constitution garuntees us freedom of religion, and many religions here wish to maintain ties with that country. This has the potential to take away every citizens right to freedom of speech and thought and is an utter waste of tax payers money that can be used to address actual issues in South Africa affecting the South African people. Stop wasting valuable time, resources and money on issues that are irrelevant to the well-being, improvement and growth of the South African people and focus on sorting our the corruption that is taking away from those in need. Our municipalities are bankrupt, our people have to deal with sewerage in their drinking water and in our rivers and oceans, our roads are falling apart and our education and healthcare system is broken to the point where people are literally fighting for their lives. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. 	2025-12-13 18:13:11	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-13 17:58:02	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I don't agree with this law as it is unconstitutional. It's aim is to violate the Jewish and Christian community who have a right to exist and to contribute to the economy, society and to the rich cultural diversity of South Africa. Passing this bill will only take South Africa deeper down the path of evil & destruction in our nation. Genesis 12:2-3 NIV [2] “I will make you into a great nation, and I will bless you; I will make your name great, and you will be a blessing. 	2025-12-13 17:53:06	No I do not	Constitutional issues	No person government or body should have any say on who people are allowed to support in speach or by action. This bill deems to criminilise 80% of South Africa, this country is supposed to be a free Republic, not a totalarian comunist state. I bend the knee only to Lord Jesus Christ, as followers of Christ we shall not worship the government, we shall not bend the knee to anyone besides GOD. It is written you shall have no Idols before me. This law is the verry thing it claims to fight against it aims to split people into camps it aims to sew devision and aims to prosecute on the basis of speach it is for all intents and pourpouses against religious freedom. Neberchanezer fell before GOD so has Hitler and J.Stalin all who have gone against Jesus Christ will fail. Wether this law is applied or not I intend to pray for Israiel. This country should not take a page out of socilist Cannada, the prosecution and arrest of pastors for holding service in accordance with the states guidelines, socilist Brittion which arrests people for praying silently for unborn babies outside abortion clinics , socilist Austraila which arrests Journalists for asking questions about policy, socilist Newzealand, America's far left & far right , Nazi Germany wgich persecuted & Killed Jews their own people & made any non government approved religion a crime, The CCP's China which states that it is illeagle to be of any religion except the government approved ones making Christianity, Islam & many others illeagle , Libbia under Gadaufi who slaughtered Christians , Iran where Christianity & many other faiths are illeagle ,Aganistan's current slaughter of its own people ,Azerbijan's persecution and displacement of Armenian Christian's ,Nigeria's coverup of the slaughter & persecution of Christian farmers since 2015 by the likes of Boko haram & other islamic millitant groups, books it should not restrict the freedom of its people and Impose thought policing. Just for an example why can a muslim speak out freely about supporting Palestine, but if a christian stands with Israel bills are being written against it. Our Holy Bible is based on history of Israel and our Jesus Christ who was born in man and is from there. Please can each person just have the freedom to live out their faith and stop this act of trying to destroy christians because of our believe.	Gaynor

I am a child of God and I live those who are lost, even my enemies, for we were all the enemies of God until we understood that love is sacrificial, meek, surrender and servanthood and that our fight is not against flesh and blood, but against powers and principalities which deceive and hold captives in darkness, void of the Truth. As I love all the Word of God created, incl all men, friend and foe, which includes Palestine and Israel, this bill is against my free will, to speak life and love, and to find the good in all and turn them to Jesus who sets all the captives free by giving them spiritual eyes to see, ears to hear and legs to walk, as He did, to follow Him. These so-called leaders do nothing but devise endless methods by which to control our thoughts, values and alignment. It's blatantly obvious that they want to turn this country into another islamic state, while robbing us blind on the way. The government should be secular and support freedom of religion. They have no right to dictate to us what we may think or say. Majority of us have a natural inclination to obey logical laws. Punishment is for those who disobey morally sound laws, NOT for those whose opinions or religion these despots disapprove of. Those who want to support Israel (as well as those who don't) should not live in fear, but be free to discuss, debate and disagree with those whose opinions differ.	Alex	Western Cape

	2025-12-13 22:57:15	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This once again is a direct attack on and a means to shut down the Jews and Christians, the Jewish and Christian faiths in this country. This is a means of destroying our democracy and diversity. If we let these extreme individuals, because they are extremists, control just one aspect of the constitution, it will shortly be completely changed to kill and brutally punish all those who do not abide by their measly standards. This is definitely a form of terrorism. This is what happens when you overlook highly important issues and disregard them as insignificant, it will eventually kill you! It's very ironic that these extremists want to effect an "Apartheid" bill to further their belief systems and selfish gains when they themselves are enforcing a type of heinous apartheid on other people and religions in this country by controlling what people think and believe and forcing them to obey lies and immoral practices, it's an unashamed resurrection of a different type of apartheid and the abuse of our current freedom and democratic constitution. The name al- jama- ah carries a worldwide connotation of terrorism and negative changes to where ever they are located. If this "Apartheid" bill is allowed, essentially terrorism is being allowed. "Apartheid" bill equals terrorism! South Africa will not support apartheid on any level at all, none! We are not allowed to support Israel and yet must support the apartheid that these terrorists are enforcing on us? Never! We do not want their heinous apartheid! Also this country has many, many issues and problems within itself that is not being resolved and yet there is bravery to stir up more problems, especially on an international scale! Foolish! 2 Chronicles 7:14 NIV [14] if my people, who are called by my name, will humble themselves and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, and I will forgive their sin and will heal their land. 	2025-12-13 22:17:05	No I do not	Constitutional issues	God Almighty, maker of heaven and earth, Jesus, his Son and the Holy Spirit are God. God said, To Abraham in Genesis 12 verses 1 - 3 Now the Lord God said to Abraham : “get out from your country…to a land that I will show you. I will make you a great nation I will bless you and make your name Great And you shall be a blessing I will bless those who bless you and I will curse him who curses you, and in you all the families of the Earth shall be blessed” So then God took Abraham to the land of Canaan . From Genesis 15 v 18 - 20 we see: on the same day the Lord made a covenant with Abram saying to your descendants I have given this land , from the river of Egypt to the great river the river Euphrates . So I guess we are not just looking at God giving descendants of Abraham via Isaac, the land of Israel, but so much more. I choose to bless those God has blessed and not to curse them. Thus I totally reject this stupid idea to equate free speech to love the land of Israel and the Jewish people , the people of God - Israel - and criminalise it with antisemetic hatred. If you carry on with this agenda and plan - you and those with you will will be requesting Gods curse on your lives / don’t do it. Rather repent and call on Jesus to save your souls . If an amendment clearly undermines entrenched rights (like equality or freedom of religion), it could be challenged and struck down by the Constitutional Court. This means you are protected from arbitrary removal of rights simply because a Bill is passed — South Africa's constitutional system has multiple safeguards: Public participation in the amendment process, Super-majority voting requirements, Provincial involvement, Judicial review by the Constitutional Court. Our rights are reserved as per the Constitution therefore you cannot infringe those rights. Period.	Bettie	KwaZulu-Natal		retired

	2025-12-14 10:12:44	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Driven by political agenda: Statements from Al Jama-ah's Ganief Hendricks indicate it's designed to target South Africans with ties to or support for Israel, exploiting the country's apartheid past to penalize connections with a democratic nation that denies the apartheid accusation. Redundant legislation: South Africa already prohibits apartheid as a crime against humanity via the 2002 Rome Statute Act — this new Bill duplicates efforts without providing any genuine improvements, potentially complicating the legal system. Ambiguous and prone to misuse: Loose language (such as "abet, encourage, or cooperate") opens the door to politically motivated prosecutions instead of fair enforcement. Infringes on fundamental freedoms: Its wide-reaching extraterritorial powers could suppress free speech, association, travel, and personal beliefs (like Zionism), possibly breaching constitutional safeguards. Damages South Africa's position: It threatens to strain diplomatic ties, alienate key partners, and scare off investment during a period when focusing on internal crises (jobs, crime, economy) is more urgent. Questionable origins and process: Relies on a disputed 1973 UN treaty (shunned by most Western nations) considered outdated, with the Bill's rollout criticized for lacking openness. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. 	2025-12-14 08:46:01	No I do not	Constitutional issues	A DIRECT ATTACK ON THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST IN SOUTH AFRICA The “Apartheid Bill” Driven by Al Jama-ah Is a Threat to Every Christian, Pastor, Leader and Believer South Africa is facing one of the most dangerous legislative attacks on religious freedom in our democratic history. The political party Al Jama-ah, an explicitly Islamic party represented in Parliament, is pushing the so-called “Apartheid Bill”, a proposed law that poses a direct threat to Christians, churches, pastors, and anyone who stands with Israel. This is not simply a political matter, it is a spiritual matter, a biblical matter, and a matter of Christian survival. If passed, the bill will criminalise any South African, including pastors, churches, Christian organisations, intercessors, and individual believers, who support Israel in ANY form. The bill enables South African courts to prosecute anyone accused of: - supporting Israel - assisting Israel - promoting Israel - defending Israel - even speaking in favour of Israel … by classifying such support as an act connected to “apartheid.” This includes citizens, dual citizens, organisations, churches, and individuals, even if the alleged “act” happened outside South Africa. This bill does more than target foreign policy, it targets the Church directly. - There is no Christianity without Israel. - There is no Bible without Israel. - There is no Messiah without Israel. - There is no salvation story without Israel. To criminalise support for Israel is to criminalise Christian belief, because the foundation of our faith is rooted in Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, the Covenants, the Prophets, the Apostles, and the land from which our Lord Jesus Christ came. This is not merely political overreach, this is the attempted erasure of Christian identity in South Africa. This Is a Direct Attack on the Church	Njabulo	Gauteng		self-employed

	2025-12-14 13:46:45	No I do not	Constitutional issues	We should all have freedom of speech but not incitement to violence which is different. Go read the Holy bible and the history books and you will see that The land of Judah & Samaria was given to The Jews and called Israel. There was never a land called Palestine. The arabs cane from their lands to settle there after the jews were forcefully taken. So It is not a new occupation, that land was taken from the Jews a long time ago but God said that the Jewish people would return and now they have. They have only brought only improvement, prosperity & equality. Is there any Arab state that can say that all people (Jew, Christian, Muslim etc) can live freely & democratically like they do in Israel. Hamas & Iran amongst others exist to destroy Israel. They must be stopped at all cost. Israel is not against Palestinian people but they are fighting the evil occupation of the land occupied by Palestinians in Gaza under the control of Hamas. 	2025-12-14 11:57:21	No I do not	Constitutional issues	This bill goes against the constitution of South Africa and Bill of Rights. With obvious intent to weaponise law and not to uphold justice or the rule of law but to manipulate the legal system of South Africa. (3) The state may not unfairly discriminate directly or indirectly against anyone on one or more grounds, including race, gender, sex, pregnancy, marital status, ethnic or social origin, colour, sexual orientation, age, disability, religion, conscience, belief, culture, language and birth.15. (1) Everyone has the right to freedom of conscience, religion, thought, belief and opinion.(2) The right in subsection (1) does not extend to—(c) advocacy of hatred that is based on race, ethnicity, gender or religion, and that constitutes incitement to cause harm.18. Everyone has the right to freedom of association.(2) Except as provided in subsection (1) or in any other provision of the Constitution, no law may limit any right entrenched in the Bill of Rights. This bill leans towards a bias view of the situation between Israel and Palestine based on allegations not proven and without judgement that Israel had committed genocide. This bill if passed would result in an outcome that would divide the nation and inflame hatred ending in destruction. The State should efficiently use its resources to handle its' own scandal with the hate crimes and daily murders within its' own borders that freely allow criminal elements to and fro. Also the effect on an already collapsing economy where people are hungry, homeless, chained in addiction from drugs and to the point of selling their brothers, sisters and babies in human trafficking. It is unconstitutional and I would like to advise ANC that they will get enormous push back from their black constituents who are mostly Christian in their beliefs. 	2025-12-14 16:35:14	No I do not	Constitutional issues	I strongly oppose the proposed Apartheid Bill introduced by the Al Jama-ah party, which seeks to frame Israel as an apartheid state. This bill is not only politically charged but also deeply troubling in its implications for religious freedom, association, and expression — all of which are protected under the South African Freedom Charter. The bill’s extraterritorial reach and vague definitions open the door to criminalizing individuals and organizations who support Israel, including churches, ministries, and believers who engage in spiritual, humanitarian, or relational ties with the nation. This is a direct threat to the church and Christian religion, whose biblical mandate includes praying for the peace of Jerusalem and standing with Israel as part of our spiritual heritage. Furthermore, the bill is being used by pro-Palestine solidarity movements to antagonize Israel, not through constructive diplomacy, but through punitive legislation that undermines freedom of religion and association. It risks turning theological convictions into criminal offenses and weaponizing law against faith communities. The “Apartheid Bill” raises serious concerns about its practical enforceability, its potential to damage South Africa’s diplomatic relationships, and its underlying political motivations. It does not promote justice — it promotes division. As Christians, we must stand for truth, peace, and the freedom to worship and associate without fear of persecution or political manipulation. 	2025-12-14 16:19:23	No I do not	Constitutional issues	Laws are needed for those individuals who disrespect the God given rights of other human beings. Included in the common law of God (as well as our constitution) is the right to choose religious preference or association. This proposed bill makes the assumption that Al Jama-ah (or the South African government) has received the authority from God to decide that Israel is an "Apartheid" state because it exercises it's right to defend itself from the terrorist organization Hamas. If this was acceptable reasoning for establishing a new law, then someone could also propose a "Terrorist Bill", claiming that Palestine is a state under terrorist control, and everyone in support of Palestine is therefore guilty of terrorism? If a bill like this is ever passed in our country, there is nothing that stops extremists like Al Jama-ah to push for Sharia law the following year...	Kobus

				I oppose this Bill not because I deny the horrors of apartheid, but because I honour them too much to allow the term to be misused or politicised. As a Christian and South African, I call for: • Laws that heal rather than divide • Justice that is impartial and rooted in truth • Policies that promote reconciliation, dignity, and peace for all For these reasons, I respectfully submit that the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025 should not be adopted in its current form, and that Parliament should carefully consider its long-term impact on national unity, constitutional integrity, and social cohesion. Focus Should Be on Present Suffering, Not Political Symbolism South Africans today are suffering from: • Poverty • Unemployment • Crime • Corruption • Failing infrastructure and services I respectfully submit that Parliament's time and resources would be better spent addressing these urgent realities rather than introducing legislation that may serve symbolic or international political interests while doing little to uplift ordinary South Africans.
