	2025-12-12 16:40:09	No I do not	Political motivation	This bill can be manipulated by the state to destroy anyone they want to. Goliath vs David. Deep pockets vs the people. The fact that the NPA decides who to prosecute makes this especially contentious, as the President appoints the head of the NPA. Will the government also pursue Iran, a state where political representation in parliament is dependent upon the person being a practicing Muslim with no record of criticizing the Iranian government (explicitly vetted by the religious leaders)? I doubt it. In SA a murderer officially has less than 1 in 10 chance of being convicted, down from 3 in 10 fifteen years go. That in a country riddled with gangsters, political murders and infighting. But the SA government chooses to focus on issues where they feel they on a moral high ground. SA should focus on fixing its own problems rather than grandstand about issues in foreign countries and loading even more enforcement work on already overloaded justice system. Parliament should be banned from making any new laws until it can effectively enforce existing ones. Fix SA crime, SA infrastructure, SA unemployment, etc. Prove yourself a worthy government before trying to lord it over others.	HJ	Western Cape		self-employed

	2025-12-12 19:06:47	No I do not	Political motivation	We need more peace - not Bullying from some to punish others who are not responsible for what leaders of the same religion do in other countries. Who are we to judge people in our country because of their religions - we have religious freedom in South Africa. Its not up to a "Bully type" group of religious to persecute another group because they follow a different belief. The wolf will live with the lamb, the leopard will lie down with the goat, the calf and the lion and the yearling[a] together; and a little child will lead them. The cow will feed with the bear, their young will lie down together, and the lion will eat straw like the ox. The infant will play near the cobra’s den, and the young child will put its hand into the viper’s nest. (Isaiah 11:6-8) Isaiah 11:1-10 In Scripture, peace is more than just the absence of conflict — it is a deep, lasting harmony rooted in God’s presence. As we light the second Advent candle of Peace, we reflect on the ways Jesus calls us to be peacemakers in our lives, showing kindness, understanding, and forgiveness to others. 	2025-12-12 20:22:22	No I do not	Political motivation	Jy kan hierdie comment gebruik. Copy dit as jou motivering I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-13 05:25:28	No I do not	Political motivation	South African law already allows prosecution for apartheid crimes committed domestically, the proposed Apartheid Bill expands this to alleged apartheid acts abroad, raising significant legal and human-rights concerns. The bill's broad language could potentially criminalize individuals who financially, politically, or ideologically support foreign governments accused of apartheid. This raises questions about the balance between holding states accountable and protecting constitutional freedoms, as South Africans have the right to express political opinions and support countries of their choice. Critics argue that domestic prosecution is sufficient for justice, and extending liability extraterritorially risks vagueness, overreach, and conflict with fundamental rights such as freedom of expression and association. We have a lot of pressing challenges here in South Africa such as poverty and unemployment, energy and infrastructure crises, crime and corruption, and education and healthcare deficits. Before using our resources attempting to implement such a bill let us first try to 'fix' South Africa.	Tshepo	Free State		student

	2025-12-13 05:19:00	No I do not	Political motivation	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. 	2025-12-13 01:39:11	No I do not	Political motivation	Arguments for opposing the ICC case/criticizing Israel's actions (supporting Israel's stance): Misapplication of "Apartheid": Many argue Israel doesn't meet the legal definition of apartheid (systematic racial domination) and that the term is a political smear to delegitimize the Jewish state. Security Concerns: Israel cites existential threats and security needs justifying checkpoints, separation barriers, and military actions, which critics call discriminatory. Self-Defense: Israel asserts actions are self-defense against terrorism (Hamas, etc.), not racial oppression. Sovereignty: Opponents say the ICC oversteps, interfering with a sovereign nation's right to protect itself. Arguments for supporting the ICC case/criticizing Israel (drawing parallels to anti-apartheid): Human Rights & Discrimination: Proponents argue Israel's occupation, settlements, and differential treatment of Palestinians in the West Bank (separate laws, movement restrictions, land confiscation) mirrors apartheid systems, denying Palestinian rights. Historical Parallel: Supporters of the ICC case see echoes of South African apartheid in Israel's policies, viewing the ICC case as a necessary step for justice, similar to global boycotts against South Africa. International Law: Supporters argue Israel's actions violate international law (occupation, settlements), making the ICC intervention justified. Why the comparison is controversial: Israel's Perspective: Israel and its supporters reject the analogy, pointing to its democratic system, Arab citizens' rights (unlike Black South Africans under apartheid), and the unique security context of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. Palestinian Perspective: Many Palestinians and human rights groups (like Human Rights Watch, Amnesty International) use "apartheid" to describe the system, arguing it denies their fundamental rights based on ethnicity. In essence, those who stand against ICC actions or criticism often view Israel as a democratic state defendin	Daniel

	2025-12-12 23:57:22	No I do not	Political motivation	Extraterritorial reach, Ukraine – and selective domestic enforcement The Bill gives South African courts global reach over the crime of apartheid, similar in spirit to other forms of universal jurisdiction: if the alleged perpetrator or victim is South African, or the alleged perpetrator later appears on South African territory, they can in principle be prosecuted here. First, the Ukraine hypocrisy problem. Since Russia’s full-scale invasion of Ukraine in February 2022, South Africa has repeatedly abstained on key UN General Assembly resolutions that: Condemn Russia’s aggression; Call for immediate withdrawal; Reaffirm Ukraine’s sovereignty and territorial integrity. On 2 March 2022, South Africa formally abstained on the emergency special session resolution demanding that Russia “immediately, completely and unconditionally” withdraw from Ukraine.Similar patterns of abstention have occurred on subsequent resolutions condemning Russian aggression and calling for accountability. Government statements frame this as “non-alignment”, but a substantial body of commentary notes that Pretoria has been unwilling to clearly condemn Russia’s violations of the UN Charter and associated human-rights abuses, despite its own foreign-policy rhetoric about human rights and anti-colonialism. Against that backdrop, a bold, extraterritorial “Crime of Apartheid” law risks appearing highly selective: South Africa may be eager to criminalise and prosecute actors associated with governments it already opposes (for example, Israel), while simultaneously avoiding clear censure or accountability measures for a powerful partner such as Russia, whose conduct in Ukraine involves blatant aggression and grave violations of international law. That is where the charge of hypocrisy lands hardest: a state reluctant even to vote for UN resolutions condemning Russia now claiming sweeping jurisdiction to prosecute “apartheid” abroad. Second, the domestic ‘witch-hunt’ vs everyday impunity.	Richard	Western Cape		self-employed

	2025-12-12 23:33:29	No I do not	Political motivation	The TRC's role was to promote reconciliation but also to advocate prosecution in certain circumstances. South Africa's woeful criminal justice system was not able to carry through with the prosecutions. So now embarking on an even more difficult task will drain further resources, resulting in a even poorer service at home - focus should be on trying to improve the security situation at home. It is political grand standing - the government sees itself the arbiter of systematic repression in the world. But the hypocrisy is self evident. Ultimately, which systematic repression will be acceptable to the government and which not. Are Russia, China, Iran, Eswateni and many other governments in Africa not systematically repressive. Unless all repressive regimes are treated equally, the whole exercise will be discredited. The Kurds are systematically repressed in Turkey and Iraq and elsewhere - this would also fall within the definition of apartheid.	David			business owner

	2025-12-12 23:00:44	No I do not	Political motivation	It is not possible to comprehensively assess the proposed bill because it has not been released yet. Nevertheless, there are already a long list of material concerns with the proposal itself, which I briefly discuss below. Accordingly, it should be rejected in its entirety. First, the name and process of the bill are misleading. It claims be about Apartheid. No doubt most South African's are disgusted by Apartheid and it is a system that is correctly rejected. But this bill, as its sponsor admits, has very little to do with Apartheid and everything to do with undermining the State of Israel, a sovereign nation that impresses deeply upon Jewish people and their identity. The bill therefore hijacks the notion of Apartheid and weaponize the racial suffering of Black South Africa's to advance the political reasons of the bill's sponsors. This is an insult to victims of Apartheid in South Africa. Bear in mind that the sponsor's party only enjoys 2 seats in parliament – this party does not represent any meaningful proportion of South Africans. Second, the bill is redundant and there are already sufficient legal channels to prosecute crimes of Apartheid that are relevant in South Africa. The bill effectively seeks to extend those prosecutorial powers without justification. The justifications that have been offered are without merit. For example, it is not necessary for South Africa to promulgate this bill to meet any international legal obligations. There is no clear evidence that a large proportion of South African's are enthusiastic about this bill, or even agree with the sponsor's negative (and evidently biased) position towards the State of Israel. The bill is also not sponsored by a political party supported by a diverse group of South Africans. Third, this bill is being pushed through because of South Africa's apparent moral obligations. That is incoherent and inconsistent, and will deeply undermine the social fabric of South Africa.	Ricky	Gauteng		employed individual

I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas	Mark	Western Cape		retired

Copy dit as jou motivering I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. We are ALL South Africans regardless of what religion we choose to practice or what we choose to believe in.. Israel has been a powerful Alli to South Africa in the past, South Africa takes pride in it's neutrality on the global stage, this bill portrays the opposite to the rest of the world. It is sad that this country no longer wishes to be viewed as having that unique stance.	Tracey	KwaZulu-Natal		self-employed

	2025-12-13 10:06:41	No I do not	Political motivation	This is a nonsensical political stunt by a minority party with deeply questionable ideological leanings. The proposal effectively seeks to punish South African citizens for expressing support for another country, in this case, Israel, by automatically branding them as supporters of apartheid and, by extension, criminals. That approach is irrational, dangerously simplistic, and wholly incompatible with constitutional principles such as freedom of expression and association. The fact that such a proposal is even being entertained is deeply alarming.	Johan

	2025-12-13 09:46:22	No I do not	Political motivation	The proposed law targets Israel and by extension Christian beliefs and practices (it therefore applies to all the Abrahamic faiths). It appears to seek to restrict the freedom of speech and association and will possibly be used against Jewish citizens. The proposers have apparently not applied similar restrictions to anyone supporting Hamas and Hezbollah despite those organisation's actions. The bias of the proposed legislation is crystal clear and deserving of rejection.	Anthony	Gauteng		business owner

	2025-12-13 09:39:25	No I do not	Political motivation	How is Apartheid defined? If you mean institutionalised racial discrimination the South African government is an Apartheid state. It explicitly and clearly discriminates against the white population under the pretence of "redress"!! In Israel there is no racial discrimination. There are Arabs in the parliament, and although there are areas like Judea/Samaria exclusively for Arabs, Arabs also live among Jews in the Israel territory. Israel's only exclusion is the will and claim for the right to exist. This is what Hamas and the other Iran proxies explicitly opposes and the reason why they want to destroy Israel. That is before they will expand their destruction on the rest of the world. Therefore Muslims who support death and subversion of everyone not a Muslim is executing apartheid under the banner of religion - but this is not a religious issue but a political issue. Further, in trying to criminalise support of Israel or anyone else is against common human behaviour. Forcing people into a specific behaviour in this way is impractical and against human nature, where a whole range of opinions allow for moral advancement of the society. This proposed law is based on a false and propagandistic view of Israel, and the only intent is to advance the Muslim drive to convert the whole world to this false and destructive world view. It is a political weapon dressed in legal terminology. Its definitions, reach, and enforcement structure make it clear that the real targets are Zionists, Jewish community members, Israelis, and ordinary South Africans who choose to support Israel or engage with Israeli society. As a Jewish South African it is my constitutional right to practice my religion and support and visit Israel if I wish to do so. It would be absurd to prevent me from doing so and a contravention of my human and constitutional right - as for any other religion. 	2025-12-13 17:00:43	No I do not	Political motivation	This bill will criminalize dissent, threaten religious freedom, and free speech. It is clearly motivated from a very narrow, misinformed and malignant political and religious ambition - to attack Israel and punish those who choose to support Jews and Israel. It has not been well thought through, because by the ANC's own definition of Apartheid, when it comes to ownership of land (for example), several of the countries that surround Israel, including Gaza, disallow landownership by Jews in their own countries, making them guilty of Apartheid against the Jews. This irony demonstrates how poorly conceived this anti semitic move really is. Whether you stand with or against Israel, whether you are Jew or Gentile, South African or foreigner, this bill is fundamentally flawed and might well be unconstitutional. I therefore FUNDAMENTALLY DISAGREE AND DISAPPROVE of its foundation and purpose.	Wayne	Western Cape		employed individual

	2025-12-13 15:40:10	No I do not	Political motivation	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-13 15:35:19	No I do not	Political motivation	This proposed bill is an attempt to criminalise and prosecute those who defend and fight for Israel literally or in words or other ways. In effect it seeks to criminalise Zionists, those who believe in the rights of the Jews to their ancient homeland. In actual fact, those who seek to attack Zionists are the actual racists! To accuse Israel of being guilty of practicing apartheid is duplicity of the highest level. Israel's laws endorse the protection of all who live in the State of Israel. The human rights abuses in many nations world-wide should be the focus of SA and the international community"s "condemnation resolutions". Israel is an example, which our nation should emulate in many areas, instead of singling her out for condemnation.	Liezl	Gauteng		employed individual

	2025-12-13 20:36:55	No I do not	Political motivation	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 				The “Apartheid Bill” is a Private Member’s Bill introduced by Al Jama-ah to domesticate the 1973 UN Apartheid Convention into South African law. While South Africa already recognizes apartheid as a crime against humanity under the Rome Statute Act (2002), this new Bill seeks to establish it as a stand-alone crime with broader, specific definitions and extraterritorial reach. Its primary political catalyst is the global solidarity movement with Palestine. The Bill is explicitly designed to allow South African courts to prosecute individuals (including dual citizens) accused of committing or aiding apartheid acts anywhere in the world, with a clear focus on the situation in Israel and the Occupied Palestinian Territories No I do not Constitutional issues Parliament could propose an amendment that might limit or redefine rights, but In practice: any such amendment must still pass the high thresholds and be tested against constitutional principles. If an amendment clearly undermines entrenched rights (like equality or freedom of religion), it could be challenged and struck down by the Constitutional Court. This means you are protected from arbitrary removal of rights simply because a Bill is passed — South Africa’s constitutional system has multiple safeguards: Public participation in the amendment process, Super-majority voting requirements, Provincial involvement, Judicial review by the Constitutional Court. Our rights are reserved as per the Constitution therefore you cannot infringe those rights. Period. 13/12/2025 time 8:25 pm Catherine

	2025-12-14 10:06:08	No I do not	Political motivation	Driven by political agenda: Statements from Al Jama-ah's Ganief Hendricks indicate it's designed to target South Africans with ties to or support for Israel, exploiting the country's apartheid past to penalize connections with a democratic nation that denies the apartheid accusation. Redundant legislation: South Africa already prohibits apartheid as a crime against humanity via the 2002 Rome Statute Act — this new Bill duplicates efforts without providing any genuine improvements, potentially complicating the legal system. Ambiguous and prone to misuse: Loose language (such as "abet, encourage, or cooperate") opens the door to politically motivated prosecutions instead of fair enforcement. Infringes on fundamental freedoms: Its wide-reaching extraterritorial powers could suppress free speech, association, travel, and personal beliefs (like Zionism), possibly breaching constitutional safeguards. Damages South Africa's position: It threatens to strain diplomatic ties, alienate key partners, and scare off investment during a period when focusing on internal crises (jobs, crime, economy) is more urgent. Questionable origins and process: Relies on a disputed 1973 UN treaty (shunned by most Western nations) considered outdated, with the Bill's rollout criticized for lacking openness. Impractical in practice: Overseas prosecutions would encounter major obstacles, including biased approval processes and minimal global support, rendering it largely symbolic rather than effective. 	2025-12-14 09:57:26	No I do not	Political motivation	Politically Motivated Targeting - Al Jama-ah leader Ganief Hendricks has explicitly stated the Bill aims to prosecute South Africans who "support" Israel, labeling it an "apartheid state" and calling supporters "complicit." Opponents, including the SAJBD and South African Zionist Federation, view this as an attempt to exploit South Africa's apartheid history to criminalize ties to Israel (e.g., visits, advocacy, or dual citizenship activities), despite Israel rejecting the apartheid label and being a democracy. Redundancy with Existing Law - Apartheid is already a crime against humanity under South Africa's Rome Statute Act (2002) — this Bill adds nothing new and risks legal confusion. Vagueness and Risk of Abuse - Broad wording (e.g., "abet, encourage, or co-operate") could be weaponised for political ends rather than justice. Threatens free speech: Extraterritorial reach could chill expression, association, travel, and religious/ political identity (e.g., Zionism), potentially violating constitutional rights. Harms SA's interests: Risks diplomatic isolation, damaged relations with allies, and lost investment at a time when domestic issues (unemployment, crime, economy) need priority. Flawed process: Initial lack of transparency and a contentious 1973 UN Convention (never ratified by most Western democracies) seen as outdated and selectively applied. Likely ineffective: Extraterritorial prosecutions face practical hurdles, politicised consent requirements, and little international cooperation — more symbolic than enforceable. 	2025-12-14 14:00:05	No I do not	Political motivation	The apartheid Bill is in itself a matter for concern as it threatens the principle of freedom of choice and freedom of speech by making it an offence to stand by the ethical, moral and religious values which many people in South Africa hold dear. The accusation against Israel that it is an Apartheid State must surely be questioned in light of the fact that the origins of the criticism comes from a country which changed from being an Apartheid state with laws favouring one group of the population on the basis of skin colour which although it later resorted to free elections, now has a very strong majority of one race group enforcing new laws which now favour one racial group over another. This law if passes is polarising and will cause more division and difference of opinion which could lead to conflict and disunity . It is my opinion that the Bill is constitutionally vague, practically unenforceable, and a waste of parliamentary resources intended solely to antagonise Israel, and will definitely anger the millions of Christians who regard Israel as the nation which God chose to bring forth the saviour whose teachings advocate love, peace, tolerance, and should be the way to unite people. This law if passed will cause disunity and once again favour the beliefs of one group above another.	Cecil	Gauteng		Non-profit

	2025-12-15 08:21:41	No I do not	Political motivation	Apartheid is a uniquely grave crime in international law, defined as the intentional and institutionalised domination of one racial group over another for the purpose of maintaining permanent racial supremacy and political exclusion. Because of South Africa's history, the term must be applied with strict legal precision, not political convenience. The proposed Bill risks diluting this definition by turning apartheid into a politicised label rather than a narrowly defined international crime. This undermines the credibility of international law and weakens South Africa's moral authority. More concerning is the contradiction between the Bill's intent and South Africa's own governance. The state continues to enforce race-based laws and policies, justified as remedial under Section 9(2) of the Constitution. Regardless of one's view of these measures, it is inconsistent for the government to criminalise apartheid abroad while normalising racial differentiation at home. This exposes South Africa to legitimate accusations of hypocrisy and selective moral reasoning. South Africa's constitutional foundation is non-racialism, equality, and dignity. Legislation that entrenches race as a permanent organising principle—particularly through criminal sanction—risks eroding these values and reopening the racial logic our democracy sought to overcome. For these reasons, the Bill should not be adopted in its current form.	Klaus

	2025-12-15 08:03:26	No I do not	Political motivation	I DO NOT SUPPORT THIS BILL. From a legal and political standpoint it is vague, politically selective, and dangerous in its application. It literally weaponises the term "apartheid" by detaching it from precise legal meaning — eg: applying a concept rooted in South Africa's former internal legal system to a complex foreign conflict where the facts and legal characterisations are deeply contested. It expands state power through unclear concepts like "complicity," which could be interpreted to include donating to charities, hosting speakers, engaging in academic debate, or expressing faith-based or political support for Israel. Rather than advancing impartial justice, it singles out one geopolitical context while comparable or worse situations elsewhere are ignored, undermining the principle of equality before the law. In doing so, it risks chilling free speech, religious conviction, and lawful association, and opens the door for future governments to use the law to silence dissent. Justice must be clear, equal, and evidence-based — this bill is none of those. To top off this disaster, it's also clear that this bill was designed to specifically target Israel, using the UN Apartheid Convention framework!	Saroj	North West		employed individual
	2025-12-15 07:58:49	No I do not	Political motivation	The middle-east conflict is highly polarised. While South Africa has a part to play in promoting peace and stability, it is unethical for the state to impose a bill that essentially forces compliance with a particular view or "threatens" those who hold an opposing view. 	2025-12-15 06:55:15	No I do not	Political motivation	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-14 22:47:49	No I do not	Political motivation	To the Government of the Republic of South Africa: This Bill is grossly Unconstitutional, a Weaponisation of the Law as well as a Political Motivation as it severely negatively affects the most basic of rights and freedoms of the People found in our Constitution to the most magnanimous of proportions. The fact that it comes from a islamic source(Al-Jamah-ah) and seeks to over-rule Our Constitution where our Constitution is in conflict with their proposed Bill, is clearly a major red flag and is under the covers in fact an attack on the Sovereignty of the Republic of South Africa by the Radical Islamist Political War Machine, which seeks to slowly impose(even force eventually(see jizya tax and reasons thereto)) their own beliefs and culture on South African Culture and Beliefs(which is predominantly Christian) and to turn it into an islamic state. Ask yourselves this question, what is the common denominator behind all the broken and messed up countries in the Middle East? Its Radical Islam/Shariah Law/Islamist Ideologies. Look at what's happened in London England and in other parts of the world where this has been allowed to go unchecked! Be careful that this is not a Trojan Horse tactic to slowly bring in RadicalIslamist Ideologies and/or Sharia Law, which are also Unconstitutional and which in turn will annihilate the freedoms we have and the South African Cultures we love. This is clearly an attack on Christianity(first, as well as the Jews and any other religion except radical islam) in RSA, an attack that is not only political but also Spiritual and demonic in nature as we Christians use the South African freedoms that we have to spread the chain breaking, freedom bringing, healing power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ which is the power of God unto Salvation to every one that Believes! I would wager that the parties who are proposing this bill have figured out the power Christians have through prayer and are going to attempt to silence us through this legislation. Why? Because we may be hindering their dark adgendas for South Africa through our prayers to God Almighty(Yahweh/ Jehovah(english)). We as Christians need to repent if need be and fight this through intercessory prayer and fasting for our government to see the light through this islamist deception. Remember, the average muslims are just people made in the image of God, it's the Ideology of Radical ISLAM which is evil and in fact incompatible with our Constitution outrightly so and are quite happy to lie through their teeth in order to further their evil islamist adgenda(takiyah) to colonize South Africa into an islamic state through legislation and other devious means. I know I may have repeated myself a little above but the fact remains, the Ideology of Radical ISLAM is evil and must be stopped, not the average Muslim(who still holds to rich and warm non islamic Middle Eastern Cultures passed down through generations), and so the only way how to fight this is through petitions, repentance and Christian prayer and fasting! "Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." (James 5:16, KJV). This is country is the REPUBLIC OF SOUTH AFRICA, NOT South Africanistan, and it belongs to God Almighty(Yahweh/Jehovah) NOT the god of islam. That's my two cents.	Myles	KwaZulu-Natal

	2025-12-14 22:27:32	No I do not	Political motivation	South Africa (specifically political parties aligned and funded by communist/ Middle Eastern countries) has become a pawn for a greater agenda. There was no reason whatsoever for South Africa to take Israel to court except that it paved the way for this agenda where South Africa can be used to interfere in Israel for the application of a law that wasn't even ratified in 1973. In the most basic terms the situation fails the definition of apartheid in that the Palestinian group don't want to reconcile and come under a single state. They desire separation from Israel/ the Jews as much as the other way around. This is simply a fight for territory to express religious ideology and completely different to apartheid where the oppressed party desired reconciliation and living in one state. 	2025-12-06 16:23:11	No I do not	Other	The following arguments detail why this Bill creates more problems than it solves and why the current legal framework is superior: Legal Redundancy: South Africa already has the necessary legal framework. The Implementation of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court Act (2002) already recognizes apartheid as a crime against humanity and allows for the prosecution of international crimes. Creating a new, separate act is duplicative and unnecessary. Strain on Judicial Resources: The South African judicial system and the National Prosecuting Authority (NPA) are currently overburdened with domestic crises, including corruption and violent crime. Pursuing complex, extraterritorial cases requires immense financial and investigative resources that the state cannot currently spare. Enforceability and "Symbolic Legislation": The Bill risks becoming performative legislation. Without the capacity to effectively investigate and arrest suspects abroad, the law will likely remain unenforced, which ultimately undermines public trust in the rule of law and the credibility of the justice system. Diplomatic and Geopolitical Risk: Unilateral prosecutions outside of established multilateral frameworks (like the ICC) open South Africa to accusations of politicized justice. This could lead to diplomatic isolation and complicate relations with key trade and political partners. Legal Uncertainty and Fragmentation: Reintroducing the 1973 UN Convention definitions may conflict with the modern definitions found in the Rome Statute and the Constitution. This creates legal ambiguity and "fragmentation," giving defense attorneys technical grounds to delay or derail trials.	Evert	Outside SA	United States	employed individual

	2025-12-03 11:38:59	No I do not	Other	Why are we concerning ourselves with foreign issues when we have massive local issues already. This is a waste of resources on a topic that has nothing to do with us. This is a waste of tax payer money on a frivolous attempt to virtue signal, adding no value to tax payers and South Africans and adding a complex foreign (targeted at Israel) legislation that will be almost impossible to enforce. This is clearly politically motivated to win certain votes at the expense of the tax payer. This also seems to be weaponised against people that don't fully agree with the issue being and "apartheid" issue, silencing any debate, and enforcing an opinion where there is major disagreement. This will translate into upheaval, and if the target of legislation turn inward, huge swathes of the population will automatically be found guilty, especially those of the population that are Jewish. We should focus on South African issues and not concern ourselves with foreign affairs if our own house is not in order. We should always keep certain topics open for debate otherwise we risk having our country turned into an authoritarian state where discrimination runs rampant against certain groups, Jewish people in this respect. So won't this then spit in the face of the constitution if we are meant to discriminate less, we will end up discriminating more now against people with different views on this matter. So now our freedom of thought will be infringed upon as we will now be compelled to agree to a certain side of this problem that has nothing to do with us. And as a tax payer I don't care at all what happens somewhere else if my government can't even ensure my services that I pay for are taken care of. Why must I pay for the prosecution of individuals that think differently. This is an affront to free thinking individuals.	Diaan	Western Cape		employed individual

It is imposing apartheid against certain organisations and many individuals and shackling us so that they can control us. Think Nazi Party... This Apartheid Bill is nonsensical, there is no reason to prosecute people for their opinions and who they choose to do business with when the business in question is not itself a crime. 3. The citizens of this country do not hold the same believes as the political brass, it seems likely that their position is bought and paid for since it is morally questionable and it makes no sense. If they feel South Africa needs to take a position on issues in the middle east or anywhere else they should put that on a referendum and have the citizens decide it. 	2025-12-04 07:51:10	No I do not	Other	1. Existing Legal Framework Already Criminalizes Apartheid Crimes: South Africa's constitutional and statutory framework comprehensively addresses crimes of Apartheid. The Implementation of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court Act 27 of 2002 explicitly incorporates crimes against humanity, including Apartheid, into domestic law. Furthermore, South African courts have already secured convictions under these provisions, affirming that the legal system is capable of prosecuting such crimes without additional legislation. Introducing a new bill risks unnecessary duplication and legislative clutter. 2. Constitutional Concerns: The proposed bill undermines the transformative vision of the Constitution, which seeks to move South Africa beyond the divisions of its past. Section 9 of the Bill of Rights guarantees equality and prohibits unfair discrimination. Reintroducing Apartheid terminology into statutory law risks perpetuating symbolic harm and contradicts the reconciliatory objectives of our constitutional democracy. 3. International and Domestic Commitments: South Africa is a party to international instruments such as the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid, and our domestic law already aligns with these obligations. Passing this bill may create interpretative conflicts and dilute the clarity of existing statutes. [opiniojuris.org] 4. Practical and Symbolic Implications: The word "Apartheid" represents a painful chapter in our history. Embedding it in new legislation risks reopening wounds and undermining efforts toward national unity. Legislative focus should instead prioritize strengthening enforcement of existing laws and promoting restorative justice.	Michael

I believe in Israels right to defend itself against ballistic missiles and drones. Sent in by Hamas/Palestinian proxies from Iran. I believe that Israel is the only democratic multi cultural and religious country in that area. So I support Israel. I don't believe there is apartheid in Israel. I believe the Israelis are being targeted and are hated by hamas which is Gaza and they call for Israels extermination. So much so that ot is taught and encouraged in Palestinian/ UNWRA primary schools. Kill Christians Jews and the west. SO I DO not agree with introducing this law. 	2025-12-04 09:26:12	No I do not	Other	I hereby oppose the proposed Bill in its entirety. While the fight against genuine crimes against humanity is universally supported, this Bill is unconstitutional, economically reckless, and legally unnecessary. South Africa already has comprehensive legislation addressing genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity, discrimination, and hate crimes through the Constitution, the Rome Statute Implementation Act, and equality legislation. This Bill therefore creates no additional legal protection, but instead introduces ideologically driven criminalisation based on political alignment, nationality, or association — a direct violation of Sections 1, 15, 16, and 35 of the Constitution, which guarantee non-racialism, freedom of belief and expression, and legal certainty. From an economic perspective, the Bill substantially increases sovereign and investor risk. It creates uncertainty for businesses, financial institutions, foreign investors, professional service firms, and dual-citizen entrepreneurs who may face criminal exposure for lawful international engagement. This will deter investment, accelerate capital flight, weaken trade relations, and further damage an already fragile economy. South Africa urgently requires legislative focus on job creation, infrastructure, energy security, crime prevention, and economic recovery. This Bill diverts scarce parliamentary resources into foreign geopolitical conflicts that deliver no measurable benefit to South African citizens. Laws that criminalise belief, opinion, or lawful association undermine constitutional democracy itself. If passed, this Bill will almost certainly face immediate constitutional challenge, at significant cost to taxpayers. For these reasons, I call for the immediate withdrawal of this Bill in full. South Africa needs constitutional stability, economic confidence, and unity — not ideological criminalisation and investor uncertainty.	Charl	Gauteng		business owner

This would be tantamount to legalising xenophobia! It will criminalise all Local and International Businesses and Organisations with any association to Israel or any other perceived perpetrator (except friends of the proponents) The proposal clearly has a self-serving motivations. 	2025-12-04 09:11:38	No I do not	Other	It is ridiculous to add this into law, as we already have laws protecting people in South Africa in this regard. This bill allows it to be weaponized to target people the state and certain groups wish to target. We should be allowed to personally support or denounce any foreign state or cause, without legal ramifications. Rather than using apartheid as the barometer, we should use persecution and moral justice as a barometer to address the issues that this bill allegedly attempts to address. As there are many groups being persecuted all over the world because of identifying with a certain cause or group, religion, ethnicity or choices. Our political parties that micro focus on the Israel-Gaza problem, don't seem to care about persecutions like in Nigeria and Mozambique where thousands of Christians are being persecuted or Ukraine being attacked by Russia or Iran persecuting Christians, or China persecuting Muslims & Christians or North Korea persecuting Christians or Yemen persecuting Christians & Jews or Kyrgyzstan persecuting Christians or Sudan, Myanmar, CAR, DRC, Mali, Burkina Faso, Gaza, Niger, Cameroon, Afghanistan, Algeria, Somalia, Libya, Eritrea, Pakistan, India, Saudi Arabia all persecute Christians. Many people's groups being murdered persecuted or imprisoned. Countries like Yemen, Gaza and the Palestinian territories persecute Jews. Ethnic persecutions and restrictions are rife in Sudan, DRC, Burundi, Gaza, West Bank, Iraq, Iran, India, Peru and South Africa. Many countries like Malaysia, South Africa, Liberia, Israel, and India have discriminatory race-based laws. This proposed Bill seems to be motivated by people wanting to use it as a weapon against certain groups, while turning a blind eye to other persecutions. This government must stop polarizing its causes, and should look at all persecutions without discriminating, and without merely picking causes that fit their political agendas, but should rather use just a moral compass for all injustices. 	2025-12-04 08:59:31	No I do not	Other	This bill provided nothing than using SA Laws to fight political battles at International level wherein we dont have any impactful effect and implementation. There are wars all over the world and the government hasn't taken a similar stand to address the concerns emanating from those conflicts. Its selective to target Israel as a state rather than the political sphere in that region including its neighborhood countries. There are international laws that cater for the needs of the same bill including the Rome Statute Act (2002). SA should be using those laws to address apartheid infringements when it comes to the international sphere rather than target a certain country which has diverse views politically and religiously. Its a symbolic support by the ANC and its supporters for the Gaza course which has no meaningful impact to us as citizens and may also affect our international relations with countries in support of Israel. THIS BILL WILL NOT GIVE ANY FORM OF FREEDOM to anyone. Nelson Mandela fought for and intended FREEDOM to all South African individuals without hatred filled agendas. We as South Africans irrespective of Race or Religion has a God given right to think for ourselves and choose for ourselves. This Bill is full of warped Political Own Agendas, instead rather start to provide a good service to South Africans in South Africa, as we face major problems in South Africa which originate from the ANC’s incompetence to lead this country, and all the corruption, crime, and waist of Tax Payers money on rebranding this country with Province Names, Street Names, Buildings, Landmark Names etc. ALL TO THE COST OF THE POOREST OF THIS COUNTRY. Although it is appalling what has and is happening between Israel and Gaza. Punishing SA people or companies because they don't support or believe the way the SA Government does goes against the South Africa Constitution. The Constitution of the Republic of South Africa protects the rights to express, believe, and support through Section 15 (Freedom of religion, belief and opinion) and Section 16 (Freedom of expression). Although there are limitations particularly concerning hate speech and incitement to harm - supporting though finance or materials to defend the homeland of your religion is not hate speech or an incitement to harm. Lets not forget this didn't all begin on the 7 October 2023 The Israeli-Palestinian conflict has been ongoing for more than a century, with its roots in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, when the Zionist movement in Europe and emerging Arab nationalism both laid claim to the same territory. The conflict escalated into a major international issue following Israel's declaration of independence in 1948. Be careful what bills you bring before parliament. What next? 	2025-12-04 11:13:58	No I do not	Other	This as "lawfare"—using the legal system to fight foreign policy battles. This could strain South Africa's diplomatic relations with key trading partners who are allies of Israel (e.g., the US and UK). The Bill represents a significant move to "weaponise" South Africa's human rights laws for international justice causes. Pushing this Bill through could create fissures within the coalition government, as the DA has historically voted against motions labeling Israel an apartheid state. The Bill is designed to rally voter bases around the Palestinian cause rather than legislation that will have a tangible impact on crime or justice in South Africa. Establishing specialized units or allocating High Court resources to try complex international crimes will divert scarce resources away from addressing South Africa's soaring domestic crime rates (murder, rape, corruption). South Africa already has the Implementation of the Rome Statute Act (2002), which criminalizes apartheid as a crime against humanity. This new Bill is redundant and creates confusion by establishing a duplicate legal regime for the same offense. This has nothing to do with apartheid but rather is a weapon to further the ANC's anti semitic agenda. South African lawmakers should not be used to further the personal and political agenda of groups that themselves advocate for the genocide of the Israeli people. Israel is a sovereign nation, with a democratically elected government, and does not practice Apartheid. Any assertion to the contrary is misguided. Parliament is not there to further personal views, but to protect and serve the public. Any suggestion that it is appropriate to consider this bill will lead to international condemnation and ridic This is clearly designed to support terrorist organisations and their international supporters, primarily Iran. South Africa is being used as a proxy for these terrorist sponsoring nations, and it should be stopped now before sanctions are imposed on us.	Brian

This Bill is a farce, and if passed will lead to MASSIVE PUNITIVE actions against South Africa by the biggest and most powerful DEMOCRACY in the world, the United States. This Bill needs to be obliterated, before it obliterates our country. To the idiots (IDIOTS) who drafted this Bill - your actions are inflammatory, RACIST and dangerous to South Africa and it's citizens. If you wish to destroy our country for your children then this is how you will do it. It's time for South Africa to WAKE UP and side with democracies such as the United States as opposed to abortive states which have ZERO democratic and civil rights, such as Palestine (a terrorist state with no legitimate leadership where anyone opposing the terrorist regime is targeted and killed by those terrorists) and the terrorists who support it	Steve G	Gauteng		employed individual

Secondly the murder of Farmers both white and black as well as gender crimes is a human rights violation. So those promoting these acts are to be criminally charged. Those calling others infidels are in the same boat. Calling for the murder of a group of humans must be criminally charged. The use of our Justice system to cover murders, rape of people and our resources are also criminally to be charged and convicted. If you are going to pass this bill you need the guts to do it fully. 	2025-12-04 12:07:53	No I do not	Other	I’ve read through the details of the proposed “Apartheid Bill,” and while it’s being presented as a moral or humanitarian step, I find the intent and scope deeply concerning. The Bill goes far beyond aligning South African law with international conventions — it effectively attempts to give South Africa extraterritorial policing powers tied to one specific geopolitical conflict. Criminalising South Africans for holding a particular political view or maintaining support for a foreign state is a serious overreach. It blurs the line between justice and political weaponisation, and risks turning our legal system into a tool for ideological enforcement rather than legitimate accountability. Even worse, the wording is vague enough that ordinary people, dual citizens, charities, businesses, and even faith communities could be caught in the crossfire. A law that can be selectively applied is a law open to abuse. I absolutely do not agree with the premise that supporting Israel — or any state — automatically makes someone complicit in apartheid. Reducing a complex, decades-long conflict to a blanket criminal category is neither fair nor constitutionally sound. If anything, this Bill distracts from urgent domestic issues and may damage South Africa’s international credibility by politicising our justice system. Strong opinions about international conflicts shouldn’t be turned into criminal offences.	Ailsa

This DOES NOT give them the right to deny others the freedom to chose who to support. It runs against the Constitutional Rights of SA Citizens to associate with whomever they wish to, and is in itself an apartheid proposal. It is not up to any one sector of our diverse society to dictate to those whose opinions may differ, to be forced to support their points of view. In any case, Israel, and now Palestine it seems, are Sovereign States, so what right does any other nation or sector of a nations society, have to interfere in their internal struggles firstly, and what right do these elements have to outlaw personal opinions and make potentially contradictory personal opinions a criminal offence! this is utterly unacceptable and in conflict with the SA Constitution. 	2025-12-04 14:18:06	No I do not	Other	I do not support the draft Apartheid Bill. My chief concern lies in its extraterritorial jurisdiction and the practical impossibility of enforcing a criminal statute that depends on evidence, cooperation and access to foreign sovereign territory. South Africa cannot reliably investigate or prosecute alleged apartheid-related offences occurring in states that will not recognise our jurisdiction or assist with evidence-gathering. This risks turning the Bill into symbolic legislation rather than an effective legal instrument. While the moral intent behind the Bill is understood, duplicating offences already covered under the Rome Statute Act introduces legal overlap, potential constitutional challenges, and uncertainty for prosecutors and the courts. The NDPP “gatekeeper” clause further centralises political discretion and may expose the prosecuting authority to accusations of selective or politically motivated decision-making. A more constructive approach would be strengthening existing international-crime mechanisms, improving cooperation with recognised global bodies, and ensuring South Africa’s human-rights posture is upheld through workable, enforceable law rather than legislation that may ultimately be impossible to implement. 	2025-12-04 14:00:57	No I do not	Other	I do not support the draft Bill. The proposed legislation introduces a standalone offence of “apartheid” with an excessively broad definitional scope derived from the 1973 Convention rather than the narrower and better-defined elements of the Rome Statute already incorporated through the ICC Act. By creating a parallel and less precise legal regime, the Bill undermines the principle of legal certainty, risks duplication, and creates conflict between overlapping statutory frameworks. The Bill’s extraterritorial jurisdiction provisions are technically unsound. Granting South African courts authority over conduct occurring entirely outside the Republic, absent a meaningful territorial or nationality nexus, diverges from established principles of international criminal law and disrupts comity between states. This exposes the Republic to diplomatic disputes, complicates extradition and cooperation processes, and imposes evidentiary burdens that prosecutors cannot reasonably fulfil without foreign-state collaboration. A further constitutional concern arises from the foreseeable effect of the Bill. Although framed in general terms, the legislative intent expressed publicly by its sponsors indicates that the Bill is designed, in practical application, to target individuals and organisations associated with a specific foreign state and a specific political viewpoint. Legislation drafted or applied with the purpose or effect of singling out identifiable groups for adverse treatment violates the constitutional principles of equality before the law, non-discrimination, and the right to freedom of association. A statute cannot be tailored to criminalise lawful political, cultural, academic, commercial, or religious engagement with a particular country or community. This is inconsistent with a constitutional democracy. Race based discrimination is anathema the World over, but was used to fuel corruption to the state if virulence. Now with the new proposed laws they have an agenda to extend the RACE BASED DISCRIMINATION to what corrupt end yet needs to be seen, and if proclaimed will be, as with BEE, abused to the corrupt benefit of the few. 	2025-12-04 15:21:33	No I do not	Other	The demonisation of Israel and the Jews is written deep in the DNA of Islam. They will do anything and use anyone to further their aims of destroying Israel and the Jews. To that end the Marxist ANC government have sold themselves to Muslims who are using them to destroy Jews and in doing so are besmirching the good name and reputation of the Republic of South Africa. This cannot be allowed to happen, because once the Jews are out the way, the Muslims will come after the Christians.	Jonathan			self-employed

GIVE IT UP !!!! ========== Subject: Opposition to the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025 Submission: I register my strongest objection to the proposed Bill. This proposal is fundamentally flawed, unnecessary, and potentially harmful to South Africa's democratic and constitutional order. My reasons are as follows: Redundancy and Legal Overreach South Africa already has a robust constitutional framework and criminal statutes that prohibit racial discrimination, crimes against humanity, and violations of human rights. Introducing this Bill is duplicative and risks creating overlapping, conflicting, or politically weaponised legal instruments. Politicisation of Historical Trauma The Bill seeks to re-legislate apartheid as a crime in a context where apartheid has already been constitutionally dismantled and condemned. Instead of promoting reconciliation and forward-looking governance, this Bill risks reopening wounds and entrenching division for political gain. Threat to Legal Certainty The vague scope of "implementation" could allow arbitrary prosecutions or selective enforcement. Such ambiguity undermines the principle of legality, which requires laws to be clear, predictable, and non-retroactive. Misallocation of Resources South Africa faces urgent challenges — unemployment, infrastructure collapse, energy insecurity, corruption, and crime. Diverting legislative and judicial resources to symbolic, redundant measures is irresponsible and distracts from pressing governance priorities. International Posturing vs Domestic Needs The Bill appears designed to signal compliance with international conventions rather than address genuine domestic gaps. South Africa should prioritise laws that directly improve citizens' lives, not engage in perform	Rob	Gauteng		business owner

Instead of appointing people with the qualifications to boost our country they introduced racial (apartheid) laws that killed every state-owned business. So if they will start prosecuting themselves first than I will support something like this. But as it stands at this time it is the biggest perpetrator crating a mask it can hide behind. I voted against racial laws and for fairness just to be trapped in a system of reversed "apartheid" which by the way is not justice it is only the same thing just dressed in a different dress. The law seeks to punish those that support Israel or anyone else that can vaguely be seen as an "Apartheid" state. The war going on, has absolutely nothing to do with South Africans! It is half way around the world and, personally, I could not care less about who is right and who is wrong. It has nothing to do with me. Yet, this bill seeks to punish me for speaking out for one side, if I ever chose to do so. This is idiotic! Apartheid is dead in this country. It has been for over 30 years. This bill is not for South Africans. Why then should it be made into law, here in South Africa? If the South African government truly seeks to rid the world of human rights violations, then maybe it would be time and money better spent, fixing them right here in South Africa. In Gaza, the Palestinians have been ruling themselves, after the Israelites we removed from there, until 7 October 2023 when Hamas brutally attacked innocent civilians in Israel. Some were police force and military, but most were innocent civilians enjoying a concert. Those that support Hamas, must take a look at the videos that they took of themselves cutting off woman breasts of Israelites and playing soccer with them. I ask you. "is this what you believe in and support?" Yes, I do support Israel as a Christian who understands that they are the chosen nation of Our Lord and therefore He will fight their battles when they can't. It seems such a politically motivated move. Apartheid was 30 years ago. Why would anyone want to bring up the past at this stage, antagonizing and polarizing people again, instead of focusing on positives and building up the nation. Its all politically motivated and sinister. And a deflection of the ANC's dismal performance, corrupt beyond belief and could be accused of crimes against humanity with all the political assassinations, officials/the govt robbing the country, never admitting to wrongdoing, acting with impunity while the communities are bleeding unemployment is dangerously high and the people are tried . Witch hunts are evil and should not be supported. Israel's place in the world is clear to the enlightened. And they are under God's protection. Beware those who mess with Gods people. 	2025-12-05 08:52:27	No I do not	Other	I strongly oppose the Private Member's Bill seeking to domesticate the 1973 UN Apartheid Convention into South African law. The Bill is deeply flawed in both purpose and effect. South Africa already recognises apartheid as a crime against humanity under the Rome Statute Act, making this Bill redundant at a time when Parliament should focus on urgent domestic issues such as unemployment, service delivery, energy security, and crime. Duplicating existing law does not serve the public interest. The Bill's broad definitions and extraterritorial reach raise serious constitutional concerns. Criminal laws must be clear and precise, yet public claims that anyone who "supports Israel" could be "automatically" charged show how easily this Bill could undermine legal certainty and due process. By targeting a specific foreign nation and potentially criminalising South Africans for their political views or associations, the Bill risks weaponising human rights law for geopolitical purposes. Human rights protections must be applied impartially, not used to pursue particular political causes. Practical enforcement of extraterritorial crimes is also unrealistic and would likely result in symbolic actions that damage the credibility of our legal system. The Bill could further fuel public division and threaten rights to freedom of religion, association, and equality. Would citizens with family in Israel be criminalised simply for their personal connections? I oppose all forms of discrimination and racism, but this Bill does nothing to advance human rights meaningfully. Parliament should instead direct its efforts toward pressing national priorities such as education, healthcare, and anti-corruption. For these reasons, I urge Parliament to reject the Bill. The Current South African government and Presidnt continues to make claims and acussations that on the face of it seem to parrot the ramblings of certain nations and a Religious group in oposition to Israel and what it stands for. South Africa already criminalises apartheid under the Implementation of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court Act, 2002. Creating a new standalone offence with broad and extraterritorial definitions is duplicative, introduces legal uncertainty, and risks selective enforcement (given the NDPP-consent gatekeeping). Rather than broaden definitions, Parliament should strengthen enforcement under existing frameworks and avoid provisions that could chill lawful speech and association. 	2025-12-05 10:39:48	No I do not	Other	Apartheid is an ideology. So is communism, anti Semitism, Nazism, Fascism, and so forth. In the eyes of the benefactor his or her ideology will always be the right one. In a "democracy" I would think everyone has the right to his or her own opinion, thinking and ideology - as long as I don't enforce my ideology on other citizens not mindlike to myself. Which, coincidentally seems to be the goal of these so-called "righteous" ones in this case. And even if Israel is practicing "apartheid", my support to them is not because of their policies, but because of a fascist, radical vendetta by another fixated people, hellbent on a desired wholesome eradication of an entire nation, racial hatred and unprovoked brutal, murderous attacks on Israeli innocents, all under the disguise of sovereignty. 	2025-12-05 10:30:59	No I do not	Other	I do not support the proposed implementation of this bill for the following reasons: 1. The bill duplicates the Implementation of the Rome Statute Act (2002), which already criminalizes apartheid as a crime against humanity, making a standalone law unnecessary. 2. Definitions like "crime of Apartheid", "Apartheid policies" and "Apartheid state" are vague and risks subjective application to minor discriminatory acts. 3. The broad scope of this bill may negatively impact free speech, enable political targeting or even suppress dissent under human rights pretexts. 4. Prosecuting acts abroad or non-residents strains resources (which we don't have), complicates evidence and may cause diplomatic conflicts without clear benefits to South Africa. 5. Requiring NDPP consent and ministerial court designations risks executive interference, undermining judicial independence. 6. Advisory committee and UN reporting add unnecessary layers and therefore divert focus from effective enforcement via existing ICC mechanisms. I hereby reject the bill to avoid weakening South Africa's existing human rights framework.	Dylan

"Apartheid" used to mean "Separate Cultural Development" which was intended to preserve the different South African Cultures. 	2025-12-05 10:14:43	No I do not	Other	There is no apartheid in Israel and Jew Haters are trying to control this narrative it is an insult to what occurred in South Africa , and this has been weaponised internationally by the anti semitic individuals and groups. Israel is by no means an apartheid state, it is a pure democracy. More so than South Africa who has (Sick) race based legislation. The ignorance , hypocrisy, hatred and bigotry going on in this country undermines the very principles of our constitution. Proposed law such as this makes this country worse than oppressive countries like Iran, Afganistan and many others similar. If this party had its way we would have Sharia Law and the supposed backers of this bill should be aware of the risks of siding with violent extremists. NO NO NO to this proposed bill	Jem

				I am very worried about this Bill. CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUES: THIS BILL IS NOT WELL-INTENTIONED: and it can easily be used in a harmful, discriminatory, unconstitutional way against South African citizens. THIS BILL LIMITS IMPORTANT FREEDOMS: the freedom to think, the freedom to speak, and the freedom to believe. The wording is vague and unclear, so people can interpret it in many ways. Because of this; WEAPONISING LAWS: THIS BILL CAN BE USED TO PUNISH PEOPLE UNFAIRLY AND TO STOP OPEN DISCUSSION: This is like what the Apartheid government did when it tried to silence people who disagreed with it. South Africa already has strong human-rights laws. We also have a clear role in international courts, which are the correct place to deal with international problems. We do not need a new Bill for this. THIS BILL IS DANGEROUS: It uses a real international issue as an excuse to start a “witch hunt” against South Africans whose opinions are different from those of Al-Jama-ah or the political leaders in power. This is frightening. This is how oppressive governments behave. POLITICAL MOTIVATION: THIS BILL WOULD SEND TAXPAYER MONEY OUTSIDE THE COUNTRY FOR SOMETHING WE CANNOT EVEN ENFORCE: South Africa has many serious problems right now. We should not waste money on trying to solve global issues when our own country needs urgent help. This takes money away from basic services and from improving the lives of South Africans. We cannot afford that. It is neglect, and it opens the door to more corruption. This shows that the real aim may be to target South Africans who think differently, not to address international issues. Radical Islamists in South Africa and around the world are using their democratic power to weaponize the global politics against Israel and the Jews. Israel is the only country in the Middle East where there are perfect harmony and coexistence of White people, Black people, Jews, Arabs, Christians, Muslims, homosexuals, free elections, democratic systems

Furthermore, the convention's broad and vague definition of apartheid as a crime against humanity risks political misuse, overreach into freedom of expression or association, or unnecessary entanglement in international disputes, given its historical politicization during the Cold War era and limited ratification by Western nations. Implementing it would also cause constitutional challenges due to infringement on existing legal frameworks and sovereignty, especially since apartheid is already criminalized under the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court, to which South Africa is a party. 	2025-12-05 14:19:53	No I do not	Other	I respectfully oppose the introduction of this Bill for the following reasons: South Africa's Constitution is founded on neutrality, equality before the law, freedom of conscience, and protection from political persecution. Criminal legislation must remain objective and free of ideological bias. This Bill risks importing a highly contested foreign geopolitical conflict into South African domestic law, transforming our courts into ideological tools rather than impartial dispensers of justice. The criminal law must remain focused on proven individual wrongdoing — not political determinations or collective judgments tied to nationality, association, or religious belief. The Bill further risks infringing on constitutionally protected freedoms, including: • Freedom of religion and conscience (Section 15) • Freedom of expression (Section 16) • Equality before the law (Section 9) South African citizens must not be criminalized or threatened for their beliefs, speech, advocacy, trade, or religious convictions regarding overseas political events. Our nation must be a promoter of peace and reconciliation — not a participant in imported international ideological conflicts that deepen division within our society. I therefore urge Parliament to reject this Bill or subject it to substantial constitutional review to ensure that South Africa remains committed to: • The rule of law • Equality for all people • Peaceful coexistence • Freedom of belief and expression	R	Gauteng		self-employed

It also appears deeply racist, and seeks to legitimize persecution. It infringes on our rights to freedom of expression and choice. Freedom of belief, conscience, and opinion is protected under the Constitution. It risks being abused to control, pressure or intimidated people into aligning with a specific narrative out of fear of legal consequences. It can be used as a political tool open to selective enforcement, and to supress alternative views. It promotes silencing free expression, promoting one-sided political positions, and enabling ideological prosecution. No South African should face imprisonment or criminal consequences simply for stating support for Israel or holding a different view of the conflict. 	2025-12-06 10:29:31	No I do not	Other	I hereby register my outright rejection of the proposed Apartheid Bill currently before Parliament. Reasons for Rejection: 1. Redundancy: Apartheid is already outlawed under South Africa's Constitution and Bill of Rights. This bill adds no new protections for citizens and merely duplicates existing legal safeguards. 2. Misallocation of Resources: South Africa faces urgent crises—unemployment, poverty, collapsing infrastructure, energy insecurity, and failing service delivery. Legislative time and taxpayer funds should be directed toward solving these pressing issues, not symbolic measures. 3. Potential Overreach: The bill's broad scope risks expanding state powers unnecessarily, creating avenues for political misuse rather than protecting citizens. 4. Public Priorities Ignored: Citizens overwhelmingly demand action on jobs, education, healthcare, and safety. This bill does not address these priorities and instead diverts attention from them. Parliament must reject this bill outright and redirect its focus toward legislation that delivers tangible improvements in the daily lives of South Africans. Symbolic gestures cannot substitute for real governance. In conclusion: This bill is unnecessary, wasteful, and distracts from the urgent work required to rebuild our nation. I strongly urge Parliament to vote against it and to prioritise meaningful reforms that address the real challenges facing South Africa today.	Jade	Western Cape		employed individual

Since the days of Muhammad 570 – 8 June 632 CE was an Arab religious, military and political leader known for murdering people and even marrying a young child. Muslims wanted to take over the world. Allah is Satan by Usama Dakdok: Qur'an 1:1 states that Allah is the god (lord) of this world: 1. The praise be to Allah, the lord of the worlds. Allah is Satan as it is written throughout the Qur'an. The Bible states in 2 Corinthians 4:4 that the god of this world is Satan: In whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them. Both verses in Qur'an 3:54 and 8:30 state that Allah is the best deceiver . And they deceived, and Allah deceived. And Allah is the best deceiver. What does the Bible say about this? 	2025-12-06 14:30:31	No I do not	Other	I do not agree with demonizing Israel over a so-called genocide. The facts are simple, the previous cease-fire between Israel and Palestine ended on the 6th 2023 and instead of renewing the cease-fire and potentially renegotiating more favorable terms Hamas chose to invade and commit a real genocide as defined as "The deliberate and systematic destruction of a national, ethnical, racial, or religious group" To put it simply, they wanted to cause as much damage and bloodshed against the Jewish people based on their religion (As admitted by the Hamas leadership) Israel has done everything in its power to minimize Civilian casualties by sending warnings to the people of Gaza through text-messages and airdropping warning fliers revealing the location, time and date of planned bombing. Hamas went out of their way to prevent the Palestinian from safely evacuating to maximize Civilian casualties to use as a weapon against Israel by misrepresenting facts to the rest of the world while hiding the fact that they broke several international laws such as training child soldiers and hiding underneath schools and medical facilities. Before the war begun Israel was actively trying to renew the cease-fire to no success as Hamas chose to start a war and take hostages. Israel had one main condition to end the war and that was the release of hostages which Hamas rejected for years until finally accepting a ceasefire under US intervention. Palestine did not suffer any Apartheid-like treatment before the war with Israel allowing them into their country after a vetting process and even allowed Palestinian civilians to immigrate into Israel and work and study. Travel, tourism, trade, purchase of goods, pilgrimage, charitable contribution, statements of opinion that are positive toward them in some way???? where does it stop? Seems like a good way to take out all your political opponents too. Just on their political policies you could charge them with "support of apartheid", jail them and remove all actual democracy. Providing the multitude of inept and corrupt politicians and policeman with the leverage of a warped pseudo legal framework to target & extort specific population groups is just an extremely dangerous, cynical and disgusting power / money grabbing exercise by people who have no real interest in serving South Africans in a truly non racial and democratic manner. No politician at any level should be allowed to propose or vote on any legislation until such time as their departments or portfolios show a clean audit. If they cant handle the responsibility that they are sworn to manage on behalf of ALL SA citizens then allowing them make policy and legal amendments that cant and wont positively impact social cohesion is plain stupidity. Lets rather change the law such that any civil servant found guilty of a crime shall for betraying the public trust receive a sentence 3 X that which a normal citizen would receive and that they shall in all cases be liable for their own legal expenses. Enough with all the back channel handouts from Russians (Dictatorship) Chinese (One party state) , Iranians (Theocratic Dictatorship) and fundamentalist Islamic actors all because western states & companies are not willing to bow to ANC extortion to hand over very large chunks of their ownership and IP to proven inept cadres. It is beyond hypocritical and morally bankrupt for the proposer and supporting parties to be proposing anything that will SUPPOSEDLY, but won't, benefit the real citizens of SA who are slogging away every day under the burdens that the ANC, MK and the like have wrought upon us . Responsibility and accountability. NOW. Let Mr Ismael-Moosa get off of his "International Moral"' high horse and explain to South Africans what REAL benefits will flow to SA citizens. Whilst apartheid was a failed system, the current regime continues relentlessly to administer it's reverse apartheid against minorities, unapposed by any UN or worldly sanctions. The audacity of the current dictatorship, to continue in its persecution of the children and grandchildren of the previous regime is absolutely disgraceful. The ANC false slogan of "unity through diversity", is just as much a lie as their continued obsession with extortion of world supporters for their own gain. Africa does not belong to anybody, race, colour or creed. The inhabitants of the land are always temporary, people die! There is no possession or inheritance, merely current inhabitants. 				The primary motivation is Islamic activism aimed at attacking Israel and anyone here is South Africa who expresses support for Israel. All the other concerns are part and parcel of this underlying abuse of law. This proposed law will will also further undermine he economic support of the US, our biggest trading partner, and Europe. So much for our supposed "non-aligned" economic status. All that will be left to our nation will be to become very aligned lackeys of pariah autocratic states. The ANC is also motivated by false pride that refuses to admit the foolishness of their IEC court blunder in taking sides with Islamic fundamentalism and allegedly accepting bribes from Iran to embark on the IEC nonsense by supporting the the aggressor Hamas against the victim Israel. All this because the ANC had once again run out of money to pay their debts, their perennial self inflicted wound. They also sought to erode DA support in the Western Cape province so that the could gain votes. This too was a dismal failure because ANC support continued to fall and the DA remained in power. The EFF and MK are mere dupes of the Islamic vitriol. The mere mention of the word "Apartheid" draws their blind and unthinking support. So they are quick to pull out the old race card in the hope of shoring up their support. This proposed law crosses ethical boundaries by defining anyone in South Africa who disagrees with the ANC's stance in favour of Islam's attack on Israel as Apartheid criminals. This is nothing less than an attempt to outlaw free speech. Moreover also attacks both the Jewish and Christian believers by gagging them from expressing their belief. Of course, this is in lockstep with Marxist doctrine that seeks to seize all the levers of power in South Africa. Free speech in a democracy and Christian moral and ethical standards are the biggest obstacles to despotic control. So any law that undermines Christian standards is just what autocratic governments thirst for.

	2025-12-08 01:40:38	No I do not	Other	Israel has Arabs and Jews living side by side without laws such as job reservation, it is not an apartheid State. Both Arabs and Jews are able to work and live side by side. Many Arabs serve alcohol aside Jews in the IDF. Arab judges pass sentences over Jews in Israelite courts. Arabs have real power and vote as equal citizens. The whole idea that Israel is an apartheid State is absurd and not based on fact. Israel was famously re-established as the national homeland of the Jewish people by the UN, based upon the well documented and extensive evidence of the historical claim of Jews, and its identity is therefore as a place of refuge for any Jews who seek to return to the land of their ancestors both figuratively and literally. Many Israelis are indigenous people. The fact that many immigrated to Israel does not undermine their claim to the land. This Bill is a distortion of that reality. It should be rejected as a political stunt. South Africa should focus its attention on regional African issues where it can make a genuine contribution to resolving conflict and reducing foreign intervention. 	2025-12-08 14:51:00	No I do not	Other	The proposed “Apartheid Bill” raises serious red flags. SA already criminalises apartheid under the Rome Statute Act, so creating a second, broader version risks duplicating the law and creating constitutional conflicts. Its vague, expanded definitions and extraterritorial reach could make it almost impossible to enforce, tying up courts in political cases that have no realistic chance of prosecution. The Bill also blurs the line between foreign-policy activism and domestic criminal law. Using SA courts to prosecute people for actions abroad — especially when aimed at one international conflict — could undermine legal certainty, invite diplomatic fallout, and drain resources from real justice priorities at home. Whatever one’s views on global issues, criminal law must be clear, enforceable, and neutral. This Bill doesn’t meet that standard.	Ursula	Gauteng		business owner
	2025-12-08 14:48:57	No I do not	Other	Aside from the assumed intention, as stated by "Dear South Africa", my concern is that it may be used to dig up old coals domestically. If it thus used or abused, it opens any South African who has lived through the apartheid era to prosecution for not openly supporting the Anti-apartheid movement in South Africa. For example, any former member of the SAP or SADF that was deployed to quell the violence that began in June 1976 and continued through to 1994, and did not refuse to do so, may be liable for prosecution in retrospect, depending on the wording of the bill. Bah!! to the Muslims (2% of the SA population), bah!! to anyone who supports this bullshit, and once again waste time, tax payer money and resources. Islamic law does not override the constitution of freedom of speech. The resources, which is tax payers money is being utilised to fight the war of Israel and Gaza and should instead be used for the needs of the poorest of the poor in SA There are wealthy muslim countries that are neighbours to the warring countries and they should take up this cause of restoring peace. SA does not seem to have familiarised themselves with real history of Israel and Gaza. This war has nothing to do with apartheid and there is no proof of genocide from Israel. Deaths are from war. SA has more murders daily than some war torn countries. Al Jamah should reach out to the Islamic countries for assistance for their personal agenda and not introduce bills to infringe on the freedom of South Africans. They dont investigate and are not impartial to the TRUTH. There are more news available to ordinary south africans which they dont think we see and know and constantly on social media South Africans who are Christians are voicing they dont support Terrorists, using the name Palestine, even Palestinians want the Terrorists out of their country and we stand by and watch these people be punished and used by Terrorists for their own Agenda. These Terrorists in that country starved the Palestinians hoarding and selling the FREE FOOD AND SUPPLIES GIVEN BY ISRAEL AND AMERICA TO PALESTINIANS. We are all concerned that GOVERNMENT IS BLIND, and concerned that we side with Terrorists using Religion as a disguise and use racism or discrimination to get South African to jump on the band wagon, because we easily manipulated and can be bought over by countries that we should not have dealings with, also opening up our country to these Terrorists puts all South Africans FREEDOMS IN RELIGION in jeopardy like the REST OF AFRICA, where Christians are actually been persecuted by these Islamic Terrorists, and they turn a blind eye to those people who has come to this country to flee that TYRANNY and TRAUMA of rape, theft of properties and land. 	2025-12-09 13:13:04	No I do not	Other	This bill will be unenforceable against all but the least important players, with no hope of influencing the broader policies or happenings in a region. Regardless of the reasoning for this bill, the logical conclusion is that it would require the prosecution to investigate crimes that occur outside of South African jurisdiction. If the foreign government is unwilling to cooperate (which is all but guaranteed in Israel's case, the target country of this bill), then it would doom this bill to be toothless and needlessly antagonistic in South Africa's foreign policy, given that existing laws already cover the crime that this bill focuses on. Refer the international crimes against humanity to the International Criminial Court, toothless as that might be even here in South Africa, based on the case of Omar Al-Bashir. 	2025-12-09 11:47:46	No I do not	Other	This Bill is in support of Islamist's strategy to eliminate the State of Israel. The myth of Israel being an apartheid state is false and created to eliminate their right to exist. The Islamic countries have expelled many Jews who moved to Israel for their survival. Now Islamists are determined to destroy the only state where Jews may safely live alongside others. Islamists have conducted wars, terror, assassinations, kidnapping, and other nefarious acts against Israel for decades. The covenant of Hamas, one of the Islamist fronts expresses its intentions clearly: https://avalon.law.yale.edu/20th_century/hamas.asp. 	2025-12-09 11:30:56	No I do not	Other	This is a very interesting one to comment on. Apartheid was a set of laws legislating racial injustice. Period. Anything else is not apartheid. Having cleared that. This law is politically motivated, extremely vague, and calls the whole country to abide by the view of a few. Sounds actually a lot like apartheid itself. It is interesting that we do not put forward a genocide law, as I can see how that may actually implicate terrorists like Hamas. South Africa keeps commenting that people must stay out of South Africa's business, I suggest we should do the same. Israel, as in what is currently know as the country was ratified and given to the Jewish nation after the atrocities of WW2. The atrocities they suffered that were pretty much on par with Apartheid. They have since given away almost 80% of the land they were given, to appease the Muslim nations around them. And still when they defend themselves, we try to be high and mighty. Both Israel and Hamas could have done a lot different. History will judge us. The degradation of our people and our country due to the actions of our leaders will judge us. If the state wants to be totalitarian, it must expect the revolt that will come and the total destruction of our nation. If we do not temper our emotive responses to the external, South Africa will destroy itself. We need to stop being like the US, we cannot get involved with other countries wars based on half fact and emotions. The current war in the middle East started when Gaza (Hamas) attacked Israel. If that had not happened there would not have been a war. This is 100% fact and uncontestable.	Justin	KwaZulu-Natal		employed individual
	2025-12-09 11:30:16	No I do not	Other	This is an attack on freedom of conscience, belief, and expression and is a denial of reality. I have been to Israel, and it is far from an Apartheid State. There were Israeli citizens of all backgrounds and ethnicities moving freely within the nation. The only apartheid I witnessed was against Israeli Jews, who are not permitted to go into certain areas by law. Our Jewish tour guide had to wait for us to exit these areas before resuming his duties. I also have to ask, why is it always environmentalists, communists/ socialists, and political organisations that happen to be Islamic (not necessarily speaking for and representing all Muslims), always working together against those of conservative, Judeo-Christian values? I am a Christian and interpret the Bible according to the Literal-Grammatical-Historical Hermeneutic (method of interpretation). I, by my faith, am required by the only true and living God to support Israel. If this bill passes, I will become a criminal if I show any act of support toward the nation of Israel. What are you going to do to the churches and individual Christians, charities and organisations, etc, that support Israel? Are you going to force us to conform against our will/ban us from living in South African society, and move us all into prison? You are touching the chosen people of God, Gen. 12:3, and you will destroy South Africa by these actions. I challenge every author of this new bill to visit Israel and observe for themselves that it is NOT an apartheid state. Furthermore, I do not want to live in an Islamized South Africa. I want to be free to worship according to my conscience, and so do millions of other Christians in this nation. While not speaking for or representing all Muslims, it is clear that powerful Islamist forces are interfering in South African affairs. The independent South African media is on to you, and their audience is only growing. I challenge Christians supporting this bill to open their Bible and pray earnestly. 	2025-12-09 15:44:39	No I do not	Other	Resource Drain: Allocating resources will divert from addressing South Africa's soaring domestic crime rates (murder, rape, corruption). Overlap with the Rome Statute: South Africa already has the Implementation of the Rome Statute Act (2002), which criminalises apartheid as a crime against humanity. This new Bill is redundant and risks establishing a duplicate legal regime for the same offence. "Apartheid State" Designation: By formally domesticating the crime of Apartheid as a stand-alone offence, the Bill creates a legal framework to label specific foreign nations as "Apartheid States." This could force the South African government into diplomatic corners, obliging them to arrest visiting dignitaries from those nations, similar to the controversy surrounding the ICC and Omar al-Bashir. We need to focus on legislation that is conducive to setting an example and resolving our own national issues of poverty, crime and GBV among others, before getting embroiled in matters where our reach goes beyond our grasp. 	2025-12-09 23:48:10	No I do not	Other	Several concerns. 1. There are already the Rome Statute to which SA is a signatory, and the 1973 UN Apartheid Resolution, which SA only acceded to in 2024. Both of which cover the wrongs of apartheid and the goal + implementation of suppressing and eradicating it. With the most generous-spirited interpretation, this new bill is redundant, and amounts to political performance art. 2. The vague and broad bill has the potential for dangerous misuse, including limitations on the freedom of speech and association that South Africans currently enjoy and value. Given the focus on Israel, it is particularly dangerous for South African Jews. 3. Anyone with an ounce of brain can see this is an attack on Israel, and on Jews. Re Israel: While the status of the West Bank military occupation can be debated, Gaza has not been "occupied" since 2006! Neither area is annexed by Israel, and thus neither is part of Israel. All Israeli citizens - Jewish, Muslim, Christian, Arab, Druze, etc - have equal rights - there is no "apartheid"! Re Jews: beware of allowing anti-semitism to flourish. Because what starts with Jews never ends there. Who will stand for/ with you when the bigots & haters come for you and yours? 4. Anyone who sincerely cares about the Palestinian people needs to focus on ridding them of the brutality of Hamas rule, and help moderate-minded Paleatinian leadership voices to flourish in Gaza and in the West Bank so that they can focus on building their own state. Stop using the people as a political plaything!	Belinda

Afgesien daarvan, politieke standpunt, is dat SA se regering enigiets sal doen om by die UN ingesluit te word ongeag wat in hul eie land aangaan. Apartheid is lank al nie meer van toepassing in SA nie, maar 'n hou-vas aan die verlede, en geen doel om vorentoe te beweeg nie. Minderheidsgroepe word daagliks aangeval maar tog sal ons verskoning-van-'n-president nie eers dit erken nie. Wat het werklik in die laaste 30 jaar gebeur om so die "previously disadvantaged" te bevorder? Ons eie president praat dit weg en die "hou vas" is 'n daaglikse verskynsel; terwyl die mense hieronder (ongeag ras of kultuur) sukkel om vir ons mense te voorsien. Dalk moet hulle (die goewerment) werk daarvan maak om alle Suid Afrikaners te bevorder, eerder as kommentaar lewer op dinge waarvan hulle eintlik geen benul het nie. Ek voorsien nie eers 'n toekoms in die land, sou ek besluit om 'n kleintjie in die wêreld in te bring nie. En ja, president is doelbewus met klein letters geskryf, want ek voel nie dat hy die voorreg verdien van 'n ware "President" nie.	Lana	Western Cape		employed individual

I grew up in South Africa and fled the Apartheid regime in 1978. As a Jew I retuned to the Jewish homeland - Israel and am now a citizen of Israel. Having experienced both the apartheid regime and the reality of life in Israel I can categorically vouch for the simple fact that Israel may have many problems, but Apartheid is not one of them. Israel's declaration of Independence, a document which the courts have given constitutional status , states "THE STATE OF ISRAEL will be open for Jewish immigration and for the Ingathering of the Exiles; it will foster the development of the country for the benefit of all its inhabitants; it will be based on freedom, justice and peace as envisaged by the prophets of Israel; it will ensure complete equality of social and political rights to all its inhabitants irrespective of religion, race or sex; it will guarantee freedom of religion, conscience, language, education and culture; it will safeguard the Holy Places of all religions; and it will be faithful to the principles of the Charter of the United Nations". I remember segregated parks in Senderwood South Africa, in which non-whites were not allowed to play. In the municipal parks of Kochav Yair, a mainly Jewish town, Arab children from our neighboring town Tira play alongside the children of Kochav Yair. If one needs medical attention in Israel, there is no segregation. Our local Meir hospital serves a mixed area. An Arab from Tira and a Jew from Kfar Saba may be placed in the same maternity room after giving birth. The medical staff are made up of Arab doctors , nurses and orderlies who work alongside their Jewish colleagues. They are all equal Israeli citizens with equal voting rights. I invite the sponsors of this draft Apartheid Bill to make a fact finding tour of Israel. They may find many problems but they will not find Apartheid.	Jonathan			employed individual

	2025-12-10 14:47:19	No I do not	Other	My wife and I are Christians. I am a Pastor and we have our own ministry. The proposer appears to be a islamic organisation, obviously opposed to the state of Israel. We support Biblical prophesy with regard to israel and do not support the anc abuse of the process of the ICJ with regard to Israel. This proposed legislation is disingenious and operates to persecute Christians and Jews in RSA. We, as born-again Christians believe that we are grafted into the "vine" of Jewish people, God's chosen race. It is an abomination to Christians and Jews alike to have our respective religions brought under the stigma of "apartheid" which was a racial concept, not spiritual. And this by a islamic proposer - in a "private" bill is offensive and persecutorial against us. Ramaphosa is mandated to protect freedom of religion, in terms of the Bill of Rights in the Constitution. Should this be promulgated, that will rise to the level of persecution of Christians and Jews, being citizens of this country, whom he is mandated to protect in terms of the constitution. The anc as the government will then rise to the level of persecutor. Ramaphosa exacerbates existing persecution by the anc against Christians and Jews by allowing the conduct of radical islam in this country: hamas (a terrorist organisation) has a base in Cape Town. Hezbollah is active here, as is al queda and isis. Ramaphosa allows this. These radical organisations have an undisputed history of persecuting Jews and Christians. Ramaphosa is well aware of the activities of "Gift of the Givers", but allows this organisation to provide shelter and subsistence for islamic radicals under the guise of humanitarian relief. Certain if not all of the said oeganisations are known terrorust organisations, which the anc allows knowingly to operate on SA soil. This Bill has nothing to do with RACIAL discrimination. It is brought by islamists and is ultimately a tool of spiritual persecution. I object to it in the strongest of terms.	Guy			retired

	2025-12-10 14:36:00	No I do not	Other	OBJECTION TO THE APARTHEID BILL I condemn apartheid as a crime against humanity. However, I object to this Bill for the following reasons: 1. Legal Redundancy: South Africa already criminalises apartheid under the Rome Statute Act (2002). This Bill duplicates existing law, creating confusion and wasting resources. 2. Constitutional Concerns: The Bill's vague definitions of "support" and "complicity" violate legality principles. Criminalising political opinions infringes Sections 15, 16, 18, and 21 of the Constitution—protecting freedom of religion, expression, association, and movement—creating a chilling effect on lawful speech. 3. Unenforceable: Prosecuting crimes in foreign jurisdictions without cooperation is impossible. The Al-Bashir case demonstrated South Africa's inability to navigate such situations. The law would be purely symbolic, diminishing our courts' credibility. 4. Lawfare, Not Justice: The sponsor stated this Bill targets Israel and its supporters. Legislation should be general and principled—not weaponised against specific nations. The selective focus (ignoring Uyghurs, Myanmar, etc.) reveals political motivation, not human rights commitment. 5. Resource Diversion: South Africa faces severe domestic crime. Diverting prosecutorial resources to unenforceable international cases abandons South Africans suffering from murder, rape, and corruption. 6. Social Harm: The Bill stigmatises Jewish and Christian communities with ties to Israel, undermining social cohesion and non-racialism. 7. Better Alternatives Exist: Strengthen the Rome Statute Act, focus on domestic reform, pursue diplomatic solutions through the UN and ICJ. I urge the Committee to reject this Bill or refer it for constitutional review. We honour apartheid's victims through principled justice—not politicised, redundant legislation. 				OBJECTION TO THE APARTHEID BILL I condemn apartheid as a crime against humanity. However, I object to this Bill for the following reasons: 1. Legal Redundancy: South Africa already criminalises apartheid under the Rome Statute Act (2002). This Bill duplicates existing law, creating confusion and wasting resources. 2. Constitutional Concerns: The Bill's vague definitions of "support" and "complicity" violate legality principles. Criminalising political opinions infringes Sections 15, 16, 18, and 21 of the Constitution—protecting freedom of religion, expression, association, and movement—creating a chilling effect on lawful speech. 3. Unenforceable: Prosecuting crimes in foreign jurisdictions without cooperation is impossible. The Al-Bashir case demonstrated South Africa's inability to navigate such situations. The law would be purely symbolic, diminishing our courts' credibility. 4. Lawfare, Not Justice: The sponsor stated this Bill targets Israel and its supporters. Legislation should be general and principled—not weaponised against specific nations. The selective focus (ignoring Uyghurs, Myanmar, etc.) reveals political motivation, not human rights commitment. 5. Resource Diversion: South Africa faces severe domestic crime. Diverting prosecutorial resources to unenforceable international cases abandons South Africans suffering from murder, rape, and corruption. 6. Social Harm: The Bill stigmatises Jewish and Christian communities with ties to Israel, undermining social cohesion and non-racialism. 7. Better Alternatives Exist: Strengthen the Rome Statute Act, focus on domestic reform, pursue diplomatic solutions through the UN and ICJ. I urge the Committee to reject this Bill or refer it for constitutional review. We honour apartheid's victims through principled justice—not politicised, redundant legislation.

Israel was, en is steeds onder "attack" deur 'n terroriste organisasie (terreur groep) HAMAS, wat NIE verteenwoordigend is van alle Palistyne in GAZA nie. Hulle skuil agter skole, hospitale en onskuldige inwoners om hulle terreurdade uit te voer. En daar is genoeg bewyse hiervan maar die vyande van Israel sluit hulle oë vir die waarheid en die bewyse wat beskikbaar is. 	2025-12-10 16:36:11	No I do not	Other	The Palestine question is a long standing complex issue and the proposed law does not contribute to a solution. The political parties proposing this legislation should know from our own history that a two state solution is not a viable option. The South African solution was one of negotiation and compromise and although not perfect it has worked; we are not killing each other. I suggest the political parties go to Palestine and persuade them to negotiate and compromise. They must realise by now that Israel is not going to roll over and die; that political objective is dead. It is remarkable how quickly people that work together for a common objective can form a coherent productive society. South African people miss out because politics in South Africa has been mostly negative and punitive and this legislation is just another example.	Robin	Western Cape		retired

The Gaza-Israel conflict was started by Hamas. People, while with a constitution in place are not treated the same in South Africa. Labour law also makes that very clear when applying to universities or in the work sector. The effect of wasted resources is not only to steal from vulnerable people and taxpayers but will also lead to sanctions and in such a way that South Africa will be destroyed financially. South Africa has a lot to sort out inside South Africa. Act for your own people. Sort out crime, employ more capable, officially trained and hardworking, honest police officers with integrity to fight crime. Get inflation down, wonderful, but what about unemployment. With sanctions, the unemployment will be even worse. Spend your time on the future generations and get better teachers, schooling and tertiary training where people are motivated to think for themselves and to solve problems. 	2025-12-10 19:41:56	No I do not	Other	Ne ramenez pas l’Afrique du Sud à l’Apartheid. En vertu du Suppression of Communism Act de 1950 et du Internal Security Act de 1982, le gouvernement blanc minoritaire plaçait des personnes sous « interdiction ». Ces ordres les exilaient dans leur propre pays. Ils formaient un pilier central du système d’Apartheid. Le projet de loi proposé par le parti Al Jamah-ah reprend ces mesures. Il vise des Sud-Africains en fonction de leur religion, de leur citoyenneté et de leurs liens avec des personnes à l’étranger. Il punit même les visites à des membres de leur famille dans un autre pays. En pratique, ce projet de loi impose des restrictions plus sévères que celles de l’époque de l’Apartheid. La lutte contre l’Apartheid s’est déroulée dans un passé encore récent. Si cette victoire a le moindre sens, les Sud-Africains de bonne conscience doivent rejeter ce projet de loi.	A. K. The entertainment of this party and their right to pass these laws would lead to the Jewish population of South Africa leaving this country, which is leaning so far toward supporting terrorism and is one of the only countries not condemning it. This would in turn lead to violence against Christianity and the end result would be a Muslim country. If that is what South African people want then we will have to accept that but it seems a lot of Christian people think they are safe from this sort of law. 	2025-12-11 04:37:49	No I do not	Other	Israel is not an apartheid state, it is a democracy with a parliament which includes elected non Jewish Palestinian citizens. The 2 million Israeli Palestinian citizens would also be affected by this Bill . Suggest - Consult with the Israeli Palestinians on the ground, and with the Pallestinians working with Israelis groups (about 30+ civil society groups) on how South Africa can assist in progressing a just peace, and for support for excluding the extremists from both sides. Nelson Mandela was a great supporter of Israel being formed in the decolonisation process that gave back controll of all countries in the region to the peoples who lived there (but was oposed to Israel retaining Gaza and the west bank after taking them in war). It was unfortunate that sections of the regions Arabs refused an independent country on half of the 1948 settlement, and caused the tragedy of the Nakbah, and the subsequent ongoing violent attempts to destroy the Israeli State. Chicken or the egg regarding who , but the violence there breeds continuing violence, and it is the extremists on both sides that need 'Boycotting', not the country as a whole	John			retired

Giving power to target a group of citizens within South Africa IS APARTHEID. 3. The behaviour of citizens in relation to an external country is NOT the concern of the South African government, unless it challenges the safety and security of SA citizens. 4. The power of the bill over-reaches and perverts the right of citizens to privacy. 5. 	2025-12-11 01:26:45	No I do not	Other	It is a pity that one can only choose one reason from the drop-down menu. This weaponises a law meant to act against states, and intends to use it against this country's own citizens. Secondly, it is wholly unconstitutional, as it: a. does not allow for any dissenting opinion, which turns SA into a totalitarian state. b. goes against the rights of certain citizens, i.e. Jews, to practice their culture and religions (a right enshrined in our constitution) c. allows for government overreach as it leaves it open to interpreting what constitutes support of the target state, i.e. Israel. Do Christians who want to travel to Jerusalem get arrested upon their return because it could be considered supportive of Israel's economy to travel there? It is also trying to use South Africa's internal legal system for lawfare, when international vehicles exist. Which makes it seem like Al Jamaha , EFF, ANC and other supporting parties are simply trying to ethnically cleanse South Africa of a minority group. In order to enact the bill, the onus would be on South Africa to prove that any other sovereign nation is, in fact, an apartheid state. This would require another ICJ court case to examine another country's laws and get a ruling, which could take years. This would require resources we do not have. Plus, it's just stupid. Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa must suffer from both arrogance and low intelligence to think this bill is not patently transparent to anyone with three brain cells.	Rach

	2025-12-11 07:45:18	No I do not	Other	South Africa is a love and peace country that negotiate her own struggles and challenges. We support peace treaties and do not condone war. Why should we have a bill that wants to criminalize rather than a bill that will support peace globally. Do not waste our country resources / tax payers money on something that will not address the economy and reconciliation within the boarders of South Africa. I am against this bill as it forces South Africa to neglect her own challenges and fight for people outside the country. Judicial resources should be used to deal with local challenges rather than those of other countries. Secondly, I am against this bill because, minority of people are forcing majority to champion their cause. Have they stood up against those who are burning churches while these people are raising money in South Africa? Are they boycotting them? Are they matching against churches that are been burnt outside South Africa? Why are they not doing this, rather forcing us to hate others? This is not uBunthu that we are so passionate about. As South African, let us love one another and not criminalize others for their views. Where is the freedom of speech? Do not inject poison into us. We love all others as we love ourselves. Our love for others is not because they do what we want, but because they are created in the image of God and we want all to know Him and to love Him. I will go to an extend of putting this bill on a referendum, to hear what ordinary people are saying. We are currently going through the healing of apartheid and why bring it back. We are driving a reconciliation bus. The Arab countries, of which the majority are Muslims, are signing Abraham Accord with Israel, why is South Africa with less population of Muslims trying to make herself a custodian of the Palestinians? The alarming rates of unemployment which increases the rate of crime in our country. Youth unemployment is alarming and our children are roaming the street ending up engaging in criminal activities. As South Africa let's prioritize our situation and focus our strength in solving challenges we are facing. South Africa first. We need to support other nations fighting for justice but refrain from making their problems ours ignoring the vast majority of the population that is directly affected by crime. We no longer attend the church on Thursdays as mothers because children would come with guns and take our phones, cars and any valuable that we have. Our government is unable to do anything. 	2025-12-11 08:22:10	No I do not	Other	My top concern with this bill is: 1. Policital/racial motivation 2. Constitutional issues 3. Weaponising laws 1. Policital/racial motivatio This laws is politically and racially motivated since it comes from a vocal anti-Israel proponent and is clearly intended to target the Israel-Palistine situation. Our country has enough of our own problems to solve from a crooked government, assasination of whistleblowers, socio-economic issues, too few and disfunctional public schools, to name but a few. We have no scope to be fighting someone elses battles. If Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa is that concerned with the situation in Israel I propose he move there and solve it from the inside. Leave South Africa out of it. 2. Constitutional issues I also believe it to be uncostitutional as I will not be allowed to have my own opinion on matters that happen outside of my country. 3. Weaponising laws I fear that a law like this is dragging South Africa into a war I want no part of. No country should be looking for trouble. Especially one like ours that does not have a functional military of enough money to back our efforts and keep our people safe. Using laws to justify war is seriously immoral and inhumane. No one shouldb e egging on any kind of violence or condoning it. Our country has been struggling to deal with the fallout of Apartheid and the new form of racial discrimination called Black Economic Empowerment. A law like this will only fuel the racial divide that still exists in our country. Instead we must focus on fixing the real life issues like service delivery, corruption, and violent crimes. 	2025-12-11 08:57:37	No I do not	Other	Constitutional issues: All South Africans has in terms of the Constitution the right to freedom of speech, freedom of association & freedom of religion. This is a deliberate attempt to weoponise the constitution against people who needs protection from these abuses. This is similar to the issue relating to the registration of a party who has as its main aim, the Islamist ideals of Sharia law. This is a deliberate & demonic attempt to undermine the constitutional right of citizens by shaping laws & regulations using these exact same constitutional rights. Once these bills have been passed, they remove the constitutional rights of the people & then they have effectively staged a constitutional coup. Politically motivated: It is not a secret that the DIRCO has been captured by the likes of Naledi Pandor and Parks Tau and Ebrahim Rasool and Mr Suliman Imtaaz who has openly associated with known terrorist groups, Iran, Quatar etc. The request is therefore a single sided attempt to continue on the same path as was followed by the ICJ Case to vilify one party at the expense of truth. The evidence is however showing multiple lines of contention including: 1. If there was genocide in GAZA, why has the population increased 10 fold over the last few years despite the genocide; 2. Who shot the first missiles & invaded Israel on 7 October under the flag of an Intifada - From the River to the see. Who bragged about killing, raping, burning, torturing & kidnapping civilians based on the ground of the fact that they lived & worked in Israel - that sounds like genocide. 3. GAZA was not under occupation by Israel - they are under occupation by the PA & Hamas. Hamas is withholding aid from their own people to fund the war, they dig tunnels under schools, hospitals & civilian infrastructure, who goes out to torture & kill any dissenting civilians and Christians, decimating human and constitutional rights of the people. Both sides must be held accountable in the ICJ	Hanli			employed individual

	2025-12-11 09:44:22	No I do not	Other	Israel was birthed precisely because of a people scattered across the face of the earth from their own home, and they were hated and killed just for being a certain race and culture. How is this law any different from what was done to them years ago and through the ages? God brought about mankind, of every tribe, language and nation. Without the Israelites, we would not have a Messiah Who was born, died and rose again, to bring about reconciliation between man and God. HOW can our beautiful country, with such a history of strife and apartheid, and which then birthed the Truth and Reconciliation move, be going backwards by bringing in a law that contradicts that very tenet? There is no place for hatred in Truth and Reconciliation. No place in our beautiful country for hatred which we are all trying so hard to overcome. We've come such a long way from apartheid. Let's worry about our own problems and keep our noses out of other people's business. Everyone will stand before God one day whether Jew or gentile. Let God take care of Israel. 	2025-12-11 12:52:56	No I do not	Other	So as I understand it, 1. If a person supports Israel they must be prosecuted under the apartheid law 2. It then follows that if a person supports Iran or ISIS that person must be prosecuted in the same way as they kill and terrorise non moslem people. It is common knowledge that you are not allowed to have a public gathering to worship God through Christianity in Iran 3. If a person supports Syria they must be persecuted because their current government has apartheid against the Drews people 4. If a person supports any government that has a dictatorial regime it follows that the ruling elite are using apartheid against the people who do not support them and any South African supporting said regime or tribe should be prosecuted under the new apartheid law as proposed. 5. Would it be safe to say you support any government that is non moslem or non any religion. 6. What about supporting Beijing who are doing apartheid against their Moslem citizens in their Western provinces	William	KwaZulu-Natal		self-employed

	2025-12-11 14:41:39	No I do not	Other	Concerns about the Apartheid Bill are that it is largely redundant, since apartheid is already criminalized under existing South African law, and its broad, vague definitions create legal uncertainty that could enable selective or politically motivated prosecutions. The Bill's extraterritorial jurisdiction, may allow South Africa to prosecute foreign nationals for actions committed outside the country, risks diplomatic conflict and may be unenforceable in practice. With the SAPS and NPA already under severe strain, the Bill is impractical to implement, potentially creating expectations the state cannot meet. The Bill reflects misplaced priorities, diverting attention from urgent domestic challenges and posing unnecessary economic and diplomatic risks for South Africa.	Stephen	Gauteng		business owner

And, wisdom, or forethought, or compassion for those who were held hostage and/or killed on 7 October, 2023. 	2025-12-11 16:28:52	No I do not	Other	Scripture warns nations against opposing Israel, promising God's judgment on those who harm His people or divide His land, as seen in Joel 3, where God gathers nations in the Valley of Jehoshaphat for judgment based on their treatment of Israel. Zechariah 12 describes nations attacking Jerusalem only to harm themselves, while God protects Judah, and Ezekiel 38 speaks of an end-times confrontation against Israel, with God intervening. God promises to fight for Israel against enemies but also holds Israel accountable, as shown in Amos 9, where He promises to destroy the sinful kingdom but also restore them. Key Scriptures on Nations Against Israel: Joel 3:1-2: "For I will gather all the nations and bring them down to the Valley of Jehoshaphat. And I will enter into judgment with them there on behalf of my people and my heritage Israel, because they scattered them among the nations and have divided up my land". Zechariah 12:2-3: "Behold, I will make Jerusalem a cup of staggering to all the surrounding peoples... and when all the peoples of the earth go up against her, I will make Jerusalem a heavy stone for all the peoples. All who lift it shall surely hurt themselves". Ezekiel 38:16: "You will come up against my people Israel, like a cloud covering the land. In the latter days it shall come to pass that I will bring you against my land, so that the nations may know me, when I am sanctified in you, O Gog, before their eyes". God's Protection & Judgment: Deuteronomy 20:4: "For the LORD your God is He who goes with you to fight for you against your enemies, to save you". Amos 9:8: "Behold, the eyes of the Lord GOD are on the sinful kingdom, and I will destroy it from the face of the earth" (but also promises restoration).	Harry	Gauteng		retired

	2025-12-11 16:05:20	No I do not	Other	Concerns Regarding the Proposed Bill Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the proposed legislation. I respectfully submit the following concerns for consideration. These points are offered in a neutral, analytical manner, focused on legal, institutional, and diplomatic implications. _____ 1. Risk of Conflating Foreign Policy With Criminal Law The explanatory notes indicate that the bill is partly motivated by global political considerations, including solidarity positions and international conflicts. While these motivations may hold political legitimacy, the use of domestic criminal law to address foreign-policy grievances raises concerns. A legal system functions best when insulated from international political dynamics. Integrating geopolitical disputes into domestic criminal processes may risk: • Politicising prosecutorial decisions, • Undermining institutional neutrality, and • Creating expectations that courts adjudicate matters rooted in foreign conflict rather than domestic criminal behaviour. This would represent a significant shift in how South Africa uses its legal instruments internationally. _____ 2. Potential Diplomatic and Economic Consequences Extending criminal liability extraterritorially to foreign or dual nationals for conduct occurring outside South Africa may generate diplomatic friction. Other states could respond with: • formal diplomatic protests, • reciprocal legislation, • trade or investment consequences, or • legal countermeasures. Such responses could adversely affect South Africa's international standing, economic partnerships, and long-term investment climate. Any legislation with extraterritorial reach must therefore be carefully weighed against possible foreign-policy and economic repercussions. _____ 3. Risk of Overloading the Justice System By enabling complaints based on events occurring anywhere in the world, the bill could open the door to a substantial number of politically sensitive or advocacy-driven submission	Heidi

Al-Jama-ah leader is using this to further his party's politics and using their Muslim beliefs to take away other SA people's right to have free of association and freedom of speech. He is also soliciting other parties and getting them to support his parties beliefs on this - it's absolutely disgusting and infuriating that he and his part y are doing this. South Africa is known for it's Constitution and fair and free freedom of speech and he is effectively trying to silence South Africans just because they don't have the same beliefs and he is also trying to criminalize our freedoms. Have the so-called decision makers not had the subject Economics at school where it is taught that a mixed economy is the best for a country? What a disgrace for the government to take one of the wealthiest countries, SA, on a destruction course and change it into a third world country. That is not somthing to be celebrated, but to be ashamed of. There are more important issues that must be dealt with. 30 children die per day of starvation, yet the government, the smart decision makers, make ridiculous laws, feeding themselves, filling their pockets with money stolen from the tax payers. 	2025-12-11 20:32:44	No I do not	Other	This bill is in the form of a vendetta against a people and a nation, the Jewish people and Israel, and anyone who disagrees with the bill. As a believer in Jesus Christ, I cannot stand with antesemitism, which is what this is really about. Israel and the Jewish people have a right to the land as it is a covenant that God has made with them. There is no man on earth that can take this away from them. I know that God will bless those that bless them and curse those that curse them. The Bible, as the Word of God, is the only authority in heaven and on earth. Therefore, this bill goes against everything that God has said. As a Christ followerand rooted in the Word and grafted into the vine, which is the Jewish people, which Jesus is, I cannot go against the people and the country. Therefore, I disagree with this bill and do not support it.	Moira	Western Cape		employed individual
	2025-12-11 20:32:04	No I do not	Other	This country was built on Biblical Christian values. If these Muslims are so intent with living under Shree law then they should go back to Arabia where they live under that law. They have come to our country to get away from the terror that they lived under in that country. To try imposing that law in our beloved country. Pack them all on a plane, bus , ship and ship them all to Arabia. Why is this even being entertained in our country. Everyone who is for this are welcome to leave South Africa and find a home in a country where that law in practiced. They are trying to impose terrorism and lawlessness around the world. Take our freedom from us do they know the constitution? Freedom to worship the God of all creation. They are left to make noise pollution. That must come to an end, why should we allow that or put up with that? Do not start with evil rubbish it won't end well. Israel has no tie to South Africa, and yet we are being forced to take an opposing stance to it. While it is not a guaranteed paragon of virtue or divine in its own right, it will never be an enemy of mine, and it remains the cradle of my Christian faith. To force me to take a stance of hate to a country that holds this historic and spiritual significance is brutal in the extreme, and I will not submit to this bill if it had to become the next insane law to find it's easy into our governmental and judicial structures. This is, also, an obvious attempt to capture South Africa into an Islamo-centric state which is militaristic and dictatorial at the core. This is simply anti-Semitism wrapped in moralism seeking to swindle another population into human imprisonment. It is jihadist and clearly colonialist, and I would hope that South Africa has both more brain and more heart to send such a violent spirit far, far, far away. Not on our watch! Not now! Not ever! 	2025-12-12 05:59:59	No I do not	Other	This is a madman. Personally I believe Islam has no right to call itself an Abrahamic religion. Any good Christian apologist will show you that Mohammad was a charlatan and his faith today is nothing short of satanism. So my argument (the statement above) is motivated by religion. His argument is based on faith, and a zealous hatred of Jews. Therefore what happens in Israel is an issue for the locals to decide. I will only consider this man's opinion when he embraces LGBTQ rights in Gaza and the Arab world and he calls fir a ban on Chinese products for the human right violations against the million Uighurs locked up in prison. Until such time all he is a charlatan, a Satanist and a waste of time. For reference please see John MacArthur, West Huff, and Nabeel Quereshi, Sam Shamoun for an accurate understanding of Islam's hatred of the Jew.	Warren	Eastern Cape		self-employed

But here's the good news, you can read the end of this narrative in the eternal word of truth - The righteous cry out, and the Lord hears them; he delivers them from all their troubles. The Lord is close to the brokenhearted and saves those who are crushed in spirit. The righteous person may have many troubles, but the Lord delivers him from them all; (Psalm 34:17-19 NIV) "For we are not fighting against flesh-and-blood enemies, but against evil rulers and authorities of the unseen world, against mighty powers in this dark world, and against evil spirits in the heavenly places." Ephesians 6:12 NLT "And the one sitting on the throne said, "Look, I am making everything new!" And then he said to me, "Write this down, for what I tell you is trustworthy and true." And he also said, "It is finished! I am the Alpha and the Omega—the Beginning and the End. To all who are thirsty I will give freely from the springs of the water of life. All who are victorious will inherit all these blessings, and I will be their God, and they will be my children. Joel 3:2 KJV — "I will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with them there for my people and for my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations, and parted my land." I will not be on the wrong side of that judgement and out of love I don't want ANY South African to be either. 1 Corinthians 15:1-4 KJV — "Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand; By which also ye are saved, if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless ye have believed in vain. For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures:" It is those scriptures that this bill is trying to make illegal to talk about. 	2025-12-11 22:04:36	No I do not	Other	Genesis 12:3 (NIV): "I will bless those who bless you, and whoever curses you I will curse; and all peoples on earth will be blessed through you." Numbers 6:24-26 (NIV): "The LORD bless you and keep you; the LORD make his face shine upon you and be gracious to you; the LORD turn his face toward you and give you peace." Numbers 24:9 (NIV): "May those who bless you be blessed and those who curse you be cursed!" Context: Genesis 12:3 is part of God's covenant with Abraham, promising land, a great nation, and blessings through him to all peoples. Numbers 6:24-26 is the famous priestly blessing Aaron was to pronounce over the Israelites, emphasizing God's presence, favor, and peace. Numbers 24:9 comes from the prophet Balaam, reiterating God's commitment to bless Israel and deal with their adversaries, notes	Christa			unemployed individual

	2025-12-12 08:27:42	No I do not	Other	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. The moslems are trying to control South Africa also now, They already controlling about 30% of the world and South Africa is so weak that they also being manipulated by them. Why should we be forced to choose a religion. Moslems have this notion that they are the true religion. But if you look deeper check the corruptness of that sector. Also what about GBV and they are the actual people that think absolutely nothing of women. So now the manipulated government is wanting to force Christians to support this religion. This is really sad that a nation that is trying to support all citizens with the freedom of choice being manipulated by a religion that they know is one of the worst in the world. 	2025-12-12 09:41:32	No I do not	Other	I have a constitutional concern that our rights to freedom of choice would be encroached upon. We have the right to freedom of religion - this includes support for any religion and by extension the region from which the religion stems. I have a religious concern that South Africa is traditionally a Christian based country. We have already lost our Christian identity in schools - we cannot afford to have our Christian identity controlled in our society. This is not an Islamic based country and therefore we should not be condemned according to their beliefs. We need to maintain our Christian beliefs in this country and if it does not suit people that live here, then they should retreat back to their regions where their laws are upheld and enforced. We have made provision to be accepting of all faiths in South Africa, but there should be no reason that a single ideology controls that narrative. The spread of these ideas will lead to civil unrest and may incite civil violence within our boarders. We are a free country because we based our democracy on good faith and Christian principles. There is no freedom in Islamic law and therefore to uphold this bill is to limit and take away freedom from citizens.	Nathon			employed individual

	2025-12-12 09:32:21	No I do not	Other	My answer Other, incorporates alot of my concern. Freedom of speech, of religion, of prayicing my faith. THIS is my and my family's CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHT. I voted for freedom of speech, of practicing my faith, fearlessly, freedom of movement. Basic basic basic human rights. How this party now wants to implement a law (!?!) that restricts how i believe, who i stand with???, Its NOT constitutional, or democratic at all. Its authoritarian. It speaks of a bully mentality- if people will not listen ,then let them feel??? No! How old are these people, 5??? Let the people of South Africa have freedom to stand with who they want, At the end of it all, our God will judge us each according to our INDIVIDUAL actions in this lifetime. The Christian believes this. The Muslim believes this. The Jew believes this. And every other faith that believes in a deity.	Crystal-ann	Western Cape		employed individual

We need the freedom to choose the Biblical right way to live. Biblically Israel is the apple of God's eye, and we are commanded to pray for the peace of Israel. Any law that would stand against that is unbiblical and we cannot support it.	Alice	Eastern Cape		unemployed individual

	2025-12-12 08:39:21	No I do not	Other	I cannot support or approve a law that criminalises standing with Israel or expressing biblical convictions. My faith requires me to honour the truth of Scripture, which teaches that believers must bless and pray for the peace of Jerusalem, and must uphold justice without fear of political pressure. Supporting such a law would mean agreeing that the government may punish people for their beliefs, their conscience, and their interpretation of God's Word. This goes directly against the biblical command to obey God above human laws when the two conflict. It also violates the principle of religious freedom, which is essential for all people, regardless of their views. I choose to stand for freedom of belief, freedom of worship, and the right of every Christian to live out their faith without intimidation or criminalisation. For these reasons, I cannot support or endorse this kind of legislation.	Rozet

	2025-12-12 08:32:45	No I do not	Other	I believe the proposed Apartheid Bill is deeply wrong because it misuses the powerful and painful legacy of apartheid in ways that could undermine fundamental rights and freedoms in our democratic South Africa. The bill's definitions are very broad and vague, meaning normal speech, political opinions, or lawful engagements — even those connected to foreign countries — could be criminalized under its terms, which scares me because it threatens freedom of expression and political participation that so many fought and died for. I'm also troubled by the bill's extraterritorial reach, which would allow South Africa to prosecute people for actions they take abroad, creating uncertainty and chilling fear among citizens and the diaspora. Instead of unifying us or strengthening justice, I worry this bill could be used selectively against critics or communities, harming our constitutional values and democratic norms rather than protecting them. 	2025-12-12 10:31:52	No I do not	Other	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-12 10:31:40	No I do not	Other	1. This Bill isn't aimed at, nor does it help us South Africans! 2. We already have laws in place that prohibit discrimination, murder, assault, abuse, and hate speech. 3. Crimes committed in other Countries are under the jurisdiction of that Country and should not be prosecuted outside of it. 4. The apparent motive for this Bill isn't to enhance South African lives and community but to aid an agenda in another Country. 5. The crime of Apartheid is something that States do through legislation that empowers and encourages its citizens to discriminate and abuse other people groups. South Africa no longer has such laws, so this is Bill is redundant.	Jurgen	Western Cape

	2025-12-12 11:08:13	No I do not	Other	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-12 12:33:36	No I do not	Other	There are a number of issues with this proposed bill. Supporting International Law: The International Court of Justice did nothing in regards to South Africa's claim that Israel is an 75-year apartheid state. It only responded to the actions that are plausible to be war crimes, but not proof there of. Yet we want to implement a law that defines Israel as an apartheid state to support International Law? That makes no sense. Combating War Crimes: If you want to pass a bill that allows the government to prosecute people supporting governments that committing war crimes, I will be all for it, but then we will need to add people supporting Russia invading the Ukraine to that list, and not just the ones some people specifically select out of apparent moral duty. Unconstitutional: If you want another country to change how they conduct themselves, you use diplomacy. That is exactly what it is for. Regulating people's thinking based on plausibility and not proof, sets a bad precedent. There are already laws in the constitution that covers illegal acts. Overriding our constitution for what clearly won't stand in court, should be seen as unconstitutional. Do we really want to set this legal precedent of interfering with our constitution? Can you not see the "plausible" consequences?	AJ			employed individual

	2025-12-12 13:08:40	No I do not	Other	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-12 15:38:20	No I do not	Other	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. My Bible demands my (and other Christians) blessing over Israel, and my pilgrimage has been, and will be to Israel. Like other religions, I have the right to visit the country where the foundation of Christianity lies, Israel. This is a direct attack by the Moslem/ Islam drive worldwide to eradicate Christianity and all it stands for, and the foundation it is build on. I will not adhere to any legislation in direct contradiction to my Bible, the only and true word of the only God, the God of peace and salvation. Genesis 12: 3 says: (God is speaking to Abraham, the Jewish patriarch) "I will bless those who bless you, and whoever curses you, I will curse." This country is heading down the wrong road with its anti-Israel stance. Such a stance is deeply offensive to Christian believers. 	2025-12-12 17:27:00	No I do not	Other	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. While its intentions may be to address human rights issues, the bill could seriously limit religious freedom and freedom of expression for Christians and other faith communities. For many believers, support or prayer for Israel is part of their faith, not a political act. Criminalising peaceful religious convictions conflicts with the protections in Sections 15 and 16 of the Constitution. Any law that risks suppressing legitimate religious belief or practice should be reconsidered. South Africa must remain a nation where people can express their faith without fear of prosecution. For these reasons, I oppose the bill in its current form.	Thomas			business owner

No this bill should not proceed, not even have been tabled, let alone been drafted by a muslim. Ramaphosa should be upholduing the constituion, protecting the countries citizens rights to freedom of speech, freedom if religion. Each person has the right to support who ever thet feel aligned to, it is not the Governments right to enforce their own likes onto it citizens. Now the government is the persecutor not the protector. It is particularily persecutorial towards jewush and christian people, we live in a supposedly a democrite country not muslim or ductator country, not that will stop Ramaphosa pushing for this. The DA are a proxy force of the ANC.	Marie	Gauteng

It is deliberately set up to ensure that only Christians are targeted, silenced, and dealt with as it is irrevocable that their beliefs are rooted in Israel and people emanating from there. So looking at this bill you want to silence all mention of Israel, both in the public and private space, inside and outside borders all in the name of criminalising the mention, support and respect for Israel. Is this the best possible way of doing things? The bill in its form is blatantly anti Christian, seeking to destroy, persecute, erase, and silence the Christian faith as we know it today. This attack on the history and the vestiges of the Christian faith should not be allowed to see the light of day, for an attempt to weaponise legislation in this manner is downright dangerous, malicious and irresponsible. The passing of this bill opposes the mandate of the constitution to protect and preserve the people of this nation. 	2025-12-13 05:57:22	No I do not	Other	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-13 04:47:41	No I do not	Other	My stance is twofold, first is that if palestine is the driving cause, it's an anc issue and not a South African one. I understand that the ANC must dance to the demands their benfactors (islamic terror motivators, russia etc), to side with their whims, but in this case they are taking an immoral stance, by prostituting who really is the apartheid instigator and even the meaning of it. My second issue is the damage to South Africa. We are trying so hard as a people, to be better and do better, but to actually side with the vilest, most evil doctrine the world has ever known, islam, is by far the worst thing that can happen. Yeshua, our Messiah our King and High Priest is a Jew. He was crucified on a stake, for exactly this reason this bill is being pushed. If you are against Israel, you are against our Messiah. You are against His Father in Heaven. You are against our creator. This bill is demonic in nature, as it echoes John 6:66 From then on many of His disciples withdrew and were not walking with Him any more. Each and every person on this planet, was created by Yeshua our Messiah through the power given to Him by His Father in heaven. Israel is our blood. It is where we all come from. Our heavenly Father chose Israel as it is the centre of the earth. The antichrist spirit is now attacking Israel exactly as we read in Revelations 13:18. I oppose this satanic bill. 	2025-12-12 22:09:47	No I do not	Other	Firstly, I believe it’s unconstitutional as citizens should have a freedom of choose who they support based on their own world view or religious beliefs. You also cannot force people to act contrary to their beliefs. Secondly, this is not simply a political matter, it is a spiritual and religious matter. Christianity has its origins in the Jewish people as God chose the Jews to be His special people and to ultimately bring salvation to mankind through the birth of the Savior, Jesus Christ. To criminalise support for Israel is to criminalise Christian belief, because the foundation of our faith is rooted in Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, the Covenants, the Prophets, the Apostles, and the land from which our Lord Jesus came. Last time I checked the majority of South Africans areChristians (or claim to be Christians). How can a country with majority Christian population enact a law that criminalizes Christian belief because a small minority POLITICAL party proposes it. Lastly, the South African government should rather focus on issues in our own country and stop being hypocritical.	Ilse	Gauteng

Copy dit as jou motivering I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-13 12:08:58	No I do not	Other	I believe you are familiar with the word apartheid, which is a South African term used to describe the segregation and discrimination of a particular ethnic group, gender or belief. It was implemented to accuse Israel of discrimination against the Palestinians, but the hypocrisy is blatantly obvious because the same is now being done in South African. The proposed legislation is a direct attack on a group of people who should have the freedom of expression and association, as it is an integral part of our human autonomy. It is an attempt to silence and punish the people that dare to stand up for their beliefs and view point, which is a prejudice against freedom of speech. Isreal is also an integral part of the Christian faith, as our Lord and Savior Jesus Chist was a Jewish man that came from Isreal. Our faith is founded on that of Judaism, and the very principles we live by were established by a Jew. To restrict even mentions of Isreal means to oppress individuals, communities, churches and even an entire religion. This is not unity, it's forced compliance. It is not justice, it is selective fairness.	Kara	Gauteng		student

	2025-12-13 11:49:50	No I do not	Other	In the Constitution of South Africa it is stated that South African's have freedom of speech and freedom of expression. By denying South Africans the option to stand with the nation of Israel is the violation of our rights to choose what and who we stand for. As Christians, Israel is an integral part of our faith. I would even go as far as to say that Israel is the centrefold of the very essense of our beliefs. For what is Christianity without Israel? Without our Messiah? Without Israel, the origin of our Messiah and the very epitome of our beliefs are wiped away. Israel is an integral part in the history of the bible, God's relationship with humanity through the ages and the nationality of our Messiah. If we as Christians can no longer mention, affiliate or stand with Israel you wipe the very essence of our beliefs and strip us of our rights as South Africans to practice freedom of choice and to freely practice our beliefs. 	2025-12-13 09:56:05	No I do not	Other	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-13 09:07:31	No I do not	Other	Freedom of Speech, Freedom of religion, Freedom of choice, and Freedom of support, as included in the Constitution, are in jeopardy of being threatened. These claims of Apartheid are untested and biased, as Hamas (an identified Terrorist Group) is in a war with Israel, while all claims are unjustified. Hamas is a terrorist organization that threatens the safety of all South Africans, and can we not allow Terrorist organizations to be imposed on South Africa where they may oppose our constitution and other religions. If so, it implies that Islam would be superior to other religions in South Africa. What gives Islamic-focused parties the authority to predict what should be accepted by South Africans and what should not? This, in fact, constitutes racism as well, where many Christians who would support Israel are of European culture, and is there a hidden agenda in pushing this proposed law for approval. It infringes upon the fundamental right of self-determination and sovereignty, both for individuals and for nations. Just as South Africa values its own sovereignty and the right to self-governance, so too should Israel, or any nation, have the freedom to determine who they welcome within their borders. Enforcing this bill would not only undermine these freedoms but also risk blurring the line between voluntary separateness and forced segregation, thereby infringing upon the genuine freedom of association. This is not just about one group's freedom, but about respecting the sovereignty and choice of all parties involved. True freedom means that individuals and communities have the right to choose their own paths without coercion.	Lourens	North West		unemployed individual

	2025-12-13 08:16:07	No I do not	Other	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. It is not iust an attack on those who support Israel, but it is an attack on the freedoms of all South Africans. It may sound good to some but it will have devastating long-lasting consequences for our country as a whole and all who lives in it. It is essentially an initial push for Islamic ideology into South African law vailed under an "anti-Apartheid" law, supported by the ANC MK Party, EFF, PAC & GOOD but it will result in somethina far worse than apartheid. It will result in South Africa becoming the next nation to become a full blown terrorist state (we are not far off and be completely destroyed by slam, like Iran, Syria, Sudan, Somalia, etc. We are currently witnessing a similar thing happening across Europe URGENT: A DIRECT ATTACK ON THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST IN SOUTH AFRICA The political party Al Jama-ah is pushing the Apartheid Bill,' a law that will criminalise Christians, pastors, churches, and anyone wha supports Israel in ANY way This includes: praying for Israel • visiting Israel ‣ posting Scripture about Israe • hosting Israel events • supporting Israel's humanitarian work • speaking in favour of Israel This is NOT political Thus, a spiritual attack on the Church and on Christian identity. 	2025-12-13 16:36:28	No I do not	Other	I find the proposed “Apartheid Bill” deeply troubling and fundamentally misguided. I do not agree with the assertion that Israel is an apartheid state. Israel is a pluralistic democracy in which Arab citizens vote, hold public office, serve in the judiciary, and participate fully in society. To label this as apartheid distorts history and diminishes the meaning of the very real system South Africans suffered under. More concerning is that this Bill appears designed to criminalise belief, speech, and association. Public statements suggesting that South Africans may face prosecution merely for supporting Israel raise serious constitutional concerns. Freedom of conscience, belief, opinion, and expression are foundational rights protected by our Constitution. It was not Israel that initiated the violence of October 7th, nor was it Israel that deliberately targeted civilians. Hamas is a recognised terrorist organisation whose ideology is rooted in exclusion and violence. To equate support for Israel with support for apartheid while ignoring the actions of Hamas reflects a selective and troubling moral standard. I also question why South Africa is prioritising foreign legal battles while our own country faces a failing economy, rampant crime, collapsing infrastructure, and widespread corruption. Legislative time and public funds should be focused on fixing South Africa, not on creating laws that risk intimidating or silencing citizens. If this Bill allows ordinary South Africans to face criminal charges for lawful opinion, religious belief, or political expression, it represents a dangerous move toward authoritarianism rather than justice. Laws should protect citizens, not threaten them.	Nicolene	KwaZulu-Natal

I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. Not only that you may be facing judgment from God as a nation Biblically. I in principle highly value all cultural groups, In our church we promote a unity barriers. But when you set yourself up as a nation to oppose God's chosen nation, you set yourself up to being cursed by God. Just read Gen 12. So what you will create is a scenario of incriminating solid citizens and empowering those with an Islamic agenda.	Karl	Mpumalanga		employed individual

	2025-12-14 02:01:24	No I do not	Other	Selected "other" due to all options being concerning. The chief of these are the performative politics (RSA struggles to enforce law locally - it has absolutely no bearing on other states and even if it did, wouldn't be efficacious in any manner), as well as the precedent created by the incorporation of personal ideological beliefs into the body of law. In doing so, it cuts of any counter arguments based on any premises (states Israel being an apartheid state as an undeniable reality, which it cannot be - opinions should not be law). Finally and most insidiously, it sets itself close to UN policies, which is technically unconstitutional (the UN is not democratically elected by the South African population - why should it have bearing on our laws?). 	2025-12-14 00:37:56	No I do not	Other	I strongly oppose the draft Apartheid Bill published by the Al Jamah-ah party as it is nothing but a politically motivated move of a religious group against the nation of Israel and its supporters whom they oppose and thereby are seeking to weaponise the law against. It is based on only their opinion of what they label as apartheid in Israel and not on truth and as such has no place in South African law. Indeed if anyone is guilty of apartheid or hate crimes it is this party and those who support its efforts to politically attack and accuse Israel and its supporters in this way in this country. This should not be tolerated nor allowed in any way, shape or form.	Barbara			retired

I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-13 21:22:43	No I do not	Other	South Africa has a troubled past filled with conflict. It has left our Country broken and sick. The streets are filled with the hungry and starving, corruption has spread like a cancer throughout all departments of our government. Yet through all this a large group of people in this country would rather hate each other for things that happened in a previous age than work together to fix what is broken. This leads to very fragile relations between people of different races, beliefs and religions. This law will continue to push people of our own country apart and can lead to even more conflict, discontent and even violence between different groups. Furthermore, we simply do not have the needed resources to commit to these laws. Time and time again we hear stories of how SAPS is not able to properly perform all their duties because of a lack of staff, leaderships and recourses. This will add even more to their plate and those that are truly in need will suffer the most because of it. I believe that this Bill is born out of ulterior and malicious motives since it definitely does not have what's best for our people in mind. This Bill will open a new gate for corrupt leaders to work through and take away even more from our country, and we simply cannot afford to lose any more.	Reginald			employed individual

	2025-12-13 20:40:07	No I do not	Other	South Africa has a troubled past filled with conflict. It has left our Country broken and sick. The streets are filled with the hungry and starving, corruption has spread like a cancer throughout all departments of our government. Yet through all this a large group of people in this country would rather hate each other for things that happened in a previous age than work together to fix what is broken. This leads to very fragile relations between people of different races, beliefs and religions. This law will continue to push people of our own country apart and can lead to even more conflict, discontent and even violence between different groups. Furthermore, we simply do not have the needed resources to commit to these laws. Time and time again we hear stories of how SAPS is not able to properly perform all their duties because of a lack of staff, leaderships and recourses. This will add even more to their plate and those that are truly in need will suffer the most because of it. I believe that this Bill is born out of ulterior and malicious motives since it definitely does not have what's best for our people in mind. This Bill will open a new gate for corrupt leaders to work through and take away even more from our country, and we simply cannot afford to lose any more.	Reginold			employed individual

	2025-12-13 20:37:05	No I do not	Other	My great great grandfather came to South Africa in 1725. This make me a solid citizen of South Africa. I am a believer in Jesus Christ as the only Savior, The only way to eternal life. In Genesis 17: 21 Ismael was rejected to get a covenant. The covenant is via Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Today every food product in South Africa have a halaal sign on it. The sign cost the country's 47 billion rand a year of war factions outside South Africa and to fight Christians who don't want to make war but live peaceful. The same money is money out of South Africa money basket and draining the finances of South Africa. A small % of South Africa wants this bill. Less than 3% of them want to dominate the rest of South Africa, We see in our schools how crime go up and through South Africa where everything is just chaos. I will protest everything that are against my believe. Jes_37:36 Then the angel of the LORD went forth, and smote in the camp of the Assyrians a hundred and fourscore and five thousand: and when they arose early in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses. Remember what happened in the 16 December 1838. Go and asked the most elderly people what really happened that day. I believe in that God who saved Israel and the Boers. As a Christian, my faith is inseparable from Israel, the Bible, and the history through which God revealed Himself to the world. Criminalising support for Israel risks criminalising prayer, teaching, Scripture, and conscience. This bill goes beyond foreign policy and enters the space of belief, worship, and expression. Our Constitution bestows freedom of religion on all South Africans. Our Christian Bible starts with Jewish history. Our Saviour was a Jew. We have many sacred places in Israel. 	2025-12-14 08:38:12	No I do not	Other	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-14 13:40:19	No I do not	Other	Christianity started in Israel. The Messiah, Jesus Christ, lived in Israel. The Bible teaches to bless Israel. From a religious perspective, Globally, Christianity is the largest sect of human kind in the world, excluding atheists. Christianity's heritage comes from Israel and South-Africa was built on fundamental Christian beliefs. This is an Islamic motive to subdue the "polytheists and non-believers", according to their belief. To restrict Christians' freedom to express their religion. Islam has already resulted in the slaughtering of many thousands of Christians in North-Africa and they're now trying to persecute the Christians of the South. This could start a religious war. It would be foolish to pass this law.	Julian

	2025-12-14 13:03:37	No I do not	Other	Not only political, constitutional and weaponization issues, BUT, the fundamental reason why Apartheid Law was abolished in the 1st place!! Mandela was a freedom fighter, for, ALL South Africans and as a forerunner for all nations as to what is possible. Peace is the ultimate goal for every person of every nation, but by taking away freedom of speech & democracy we would be going backwards into the abyss of the Dark Ages where pure evil lays in wait! On simple logic terms, tourism will be seriously negatively affected, technology will decline, international relationships will grind to a halt, a further "brain drain" will occur in all aspects of the economical wellbeing of ALL South Africans and their Country. Surely the educated politicians in South Africa know that if this Bill is passed, their own lives will be seriously affected, and not for good because it is a classic story of "the frog in a pot of water". If you take the time to actually read up on the history of the land of Canaan (Palestine) you will realise that Jew and Arab lived in peace, side by side, and why was this you may ask? Which was because of no interference from outside Government's dictating what they feel/believe is right. A true Arab and Jew are biologically family, so why does that bother some nations so much, I wonder??? We all know Greed is the Root of All Evil, so please be mindful of how your actions today will affect future generations, yes, even your children, your grandchildren, your great grandchildren and your great-great grandchildren. Setting a precedent today will cause you to be just like the politicians that implemented Apartheid Law back in the 'dark days'!	Eliza

Introducing legislation that creates legal uncertainty for foreign nationals and dual citizens risks discouraging visitors, investors, and international events, which could further harm tourism revenue and economic recovery. 	2025-12-14 15:38:01	No I do not	Other	Onderwerp: Openbare Kommentaar op die Voorgestelde “Apartheid Bill” Ek dien hiermee my openbare kommentaar in rakende die voorgestelde sogenaamde “Apartheid Bill”. Ek erken Suid-Afrika se geskiedenis en die belangrikheid van menseregte en die voorkoming van diskriminasie. My kommer is egter dat die volledige teks en presiese definisies van die voorgestelde wet nog nie duidelik en publiek beskikbaar is nie, wat regsonsekerheid kan skep. Enige wet wat strafregtelike aanspreeklikheid skep, moet duidelik omskryf wees om arbitrêre of selektiewe toepassing te voorkom. Dit is verder noodsaaklik dat die Grondwet se beskerming van vryheid van godsdiens, uitdrukking, assosiasie en gewete nie, direk of indirek, ondermyn word nie. Burgers en geloofsgemeenskappe moet die reg behou om hul oortuigings, gebede en humanitêre betrokkenheid uit te leef sonder vrees vir vervolging. Die moontlike ekstraterritoriale toepassing van die wet vereis ook besondere sorg en duidelike begrensing. Ek versoek daarom dat die volledige wetsontwerp eers openbaar gemaak en deeglik grondwetlik getoets word, en dat die beskerming van burgerlike en godsdienstige vryhede uitdruklik bevestig word. Hierdie kommentaar word ingedien in die gees van konstruktiewe deelname en respek vir die regstaat. Met respek Johan Kruger Suid-Afrikaanse burger	Johan			business owner

	2025-12-14 19:06:16	No I do not	Other	It does not seem that the full text of the draft Bill is available yet. Parliament's Notice 3599 in 14 November's Government Gazette ends with, "Copies of the draft Bill, 2025, may, after introduction, be obtained from: www.aljama.co.za, Al Jamah-ah ...". Thus we seem to have to rely solely on the summary in Notice 3599. Too, 18 July 1976's "International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid (G.A. res. 3068 (XXVIII)), 28 U.N. GAOR Supp. (No. 30) at 75, U.N. Doc. A/9030 (1974), 1015 U.N.T.S. 243)", is not specifically mentioned in SA's Implementation of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court Act ("IRSICC Act"), 27 of 2002. Hence, full details are not available as to how the draft Bill adds value to the IRSICC Act, or to what extent that Act already provides for the aims of the draft Bill. As such, the sound basis to warrant support of the draft Bill is lacking. I thus cannot support it.	Michael			retired

	2025-12-14 19:02:12	No I do not	Other	This Bill will have a major negative impact on the country's legal and political landscape. Constitutional Issues: The violation of South African constitutional principles of non-racialism and free speech by potentially targeting specific groups or criminalizing engagement with a particular country. Diplomatic Risks: The Bill can harm South Africa's diplomatic ties with key trading partners and allies. Economic Impact: This Bill could negatively affect foreign investment, tourism, and academic/commercial collaborations. Implementation Challenges: Using high court resources for international crimes will divert funds needed for domestic crime issues. Difficulties in enforcing extraterritorial jurisdiction and investigating crimes without cooperation from other states. Political Influence: The requirement for the National Director of Public Prosecutions' consent before prosecution raises fears of potential political interference. Redundancy: South Africa already criminalizes apartheid under the Implementation of the Rome Statute Act (2002). The new Bill is unnecessary and creates duplicate laws. Freedom of Speech Concerns: There are fears that the Bill's broad language could be used to criminalize dissent or support for minority rights, potentially limiting freedom of speech.	C
	2025-12-14 18:59:44	No I do not	Other	To criminalise support for Israel is to criminalise Christian belief. This is not merely political overreach but an attempt to eradicate the Christian identity in south Africa and an full on attack on n the Church. 	2025-12-14 23:25:59	No I do not	Other	I reject the "Apartheid Bill" in it's entirety! South Africa stands at a perilous crossroads. The so-called "Apartheid Bill"—formally the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025—introduced by Al Jama-ah MP Imraan Ismail-Moosa on behalf of a coalition including the ANC, EFF, MK Party, PAC, and GOOD, is no mere policy tweak. It is a calculated weapon aimed at the heart of our democracy, masquerading as moral accountability while unleashing unprecedented threats to religious liberty, free speech, and the unshakeable biblical foundations of Christianity. Backed by an explicitly Islamic party with a history of anti-Israel activism, this bill exploits our nation's apartheid scars to import a radical agenda that could silence pastors in the pulpit, prosecute believers for their prayers, and sever South Africa's Christian heritage from its scriptural roots. If enacted, it would not just target Israel; it would criminalize the very essence of Christian belief, making faith itself a prosecutable offense. This is not hyperbole—it's the inevitable outcome of legislation riddled with vagueness, overreach, and malice. 1. The Bill's Insidious Design: Criminalizing Belief Under the Guise of Justice! At its core, the bill seeks to domesticate the 1973 UN Apartheid Convention into South African law, elevating "apartheid" to a standalone crime with extraterritorial teeth. While South Africa already criminalizes apartheid as a crime against humanity via the Implementation of the Rome Statute Act (2002), this new measure expands definitions to include "inhuman acts" for "establishing and maintaining domination by one racial group over another" with broad provisions for prosecuting South Africans (including dual citizens) for "committing or aiding" such acts anywhere in the world. Al Jama-ah's own statements leave no doubt: Party leader Ganief Hendricks has declared Israel an "apartheid state," vowing that supporters "must face the full might of the law." In practice, this means: - Speech and Advocacy: Posting Bible verses affirming God's covenant with Israel (e.g., Genesis 12:3—"I will bless those who bless you") could be twisted as "promoting apartheid." - Prayer and Worship: Pastors invoking Psalm 122 ("Pray for the peace of Jerusalem") or intercessors beseeching God for Israel's protection risk charges of "aiding" an alleged apartheid regime. - Humanitarian and Travel Acts: Donating to Israeli relief efforts, leading church tours to the Holy Land, or even visiting family in Israel could trigger prosecution, as these are deemed "assistance." - Global Reach: A South African Christian missionary in the Middle East or a dual citizen on a birthright trip could be hauled before a High Court upon return, with the National Director of Public Prosecutions holding veto power over charges. Critics, including the Democratic Alliance (DA) and Freedom Front Plus (FF+), rightly decry it as "constitutionally vague" and "practically unenforceable," a "waste of parliamentary resources" designed solely to antagonize Israel. The South African Jewish Board of Deputies (SAJBD) labels it "devious" and "antisemitic," noting Al Jama-ah's bad-faith tactic of submitting a mere "notice of intention" without a full draft, exploiting public outrage for political gain. This isn't justice—it's a Trojan horse for ideological warfare, redundant to existing laws yet weaponized to punish dissent. #### 2. A Profound Threat to Christian Identity: No Cross Without the Covenant Land. For South Africa's 80% Christian population it's an assault on the Gospel itself. Christianity is inextricably bound to Israel: the land of Abraham's promise (Genesis 15:18), the prophets' oracles, the Messiah's birth in Bethlehem, and the apostles' witness from Jerusalem (Acts 1:8). As Vivienne Myburgh of the International Christian Embassy Jerusalem (ICEJ) South Africa warns, the bill "seeks to criminalize Zionists—those who believe in the rights of the Jews to their ancient homeland," equating biblical fidelity with racism. To support Israel—through prayer, pilgrimage, or proclamation—is to affirm the salvation story: "Salvation is from the Jews" (John 4:22). Yet Al Jama-ah's framework brands such support as complicity in "apartheid," echoing the UN Convention's Cold War-era rhetoric but ignoring Israel's vibrant democracy, where Arab citizens vote, serve in parliament, and sit on the Supreme Court. This inversion of history doesn't just libel a nation; it erodes the theological bedrock of our faith. Marie Sukers, founder of Voice to Parliament and former ACDP MP, calls it a "broader political agenda to push this country in a political direction through laws that undermine the rights and freedoms of South Africans," allying with a "captured ANC" to reshape society against Christian witness. Invoking that legacy to silence Scripture is profane!	Pierre	Gauteng		self-employed

	2025-12-14 22:29:54	No I do not	Other	It is not accurate to describe Israel as an apartheid state; it affords equal rights to both its Jewish and Palestinian citizens. The conflict in Gaza and the West Bank is over land and ideology, not race. So, the purported parallels with the old Apartheid state are nonsensical. But the objectives of Al Jama-ah, as a proxy of the Muslim Brotherhood, are very clear: It strives to subjugate Western values and culture, destroy the Jewish state, and create a global caliphate. So, there is very much an ulterior, sinister motive behind this proposed legislation. It is an attempt to undermine key tenets of our Constitution, and notably, it aims to criminalize freedom of speech. And all this coming from a tiny minority party with almost no support from the electorate. I vehemently oppose this draft Bill.	Dawid	Gauteng		employed individual

Therefore, I cannot support something which restricts the freedom of speech in our nation and therefore criminalizes support for Israel even in the form of prayer for God to change the hearts of those inducing the violence. I am not in support of what Israel is doing but criminalizing and restricting peoples voices on the situation is not the answer	Dominic
	2025-12-14 21:24:22	No I do not	Other	This bill is an incredibly terrifying and dangerous one that seeks to scare Jewish people into silence. This bill actively works against South Africa's incredibly advanced constitution along with infringing on our human rights and constitutional rights - both of which are key in a democratic South Africa. This bill seeks to prosecute and criminalize Jewish people (and others who stand with Jewish people/Israel) which is a direct infringement on freedom of religion, belief and speech. In a climate which already intimidates Jewish students, communities and the wider population, this bill will only exacerbate and encourage further antisemitism under the guise of anti-Zionism. Jewish people should feel safe expressing their beliefs freely and openly, as other people do, without fear of persecution and discrimination.	S	Western Cape		student

	2025-12-14 20:33:52	No I do not	Other	I have various concerns about the bill. It is not necessary, since South Africa already recognises apartheid as a crime against humanity under the Rome Statute Act. We already struggle to prosecute very real, local criminal cases, with courts overloaded and the crime rate high. We do not have the resources to prosecute international, cross-border cases. Furthermore, the definition of an Apartheid-state is vague. This makes the law hard to enforce, and open to abuse. Any law that is not very specific should never be accepted in South Africa. Many proponents and opponents of this law are religiously motivated and very emotionally charged. Many seem unable to assess the history, actions, and motivations of the various groups in the Near-East objectively. This makes the passing of a law like this dangerous, since emotion should not be underpinning a law like this.	Hanno	Gauteng		employed individual

It's very obvious that the people who are in charge over there have nothing to do with, and want nothing to do with the biblical version of Israel. Nevertheless, this bill is a massive overreach of our country's jurisdiction, and an encroachment on freedom of speech - that by having a differing opinion than the government will get you in legal trouble is pure garbage. I just wish that our leaders would focus on first holding themselves the crime lords and the rich people in this country to account before looking everywhere else in the world. First take the log out of your own eye. Israel is committing genocide, yes, but prosecuting South Africans and other people due to their support of this regime will do nothing to stop what's happening over there. Those people will be held to account onw day and history will not look back at this regime fondly, but that is not for the South African government to decide. To say you stand with Palestine is honourable. To say anyone who stands with Israel is a criminal, is stupidity and deliberately inflammatory and disingenuous. Fix our country. 	2025-12-09 12:33:49	No I do not	No concern	South Africa has no say in what goes on in another country. If you dont like it, keep your mouth shut and stay in your lane. We have, under law, freedom of speech and freedom of religion and we are free to vote. This proposed law will infringe on all three of those constitutional laws we have in South Africa. Just because you dont like what another person supports or not, do you have any right or say in that choice. If they make this a law, then we will have to create laws for national supporters, democratic supporters, communism supporters, socialist supporters, slavery supporters, criminal supporters. The list will go on. Because they all offend me, thus we need to create laws against anyone that supports those.	JOHAN	Gauteng		employed individual
	2025-12-09 14:52:52	No I do not	No concern	It must be considered firstlly if this is apartheid purse or if it is motivated equally by two ultra religious groups (both Abrahamic of origin)who, because of their religious intollerances simply can't share the same or adjascent space. In South Africa these same two religious groups live ammicably side by side . Don't you think our efforts should rather be aimed at motivating these two religious groups to first set aside their religious differences and the aggression it causes so that they may in future live side by side each to practice their religious believes without the fear of religious hatred and intollerances as is the practice in South Africa. 	2025-12-03 17:21:07	Yes I do	No concern	This is a great initiative and a necessary step. Our Constitution, born from anti-apartheid struggle, demands we confront this crime globally! The Bill closes a legal gap, allowing South Africa to prosecute apartheid as a specific, stand-alone crime with extraterritorial reach. It transforms our moral authority into a tool for universal justice, ensuring no one who commits such systematic oppression finds safe haven here. This upholds our legacy and defends human dignity everywhere. The government must be able to prosecute individuals for such crimes against humanity. We cannot allow those who commit atrocities abroad to walk freely among ordinary South Africans. This Bill is a necessary tool for justice and protection.	Anja	Western Cape		employed individual

	2025-12-04 07:32:32	Yes I do	No concern	I support the Apartheid Bill because South Africa cannot call itself a champion of human rights while leaving one of the gravest crimes in modern history undefined and unpunishable in our own domestic law. We come from a country where apartheid was a lived experience, not an abstract concept. For that very reason, we have a moral responsibility to ensure that the crime of apartheid—wherever and however it manifests—is recognised, prosecutable, and treated with the seriousness it deserves. This Bill gives substance to that responsibility. By domesticating the 1973 Apartheid Convention, South Africa finally aligns its law with the values it claims to uphold: equality, dignity, and justice for all peoples. It closes a long-standing gap where apartheid is condemned in principle, but not fully enforceable as a standalone crime in our legal system. That is an unacceptable contradiction, and this Bill corrects it. I also support the Bill because it protects South Africa’s position as a leader in global human rights advocacy. We cannot demand accountability from the international community while lacking the legal framework to hold individuals accountable—even those present within our borders—for participating in apartheid systems anywhere in the world. The Bill’s extraterritorial jurisdiction strengthens our commitment to universal justice, not selective justice. Some critics claim the Bill is too broad, but I believe its broadness reflects the evolving nature of oppression itself. Apartheid is not restricted to South Africa’s past. It appears across the world in various forms—racial, ethnic, political, territorial—whenever one group systematically dominates another. Our law should be capable of recognising and responding to these realities. Narrow definitions would only shelter perpetrators behind technicalities. Supporting this Bill is also about honouring our own historical memory.	Modise	Gauteng		employed individual

	2025-12-04 07:22:51	Yes I do	No concern	Given that apartheid is a system of codified racism in law, I fully support South Africa recognizing that we are an apartheid state with 145 racist laws, codfied, and in clear violation of both the UN and our own constitution which specifically makes it illegal to discriminate on the basis of race. 	2025-12-04 19:57:24	Yes I do	No concern	South Africa stands at a critical juncture in its journey toward true reconciliation and justice. The proposed Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025, introduced in accordance with section 73(2) of the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996, represents a significant step forward in holding perpetrators of apartheid-era crimes accountable. This legislation deserves unwavering support from all who believe in justice, human dignity, and the rule of law. The Bill seeks to domesticate the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid, which South Africa ratified decades ago. However, the absence of comprehensive implementing legislation has created a gap in our legal framework, potentially allowing perpetrators to escape accountability. This Bill addresses that deficiency directly, ensuring that those responsible for crimes against humanity during apartheid can be properly prosecuted and punished under South African law. Justice delayed should not mean justice denied. While the Truth and Reconciliation Commission provided a mechanism for national healing, not all perpetrators came forward, and not all victims received justice. Many individuals who committed heinous acts under the apartheid regime continue to live without facing consequences for their actions. This Bill provides the legal tools necessary to pursue accountability, regardless of how much time has passed. Crimes against humanity do not expire, and neither should our commitment to prosecuting them. True reconciliation cannot be built on a foundation of impunity. Accountability is not vengeful; it is restorative. It affirms the dignity of victims, validates their suffering, and sends an unequivocal message that such atrocities will never be tolerated again. Without accountability, we risk normalising impunity and undermining the very principles upon which our democratic Constitution	Benton	Gauteng		self-employed

	2025-12-04 19:33:51	Yes I do	No concern	Various global institutions including the UN, Amnesty International, Doctors Without Borders, Beit Salem(Jewish) have unequivocally cited Israel's apartheid state. 	2025-12-04 19:27:09	Yes I do	No concern	Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the proposed Apartheid Bill. As a South African who is firmly committed to human rights, equality, and international justice, I support any legislative initiative that strengthens accountability for crimes against humanity and aligns our laws with global human rights frameworks. South Africa carries a unique moral and historical responsibility to oppose all forms of oppression—both domestically and internationally. It is therefore important that our legislation continues to reflect these principles. However, in advancing this objective, it is equally critical that the Bill: Remains firmly grounded in the Constitution and the rule of law. Provides clear and objective definitions to ensure fairness, legal certainty, and prevent subjective or politically selective application. Integrates effectively with existing legislation, including the Rome Statute Act, to avoid overlap and ensure practical enforceability. Upholds the rights of all individuals, including due process and the presumption of innocence. Strengthens South Africa's human rights posture, without inadvertently creating diplomatic or legal vulnerabilities. My position is therefore pro–human rights and pro-accountability, with the view that any new legislation must be crafted with precision, fairness, and constitutional integrity. I support continued refinement of the Bill to ensure it genuinely advances justice, protects the vulnerable, and reinforces South Africa's longstanding commitment to human rights worldwide. Thank you for considering my submission.	Victor	Gauteng		business owner
	2025-12-04 19:07:36	Yes I do	No concern	Israel is an Apartheid state, contrary to what some of the participants say. Anyone supporting Israel and the Genocide they are committing should be brought to justice. As Mandela stated, South Africa won't be free unless Palestine is free. If you look at the Zionist Talmud and not be horrified that it is ok to rape a three year old, or that murder is acceptable you should definitely be brought to justice. It is incomprehensible that so many people don't know the true history of Palestine and believe the Israeli propaganda machine. I support this bill 100% and I hope it will be imposed. 	2025-12-05 08:27:27	Yes I do	No concern	This Bill is actually perfect, because in its definition of apartheid, it clearly demonstrates that the current South African government is actually complicit in the crime of apartheid itself. The current South African legislative and policy framework, whether wrapped up in the language of transformation or redress, fall squarely in the definition of apartheid as contained in this Bill, and would allow the State and State Officials implementing these new apartheid measures to be prosecuted and held liable for what is essentially a new apartheid system in South Africa. The utter cruelty and brutality of their actions should terrify all of us in South Africa particularly our black compatriots because if they can so casually use their power and weapons to destroy the Palestinians then there is very little to prevent them from doing it to us in the future. Whats happening between Israel and Gaza has opened my eyes to just how disgusting human beings have become, where resources, property and wealth stand in higher importance than that of the life of another human being. I've also seen the DA's real colours and will NEVER vote for them again. Countries such as Sudan, Palestine, Congo etc have the right to their own country's resources, to grow their own economies, and Western countries should stay the fuck out of them! This cannot be allowed to continue. Indoctrination in support of Israeli Apartheid continues in Zionist-Cult schools in insult to Jewish ethos and values, Zionist-Cultists serve unlawfully from SA in the IDF and financed junket are funded from SA to send lobbyists and propagandists to Israel in support of that Apartheid State which unlawfully occupies West Bank and Gaza, routinely destroys homes and engages in Nazi-style collective punishment, summary killings, destruction of homes, leisure of lands and illegal settlement, assassination of journalists and medical personnel, religious persecution of Chistians and Muslims. All of this is a violation of SA law. Ethno-nationalist racist Zionist-Cult organisations and support groups should be banned as Apartheid and neo-Nazi groups and cannot falsely present themselves as Jewish. 	2025-12-10 09:32:28	Yes I do	No concern	I support the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025 because it aligns with South Africa's constitutional values of human rights, dignity, and equality, and honours our country's history of opposing apartheid in all its forms. Implementing this convention into domestic law strengthens South Africa's ability to hold individuals and entities accountable for participating in or supporting apartheid-like crimes anywhere in the world. Given the current global context, and particularly the situation involving Israel, this legislation is necessary to ensure South Africa can take principled, legal action against any South African who participates in, supports, or fights for a state engaged in practices that may amount to apartheid. I believe that South Africans who choose to fight for Israel should face prosecution and imprisonment upon returning to South Africa, as their actions contradict our constitutional values and international legal commitments. This Bill provides the framework to prevent impunity, uphold international law, and ensure South Africa remains consistent in its moral and legal opposition to apartheid wherever it occurs. 	2025-12-11 09:57:05	Yes I do	No concern	I support this Bill because South Africa has always taken a moral, principled stance against injustice, and aligning our laws with international human rights standards is consistent with that legacy. If apartheid is recognised as a crime against humanity, then we have a responsibility to ensure that anyone who participates in or enables such acts is held accountable — no matter where it happens. That said, I am deeply concerned by ongoing reports that some South African citizens have been actively fighting on behalf of Israel and may be implicated in alleged war crimes. These are serious accusations, and they make the Bill even more relevant — not as a political tool, but as a safeguard to ensure accountability, transparency, and due process for all South Africans involved in foreign conflicts. For me, this is ultimately about upholding our values and ensuring that our legal framework reflects the same commitment to justice that we expect from the rest of the world. 	2025-12-11 12:17:01	Yes I do	No concern	Yes, I do fully support the Bill. Apartheid is racism and racism is a crime against humanity. The zionist state of isreal, has proofed itself as a genocidal and racist apartheid state against the legitimate people of the Land of Palestine, which the brutal genocidal zionist illegally occupies. Therefore it is correct to take action against those who are in support of the zionist genocide. 	2025-12-11 12:01:07	Yes I do	No concern	I fully support the Draft Apartheid Bill proposed by the Secretariat and Al Jama-ah. South Africa has a moral and historical responsibility to stand firmly against all forms of apartheid—wherever they occur in the world. This Bill strengthens that commitment by ensuring that individuals and entities responsible for practising, enabling, or financing apartheid in any country can be held accountable under South African law. At a time when Palestinian, Immigrant and other communities continue to face systematic discrimination, dispossession, and violations of fundamental human rights, this Bill reflects our nation's longstanding solidarity with oppressed people. It aligns with international law, our constitutional values, and South Africa's legacy of opposing injustice. Supporting this Bill is not about taking sides in a geopolitical conflict—it is about upholding universal principles of dignity, equality, and justice. It sends a clear message: apartheid is a crime against humanity, and those who perpetrate or support it should not find refuge anywhere. I encourage others to endorse this Bill as a progressive, principled step toward global accountability. It reflects the best of who we are as a nation shaped by our own struggle for freedom and committed to ensuring that no people, anywhere, endure the brutality of apartheid again. 	2025-12-11 22:31:41	Yes I do	No concern	It is hypocrisy of the highest order for a country that knows first-hand the inhumanity of Apartheid, and the injury to every single citizen that is still being felt, not to use every iota of political, social and moral influence to ensure that no other person, anywhere, is subjected to the same violence. That so-called Christians are seeing this as an attack on the church shows their total ignorance of the Bible and/ or the ravages of Apartheid in this and other countries. If they are ignorant of neither, then their response is even more chlling: they are knowingly turning their backs on the teachings of Jesus Christ. 	2025-12-13 11:29:57	Yes I do	No concern	South Africa's legal framework to criminalise apartheid is increasingly viewed by human-rights activists as one of the most significant tools in international law for preventing genocide, illegal occupation, and systemic racial domination. Rooted in the country's own history of institutionalised racial oppression, this law will give domestic force to the international crime of apartheid, as defined under international humanitarian and criminal law. Its relevance extends far beyond South Africa's borders. A Law Born From Lived Experience. South Africa is one of the few countries to have experienced apartheid not as an abstract legal concept, but as a daily reality enforced by the state. From 1948 to 1994, apartheid laws regulated movement, residence, education, employment, and political participation along racial lines, producing mass displacement, political imprisonment, and widespread violence. Following the end of apartheid, South Africa should incorporate international prohibitions against apartheid into its own legal system, recognising apartheid as a crime against humanity—on par with genocide and crimes against humanity under international law. Apartheid is a Precursor to Genocide. International legal frameworks increasingly recognise apartheid not as a standalone injustice, but as a structural pathway toward genocide. Genocide, rarely begins with mass killings. It typically unfolds in stages: Legalised discrimination Racial segregation Denial of political and civil rights Forced displacement Dehumanisation Systematic violence Apartheid enables these stages by creating a permanent system of domination by one group over another. The new apartheid law criminalises not only acts of violence, but the structure itself—including policies that fragment populations, enforce segregation, or institutionalise unequal rights. By outlawing these systems early, this law aims to interrupt genocidal trajectories before they escalate.	Annelise	Gauteng		self-employed

	2025-12-14 15:31:52	Yes I do	No concern	The Bill should be passed because it gives practical effect to South Africa's existing international and constitutional obligations by clearly codifying apartheid as a stand-alone domestic crime. While apartheid is recognised under the Rome Statute Act, the absence of a discrete offence creates uncertainty and limits effective prosecution of a systemic crime that requires specific legal treatment. The Bill closes that gap by adopting established definitions from the 1973 UN Apartheid Convention, ensuring legal certainty rather than vagueness. Its extraterritorial reach is consistent with South African law governing other crimes against humanity, and the inclusion of aiding and abetting reflects settled principles of accomplice liability. The legislation is conduct-based and country-neutral, aimed at accountability for a recognised international crime, not at regulating opinion or belief. Difficulty of enforcement does not undermine its validity; Parliament routinely legislates against serious international crimes because of their gravity and the need to prevent impunity. 	2025-12-08 15:10:31	Yes I do	Other	I don't see a problem with prosecuting people who are participating in activities where a foreign government is currently committing a genocide. I think the objectives of the bill is in line with South Africa's goal of being a country that promotes human rights and protects the oppressed. The fine print in the bill will however need to be specific and ensure that only those who are consciously involved in committing crimes against humanity are prosecuted. If the wording is too vague then it can be used to prosecute people who haven't actually done anything wrong.	Jeremy	Outside SA	Netherlands	employed individual

For crimes committed during South Africa's Apartheid era, if it was not dealt with by the Truth Commission, then the perpetrators must be brought to book & punished accordingly. With regard to Israel, any South African who served under this regime or assisted in the genocide, must be taken to task too. As South Africans, we cannot just sit back and accept everything that's happening to the Palestinians. The Israeli leadership should also be banned from South Africa, and if found visiting our shores, they must be arrested & brought to justice. 	2025-12-08 12:00:28	Yes I do	Other	Apartheid is still alive in South Africa, even if people try to hide it. Many speak as if they stand against it, yet they openly support it when it comes with a different name, like Zionism. DearSA often reflects this pattern. It presents its own bias in almost every topic it puts forward, and this takes away from the work needed to bring real change in our country. Apartheid is one ugly form of a deeper sickness—racism. Yet racism begins in the heart, and we cannot afford to carry this into our shared future. It does not matter if someone is not part of an Apartheid system elsewhere. If they support it there, they would support it here if an Apartheid machine ever regained strength in South Africa.	Ganief	Western Cape		self-employed

	2025-12-10 10:21:57	Yes I do	Other	This petition is clearly presented in such a way as to sabotage the bill. To start with, there's a cross-looking white woman posing with a ream of legalese which one assumes is the so-called Apartheid bill in question, and that's what she's cross about, not South Africans going off to defend Israeli Apartheid and genocide. Who's going to want to click past that unless you're some Zionist on a mission to defend white supremacy?! Then it asks "Justice or politics?" "Politics" is what you call a cause if you want to dismiss it as a matter of party allegiance. It suggests this whole thing is purely a matter of party allegiance; purely a question of justice for who - your people or mine? Asking justice for Israel or Palestinians is a false equivalence. The bill is not about Israel vs Palestine, it's about South African mercenaries or dual citizens serving Apartheid and genocide on Palestinians. Are you for or against that?! Then there's that drop-down list kicking off with "Weaponising laws" and "Political motivation". How do those first two suggestions not create bias against the law?! This petition is not worth the bytes it made of. I'm inclined to add that calling it so bluntly the Apartheid Bill is a dumb move, more likely to sabotage it than gain support. The name doesn't even make it clear if it's for or against Apartheid. It needs to be named more specifically to make its objective clearer from the outset.	Andrew	Western Cape		self-employed

This Bill opposes the rogue Netanyahu regime which is guilty of crimes against humanity, and genocide. The open prison of Gaza, human rights abuses of Palestinians in Gaza and the West bank are an extreme form of what was defined as apartheid's crimes against humanity.	Martin			retired

	2025-12-04 01:36:42	Yes I do	Weaponising laws	It is disheartening that the effects of apartheid still persists in humanity and in South Africa. This bill must not only persecute individuals, but must look at social systems and laws that still perpetuate oppression. These are evidenced in workplaces where there's intimidation and victimization of employees in the name of high powers and employees are not valued. Also, South Africa's unemployment rate as a result of the lack of system strengthening. People of color are still marginalized and experience severe poverty, harsh living conditions, and poor access to healthcare care. South Africa needs to also revise the employment age bracket, as the unemployed people have passed the recommended youth bracket (35 years). Lastly, South Africans are paying high and many taxes that directly impact on the quality of life as a result of lack of affordability. 	2025-12-04 17:50:57	Yes I do	Weaponising laws	Recommendations to Strengthen the Bill & Its Implementation: 1. Technical Precision: Ensure the definitions of "inhuman acts," "racial group," and "systematic oppression" in the Bill are ironclad, drawing directly from the ICJ's ongoing proceedings and the UN Convention to withstand constitutional scrutiny. 2. Independent Prosecutorial Mechanism: Establish a dedicated, apolitical unit within the National Prosecuting Authority (NPA) with specialized international law expertise to review evidence and decide on prosecutions. This insulates the process from claims of political witch-hunts. 3. Civil Society & Witness Protection: Include robust provisions for allowing sworn affidavits and evidence from international human rights groups and for protecting victims and witnesses abroad who cooperate. 4. Diplomatic Preparedness: The government must proactively embark on a diplomatic campaign to explain the Bill's universal principles to allies, framing it as a stand against the crime of apartheid everywhere, not against any single nation. 5. Public Education: Launch a public campaign to explain the Bill's legal basis, differentiating it from hate speech or thought policing, and anchoring it in South Africa's constitutional values and international law. Conclusion: This Apartheid Bill is a bold assertion of ethical sovereignty. It declares that South Africa's hard-won freedom and its legal system will not be complicit in the very crime that defined its own oppression. It is a logical, powerful, and necessary step to weaponize our law—not for war, but for justice. To support it is to affirm the core lesson of our history: that apartheid, wherever it exists, is a crime against humanity that demands confrontation, not complicity. I support it without reservation.	mathanzima joseph	Western Cape		employed individual
	2025-12-04 17:49:44	Yes I do	Weaponising laws	4. Deterring Complicity & Solidifying Ethical Foreign Policy: The statement by Al Jama-ah's leader, while politically direct, highlights a core intent: to hold South African citizens and dual nationals accountable for materially supporting a system widely documented as apartheid. This is not about thought crimes; it's about material support (e.g., fundraising for illegal settlements, lobbying for military aid used in oppression). It elevates our foreign policy from rhetoric to enforceable legal standards. 5. Broad Cross-Party Support Signals National Resolve: The backing by the ANC, EFF, MK Party, and others demonstrates that this transcends narrow party politics. It reflects a "progressive bloc" consensus that anti-apartheid is a foundational national value. This strengthens the Bill's legitimacy and potential durability. Addressing Opponents' Arguments: • "Constitutionally Vague": This is a drafting challenge, not a fatal flaw. The Bill must and can be meticulously crafted to align with the Constitution's principles of legal certainty. South Africa has successfully domesticated complex international law before. • "Practically Unenforceable": While enforcement will be complex, establishing the legal principle is the first crucial step. Similar universal jurisdiction laws globally have shifted norms and restricted travel for accused perpetrators. The symbolic and gradual practical impact should not be underestimated. • "A Waste of Resources": Investing in justice is never a waste. This Bill fulfills a constitutional mandate (Section 231) to align law with international agreements. It also protects the integrity of our legal system from being used to facilitate international crimes. Recommendations to Strengthen the Bill & Its Implementation:	mathanzima joseph	Western Cape		employed individual
	2025-12-04 17:46:58	Yes I do	Weaponising laws	YES, I unequivocally and strongly support the "Apartheid Bill." This legislation is not merely a political statement; it is a profound moral, legal, and historical imperative for South Africa. My support is rooted in critical analysis and the conviction that this Bill represents a necessary and powerful tool for justice. Critical Analysis & Reasons for Extreme Strong Support: 1. Moral & Historical Obligation: South Africa's unique history as a state built on and liberated from apartheid imposes a non-negotiable duty to be a global leader in eradicating this crime. To turn a blind eye to alleged apartheid elsewhere, especially when articulated by leading human rights organizations like Amnesty International, Human Rights Watch, and Israeli NGOs such as B'Tselem, would be a betrayal of our own struggle. This Bill operationalizes the foundational principle of "Never Again." 2. Closing the Impunity Gap: The existing Rome Statute Act is generic. By domesticating the 1973 UN Apartheid Convention with specific definitions and extraterritorial jurisdiction, the Bill creates a precise legal instrument. It ensures that South Africa is not a safe haven for those accused of this crime against humanity, anywhere. It empowers our courts to act where international mechanisms are paralyzed by geopolitics, truly aligning our laws with our international commitments. 3. Targeted & Necessary Focus: While applicable globally, the Bill's focus on Israel/Palestine is legitimate and urgent. The International Court of Justice (ICJ) is currently adjudicating whether Israel's policies constitute apartheid, and South Africa is a key party to that case. This Bill ensures domestic legal coherence with our foreign policy and international litigation strategy. It is not "antagonistic" but consistent and principled.	mathanzima joseph	Western Cape		employed individual

	2025-12-02 20:11:42	Yes I do	Political motivation	Be careful South Africa is involving itself in the internal affairs of other countries. This is what its about. What is happening in Israel/Palistine is horrific. It's genocide! But South Africa might find itself on the receiving side of a Great Power. This is not something that is in South Africa's national interest. And may well destroy the country if the government continues to go down this path. 	2025-12-04 07:45:58	Yes I do	Political motivation	When a country like Germany makes any criticism of Israel synonymous with being an anti semite and anti zionism as being anti semite and therefore anti jewish, it means they have taken over (that is Israel) the autonomy of a european democracy in order to continue a genocide! cause that is what it is. Honestly Rob, I have supported your cause all the way, but this makes me question what you stand for. What other choice does south africa have but to hit back in the most extreme way? It is not a bill I would support in a sane world. But we are officially in an insane world where murders are seen as victims because the brain washing machine as over centuries been so utterly successful in making even afrikaners believe that they are chosen and that israel is on our side. The fact however is that the zionists are using you and will not hesitate to do to us what they do to palestinians. They will do it at a drop if a hat if you ever oppose anything they do. 	2025-12-05 23:16:45	Yes I do	Political motivation	I fully agree with the Apartheid Bill because it strengthens South Africa's long-standing commitment to justice, human rights, and international solidarity. Our country has a moral and historical responsibility to ensure that apartheid wherever it occurs, is treated as the crime against humanity that it is. By domesticating the UN Apartheid Convention, this Bill closes legal gaps and ensures that perpetrators, regardless of nationality or where the crimes were committed, can be held accountable in our courts. In a world where oppressed communities often have no access to justice, this Bill reinforces South Africa's role as a global voice for the marginalized. It aligns our laws with our principles, giving real meaning to "Never Again." Supporting this Bill is supporting accountability, human dignity, and the universal fight against racial oppression. 	2025-12-09 19:26:46	Yes I do	Political motivation	I support the ethical intentions of the proposed bill, but I have reservations regarding the real motives from the involved parties. 1. Are they trying to garner more of the Muslim vote? 2.Why get embroiled in other nations issues when we have serious pressing issues at home? 3.It does smack of double standards - how does one square the racist BEE rules with opposing apartheid in other societies? I have no beef with the Israelis nor the Palestinians and I am emotionally detached from their plight, but I have great sympathy for the plight of the Palestinians that are still trying to eek out a living. However, it seems to me that the Israeli leadership has taken a decision for self-destruction. It has only one real supporter - the USA, which is increasingly becoming embroiled in its own issues. The reality is that Israel is surrounded by a majority of Arab nations + Iran. In the long term I predict that the current status quo is doomed. When the Arab nations eventually decide to get their act together, Israel will be eating crow at the negotiating table. Never in history has a minority managed to resist a majority forever - we saw that in SA in 1992.	Bruckner			retired

	2025-12-04 05:18:23	Yes I do	Constitutional issues	Constitutional Concerns are further stated below; The Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025, introduced by Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa of Al Jama-ah, seeks to domesticate the 1973 UN Apartheid Convention into South African law, potentially raising issues under the 1996 Constitution, particularly sections 1(c), 9, 16, 22, and 39 Vagueness and Legal Certainty Section 36 of the Constitution requires laws to be reasonable and justifiable, but the Bill's broad definitions of "apartheid" acts—extending to "similar policies and practices of racial segregation"—may fail the certainty test under common law and section 1(c) on supremacy of the Constitution and rule of law. Critics argue this vagueness allows subjective application, risking arbitrary prosecutions without clear boundaries, as apartheid is already prosecutable as a crime against humanity via customary international law under section 232 Freedom of Expression Threats The Bill's extraterritorial reach to prosecute "aiding" apartheid, including speech or advocacy, conflicts with section 16's protection of free expression, potentially criminalizing political discourse or defenses against apartheid allegations (e.g., related to Israel). Opponents, including the DA and FF+, contend it chills legitimate debate, as seen in Al Jama-ah's prior efforts to penalize MPs dismissing Israel-apartheid claims, undermining democratic pluralism. Equality and Non-Discrimination Issues By targeting specific ideologies or states under expansive "inhuman acts," the Bill may discriminate on grounds of belief or association, violating section 9's equality clause and risking reverse discrimination against groups perceived as apartheid supporters. This selective enforcement could prioritize foreign policy over domestic reconciliation, conflicting with the Constitution's transformative ethos post-TRC.	Sthembiso	KwaZulu-Natal		self-employed

	2025-12-04 09:57:34	Yes I do	Constitutional issues	I fully Agree with them cause today we have a broken societies that were created or as a results of such behaviors of apartheid. This has to start here in South Africa first by prostituting those who oppressed the African people from their indigenous land through barrel of the Gun, Molestation of children, Murdering of African people, Stolen their land, en slavering them, introducing Black Friday whereby Africans were sold as commodities for slavery Introduction of Christianity and Education as tools to remove them from their African values and be moderate or reasonable glorified slaves. all those who committed such activities and those who benefited as a results of it must be prosecuted and be ordered to return the land back to its right full owner, The Afro Forum and Human Right Commission who seem to promote or defend those who illegal benefited from stolen land and murdering of African mus be abolished and be prosecuted cause the denied that apartheid was a crime against humanity. If Human right Commission was for real was supposed to defend the dispossessed poor Africans and stand against all formation that seems to uphold apartheid system such as borders in this continent of Africa. The impact of apartheid will also affect the people, generation to come of Palestine as it done to us in South Africa. We need a total Liberation of a man kind in this world whereby one will be able to practice his/her believe, values freely without fear and favor of others therefore begins in respecting the sovereignty of other countries and the will of its people including the return of our stolen land without any conditions attached to it then eternal peace will prevail. 	2025-12-04 21:38:48	Yes I do	Constitutional issues	Sipporting a genocidal regime IS a crime. This is one of the fundamental precepts of modern international law. There is absolutely nothing wrong with implementing it in our law books. If it conflicted with our constitution (and I don't think it does) then it would be the constitution that needs looking at. The phrasing is unfortunate, though. Apartheid, even though it's a bona fide crime against humanity, is not equal to genocide. The bill should be about genocide, not apartheid. 	2025-12-04 19:21:58	Yes I do	Constitutional issues	RSA has been a beacon of hope to the world via our successful and peaceful transformation from apartheid to democracy; we led the world in taking on the worst illegal criminal "state" at the ICJ & ICC. We should not allow our citizens to participate and aid any oppression, anywhere especially against a defenceless people merely seeking to exist in the world and in their own land. Same goes for the Rohingya, Uighur, Sudanese, Kashimiri etc people. 	2025-12-05 08:33:26	Yes I do	Constitutional issues	I support the Apartheid Bill because it represents a principled and necessary step toward strengthening South Africa's commitment to international human rights, accountability, and global justice. South Africa has long positioned itself as a moral voice against racism, oppression, and apartheid-style governance due to our own history. This Bill builds on that legacy by giving South African courts the tools to enforce the 1973 UN Apartheid Convention more comprehensively and directly. While apartheid is already recognised as a crime against humanity under the Rome Statute Act (2002), the existing framework is limited. The Apartheid Bill closes important gaps by providing a stand-alone definition, specific prohibited acts, and extraterritorial jurisdiction, allowing South Africa to hold individuals accountable even when offences are committed beyond our borders. This aligns with South Africa's obligations under international law and supports the government's recent efforts at the International Court of Justice (ICJ) to oppose systemic discrimination wherever it occurs. A major strength of the Bill is that it demonstrates a unified stance from multiple parties—ANC, EFF, MK, PAC, GOOD, and others—signalling a broad progressive consensus that apartheid, in any form and in any region, should never be ignored or tolerated. The Bill therefore reinforces parliamentary commitment to ethical foreign policy and consistent application of human rights standards. Supporters of the Bill, myself included, view it not as a political weapon but as a tool to end impunity. If South Africans or dual citizens actively support regimes or systems that the international community identifies as practising apartheid, then accountability mechanisms should exist. The Bill makes it clear that complicity in such systems carries moral and legal consequences, just as complicity would have during South Africa's own struggle against apartheid. Furthermore, the Bill strengthens South Africa's globa	Pheello	Gauteng		unemployed individual

	2025-12-14 07:15:12	Yes I do	Constitutional issues	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. There will come a time when the UAE falls under the same fire as Israel and a large majority of the Muslim community will cry Islamophobia as many Jews have cried antisemitism, not fully comprehending the ramifications of their behaviour outside of their religious defensiveness. If apartheid is already a crime in RSA then it is already punishable. If we want to amend those punishments then by all means do so. 	2025-12-04 18:40:57	Not fully	Weaponising laws	WITHOUT PREJUDICE Action "is" needed to regulate the activities of dual citizens!! The policies of apartheid which focused on "separate with parallel development" are incomparable to Israel which behaves more like a genocidal state rooted in its rabinical beliefs. The Balfour declaration would grant the European Jews a homeland in Palestine, not a State! It was also conditional, that Jews would be neighbourly and integrate with their hosts, the Palestinians. None of the areas/regions in which the disposessed Palestinians have found themselves are designated Homelands for Palestinians. None, of these areas or regions have had their boundaries respected. Under the South Africn apartheid policies, the racial classifications were centered on "places of origin" there was no category that explicitly stated "black". Moreover, the racial segregation was imposed during British occupation of South Africa, and it affected ALL South Africans including the Afrikaner/ Boers. Importantly, no citizen of South Africa could live let alone own land in a Bantustan or Homeland, unless the ruling tribe whose territory it was recognized that person as one of their own. There was little restriction concerning economic migration to and fro between homelands and the mother country. Israel is a uniquely ZIONIST State, applying its rabbinical laws and rules, many of which in contravention of Human Rights Laws. The Zionist has a plurality in its sources for justification of its actions, the Talmud, the Kabbalah and the Torah. Their beliefs and practices are largely incompatible with other religions whom the Jew refer to as goyim. It will be an absolute travesty to exploit the more benevolent intending policies of the South African "apartheid system" under a Nationalist Government, which by comparison to the current liberal Democratic policies of today was indeed a towering success, an example of minority Christian Governance. imo. 	2025-12-06 12:17:28	Not fully	Weaponising laws	The South African Bill of Rights and Constitution are designed to protect all who are South African citizens. Criminalising people who disagree with the popular narrative, particularly ones regarding Israel, predominately pushed by political Islamists, who support Sharia Law as enshrined in the Qur'an, Hadiths, and Sirah books, which is in and of itself Apartheid in nature, as defined by the bill. Examples include the invalidity of non-muslim testimony in Sharia councils/courts, criminalisation of non-muslims, subjegation of Islam on non-believers, and the list goes on. So this objection is two-fold, in that the bill is flawed by weaponising human rights in favour of a political worldview that contradicts it, making it politically motivated by forces that are inherently contrary to the very same constitution. Let me just clarify that such a bill would indeed be acceptable, when and only if the motives of this said bill were sound, and the bill itself is integrally and morally sound, unable to be weaponised by malicious forces, like the Economic Freedom Fighters, for example - who weaponise the "Apartheid" narrative to push their own malicious agendas. 	2025-12-06 22:43:00	Not fully	Weaponising laws	The state cannot criminally punish someone for their political stance, foreign policy preference, or who they ‘support’ internationally. The Bill Invokes Extraterritorial Power It allows SA to prosecute anyone, anywhere in the world, if SA decides an apartheid-like act occurred. Problems: SA courts cannot realistically investigate foreign conflicts. It overreaches South Africa’s jurisdiction. It could force South Africans to pick a political side under threat of criminal sanctions. This is why lawyers say it is constitutionally vague and unenforceable. It Sets a Dangerous Precedent If Parliament can criminalise support for one foreign country today… Could a future Parliament criminalise support for Ukraine, or China, or Western countries, or any political movement they dislike? This is why constitutional experts warn that it creates a legal weapon that any political party in power could later misuse. South Africa Already Has These Crimes on the Books Under the Rome Statute Act (2002): Apartheid is already a crime, and SA courts already have power to prosecute individuals involved in such crimes. So why create a new law? The Bill’s Definitions Are Extremely Vague “Apartheid-like policies” and “support” are not clearly defined. That means: People won’t know what is legal or illegal. Courts would have to interpret ambiguous political terms. Law becomes unpredictable → unconstitutional under rule of law principles. It Weaponises Law for Ideology, Not Justice Supporters openly say the Bill exists to punish South Africans who hold a certain political view about Israel. But in a democracy: You cannot criminalise someone for having the wrong political opinion. You cannot punish lawful association or expression just because it offends the governing party’s ideology. That's fundamentally undemocratic. The Bill Could Criminalise Ordinary South Africans Under the broad definition of “support”, people could be targeted for: buying Israeli products etc	Alex	Gauteng

	2025-12-05 11:35:20	Not fully	Other	Direct Answer The Rome Statute explicitly defines apartheid as a crime against humanity, describing it as inhumane acts committed in the context of an institutionalised regime of systematic oppression and domination by one racial group over another, with the intent of maintaining that regime. This means that if apartheid practices are carried out inside South Africa today, they fall under the same international criminal definition and could, in principle, be prosecuted under the Statute. What the Rome Statute Says - Article 7(1)(j): Lists “the crime of apartheid” among crimes against humanity. - Article 7(2)(h): Defines it as: “Inhumane acts of a character similar to other crimes against humanity, committed in the context of an institutionalised regime of systematic oppression and domination by one racial group over any other racial group or groups and committed with the intention of maintaining that regime.” - This definition is deliberately broad, covering not only South Africa’s historical apartheid system but any present-day regime that fits the criteria. Implications for South Africa - Domestic Law: South Africa incorporated the Rome Statute into its own law through the Implementation Act (2002). Apartheid is already prosecutable domestically as a crime against humanity. - Unfinished TRC/NPA Justice: - Many perpetrators never came before the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC), nor were they prosecuted by the National Prosecuting Authority (NPA). - The TRC recommended prosecutions for those who did not seek or qualify for amnesty, but the NPA largely failed to act, leaving a gap of impunity. - These individuals remain legally vulnerable: apartheid crimes have no statute of limitations under international law. 	2025-12-05 18:28:30	Not fully	Other	While, on the face of it, the law seems noble in its aims, there are a few aspects that need to be highlighted. I will list them as bullet points in no specific order. • It is well known that South Africa had Apartheid laws that were supported by a majority of eligible voters. There is no mention in the summary of whether people that supported Apartheid in the past will be criminalised by this law. While one can infer a present tense implication, it is not written as such. Apartheid, in spite of its legacies, is a crime of the past. There should be a date for proscription of the crimes. • The term "support" is very vague. The impression created by newspapers and social media is that this is an incentive against Israel. If the law intends to criminalise emotional support for Israelis, this is a gross injustice against freedom of speech and contradicts the wording of the convention itself. Furthermore, the law should allow for freedom to debate. I can see that one can support people in an Apartheid state without supporting the crime of Apartheid. Therefore, taking the case against Israel, one should be allowed to support Israel while condemning acts against humanity. This should be the same for Palestine – both sides have committed injustices, and one should be allowed to point out the atrocities on both sides instead of only allowing binary views. • A law should not be written for a specific case, but should have a purpose aligned with general societal principles. If this is only about Israel, there is no direct need for a law. • Some of the aspects of the convention are already contradicting many of the race-based laws in South Africa. Not all citizens have equal access to job opportunities, economic participation and freedom of association. • There has been validation for singing of "Kill the farmer, kill the boer". At least one reading of the convention places the act of singing this song, as well as the legal stance of allowing this as Apartheid cri	Wynand	Free State		retired

	2025-12-06 17:11:17	Not fully	Other	I’m astonished that anybody should complain that any bill that comes to parliament is political. Parliament is the seat of political issues. For me the questions are: How does one implement a decision to sanction supporters of apartheid elsewhere in the world -- even if they are South Africans? How does one know who is a dual citizen? Is this the thin edge of a xenophobic wedge in an exercise to reject any South African citizen the right to hold dual citizenship? How then does one deal with descendants of South Africans who went into exile and whose children gained other citizenship in their places of birth? SA already has legislation in place to be able to sanction any South African from performing military service for any other country. That legislation appears to have been forgotten in respect of the ‘recruits’ sent to Russia to serve with the Russian army in Ukraine. - those recently in the news. And why is it not being applied to SA citizens who 'volunteer’ to serve in Ukraine against Russia? Again, there is a problem of implementation. And that isn’t a reason to introduce new legislation that will again be unimplementable.	Andrew	Western Cape		retired

	2025-12-12 08:25:53	Not fully	Other	The proposed Bill presents a range of structural and systemic risks that extend well beyond its stated objectives. Broad and indeterminate definitions of criminal conduct may undermine constitutional principles of legality and create uncertainty around lawful speech, association, and commercial activity. The Bill's asserted extraterritorial reach raises serious practical, evidentiary, and diplomatic challenges, while potentially duplicating or conflicting with existing international-crimes legislation already incorporated into South African law. Its explicitly political framing risks politicising the criminal justice system and drawing courts into complex and contested international disputes. The resulting legal uncertainty may deter investment and impose significant compliance burdens on individuals and businesses with indirect international exposure. In addition, the Bill may have unintended consequences for academia, civil society, media, and humanitarian engagement. Inconsistent or selective enforcement could erode equality before the law, while the precedent it sets may enable future expansion of criminal liability based on political alignment rather than clearly defined criminal conduct. 	2025-12-12 10:30:20	Not fully	Other	I do not agree with the introduction of the Implementation of the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid Bill, 2025. I object to the premise and intent of this Bill, and I question by what mandate Mr Imraan Ismail-Moosa, MP, assumes the authority to decide or speak on my behalf as a South African citizen. South Africa is a constitutional democracy founded on individual rights, accountability, and the rule of law. Re-introducing legislation framed around apartheid, decades after its legal dismantling, risks deepening division rather than fostering unity, reconciliation, and forward-looking governance. I am concerned that this Bill may be politically motivated, selectively framed, and disconnected from the lived realities and priorities of many South Africans today — including economic stability, service delivery, crime, healthcare, and education. I therefore formally submit that I do not support this Bill and request that Parliament carefully consider whether this proposed legislation truly serves the interests of all South Africans, rather than advancing ideological or political agendas. 	2025-12-04 10:29:58	Not fully	Constitutional issues	The case against Israel is legitimate and the ICJ proceedings should proceed. However, criminalising South African citizens who support Israel's oppression of Palestinians and refusal to recognize the legitimacy of a Palestinian state needs to be carefully defined as the current proposed amendment infringes on South African citizen constitutional rights. Keeping this in mind, it is however, important and essential for International concerns over the manner in which Israel conducts its affairs both politically and socially and with impunity. Such 'impunity' should not be allowed in our South African constitution regarding citizens who support Israel. For example: a ZA citizen who serves in the IDF and returns to South Africa should stand trial and be sentenced (without bail) due to the organisations affiliation with crimes against humanity as per the United Nations Assembly rulings on the matter. While Countries like the USA support Israel, South Africa should continue to stand with the UN, upholding the freedom and right to self determination from countries like Israel that enforce colonial and illegal occupation of territories (that do not belong to them) Further, any organisation in South Africa that is directly linked to the funding of Israels military and/or occupied territories where land grabs and illegal removal of Palestinian asssets are conducted, should be illegal to manage in and from South African soil (from inside South Africa) Such an approach would give a clearer signal to Israel and its supporters of the severity of their actions and impact on International security. It is imperative to maintain a clear narrative as to the difference between Israeli Zionism (political) and Israeli Judaism (religious) . The Judaic faith should maintain all constitutional rights of freedom to be, to practice and live by their customs . Zionism (is not judaism) is the political (not religious) force behind the oppression of Palestinians and the current Genocide.	Robert	Western Cape		self-employed

Secondly, the risk for this new bill to become the source of greater conflict is too great to ignore. What constitutes supporting an so called “apartheid nation”? Will Israeli duel nationals who do not (fully) condemn Isreal be prosecuted? Thirdly, South Africa is protected by human rights laws and can simply act on them without bringing about greater international conflict. 	2025-12-08 09:16:10	Not fully	Constitutional issues	Apartheid in the sense of the history of our country RSA was dehumanising and wrong. It created structures to separate people based on colour of their skin. What the Al Jamah-ah party is proposing is to demonise people based on their decision to support a view that doesn't agree with the Al Jamah-ah party and its constituents. What they are proposing is purely political and religious bias against others who don't agree with their standpoint. My case in point: if I support Israel's right to defend its people from slaughter by those who cross its borders and kill indiscriminately, which is what occurred on October 7th 2023 when Gazans under the directive of Hamas terrorists infiltrated Israel's border and killed, mutilated, burnt, raped and tortured men, women, children, babies and the elderly. Israel is a democratic country giving Arabs, Druze, Christians & others opportunities to become part of Israeli society if they are willing to treat others with respect, dignity and peace. And this Al Jamah-ah party wants to make a law to outlaw people for their support of eg: Israel's right to defend its people from terrorism, just because it rubs this party up the wrong way when people push back against the party's support of of slaughter, rape, torture? How is that right or legal ? It would be a travesty of justice if this bill is allowed and it would be a defining indicator of how far this country has fallen into corruption and utter wickedness. Shame on those in authority kow-towing to those who dangle the carrot on the stick. I pray this country would wake up and build what was envisioned by Mr Mandela. We had such hope for this country. 	2025-12-11 11:14:22	Not fully	Constitutional issues	I do not support the draft Apartheid Bill in its current form. My top concern is constitutional issues. The Bill gives the State sweeping extraterritorial powers but fails to define clearly what counts as "apartheid," leaves no meaningful legal defences, and offers no recourse if a prosecution is baseless. That combination violates the rule-of-law principles in our Constitution (ss 33, 35 & 36). Parliament should either scrap the Bill or rewrite it so that: the offence is defined with the same precision as other crimes; universal jurisdiction is limited to the gravest, state-level conduct; the NDPP's consent is reviewable by a court; robust defences (academic, journalistic, parliamentary) are spelled out; Victims of wrongful prosecution can claim compensation. Without these safeguards the Bill becomes a political weapon, not a human-rights tool.	Adam	Gauteng		employed individual
